QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous

THICKENING STAND IN MEADOW. Some of my hay ground was killed last winter, and the rest was very thin. Would you kindly advise me how I could get a good crop for next year? Would seeding on the top of the ground be good? Some clay knolls did not good? Some clay knows did not catch" last spring. Give best plan of getting a catch this fall. J. S. Ans.-1. Unless there is some very particular reason to the contrary, we would strongly advise breaking up the thin meadow this fall or next spring, manuring and planting to corn, roots or potatoes, followed by grain, seeded to clover. We are not very confident of success from seeding this fall on the bare spots, though you might try disking them, top-dressing with eight or ten loads of manure per acre, applied by manure spreader, disking again, then harrowing. and then sowing timothy seed, harrowing and rolling. In the spring, sow clover seed early on the thin portion of the field, top-dressing with manure as early now as possible, or even this winter, will work wonders, and probably the spots where the grass killed out would respond surprisingly to this treatment without sowing any more seed at all. Wood ashes would also help greatly.

2. For the knolls, we can suggest no better treatment than top-dressing and reseeding as described above. chances would have been better, we believe, if the manuring and seeding had been done early in the season, say immediately after having.

TROUBLE IN CHURNING SEPARATOR CREAM.

What is wrong with our cream? We have to churn from two to four hours, and then the butter is soft. We use a separator, and the cream is chilled immediately. There is no difference whether the temperature is high or low. The cows are fresh since January, most of them this spring. They have good pasture, and plenty of running water. Our neighbors who have separators have the same trouble. We have all had it since getting separators.

FARMER'S WIFE.

Ans.-In answering the foregoing question, we would frankly admit there is a certain element of guesswork involved, since we are not thoroughly acquainted with all the existing conditions. The two most common causes of difficult and prolonged churning are: Poor or thin cream churned at too low a temperature for its richness. The cows being a long time in milk and on dry foods, which conditions produce a hard butter-fat, which, in turn, makes the cream much more difficult to churn. As the cows, in this case, are on grass, we are strongly inclined to conclude that the trouble is due to the cream not being rich enough for the temperature at which it is churned, or possibly too poor to churn at any reasonable temperature. As a reasonably rich cream will churn at a much lower temperature than will a poor or thin cream, we would strongly advise "Farmer's Wife" to have a Babcock test of her cream made, and then should it test low, as we suspect it will, adjust the separator so that it will throw a cream testing about 30 per cent. Turning a cream screw in, or skim-milk screw out a little, will give a richer Almost all of our separators are regulated by means of cream screws. If churned in a barrel churn, which is filled less than half full of cream, a cream hovering about 30 per cent. in richness should churn in a reasonable length of time at a temperature sufficiently low-say 60 degrees, or below-to insure a reasonably firm butter. Churn at as low a temperature as conditions will permit of, but do not churn at too low a temperature the first time. A few experiments will teach you the best temperature to churn at. The cream should be at churning temperature for some little time before churning, as where cream is raised to churning temperature immediately before churning time, the fat remains firm for some time after, it not being as good a conductor of heat as the other constituents of the cream. We feel satisfied that if the cream be made reasonably rich and properly ripened, and churned at a temperature suitable to its richness, the difficulty will disappear. J. W. MITCHELL,

Supt. Eastern Dairy School.
