Select Poetry

Under the Laurel.

Under the laurel last year's May,
We sat and talked all the day—
And you found my temples round
With a wreath of rose twined with bay,
Roses for love and bay for fame;
For the costliest treasure at life's command,
A woman's heart, you had laid in my hand,
And there would give me a sounding name.

John's Mother.

There is a timid knock at the door
Of the country printing office, or rather
Of the room which I dubbed the
"sanctum" of the Weekly Palladium over whose destiny I presided. After the usual "come in" there entered a faded and bent old lady, whose dress immediately proclaimed her as a resident of the far back townships. She had a frightened, bewildered look and her bonazine dress was dusty and wrinkled with the long ride she had taken over the Kansas prairies in her trip to the county seat.

Choice Miscellany

Not "Sentimental."

Mrs. Harden blew the horn for breakfast at five o'clock. Her husband came in from the barn, and her son from the garden, where he had been digging since dawn. The Hardens were thrifty farmers, sober, hard-working, God-fearing folk. They were healthy and prosperous; they ought to have been happy, but they gathered about the table silently, even without giving each other a recognizing smile.

A Happy Woman.

"The happiest women like the happiest nations have no history," says that wonderful writer, George Eliot, but no woman can be happy who is suffering from the irregularities and "weaknesses" so common to the sex.

Who Makes Fashions.

Stepping into a millinery establishment I asked the lady in charge if she would tell me what might be the fashionable color for the season.

grims, unpleasant virtues.

Never be afraid to brighten the life of your friend or neighbor by praise or love, provided the praise and love are true.

God has made nothing for use without giving it an additional touch of grace and beauty. The hardest rock, seen through the microscope, has its exquisite tints and lines.

Why should we strive to rob our lives of that harmony and beauty which is the expression of the love that comes from Him?—Youth's Companion.

and I considered her word worth a month of careful examination on my part. Turning to go the woman called me to stop a moment.

She had been listening to the telephone and smilingly announced that it was well I had not left.

"For," said she, "the fashion has changed. Old gold color will now have its reign."

"Madam," I said, "will you tell me who orders this change?"

"I am afraid I cannot gratify your curiosity, but will do my best."

Stepping to the telephone she gave orders to have the necessary inquiries made in New York.

"We will see what can be done for you," was her reply.

"No one in this office has the slightest idea, but we will ask in London and Paris."

In about an hour the answer came, "We cannot find out; we do not know; nobody in the world knows."

Laughing the madam added, "I think, sir, that the fashion, come like the seasons; nobody is responsible for them, but everybody obeys. We are the trees that wear just such colored leaves as nature puts."

This was a pretty way of getting out of the difficulty. Her illustration was a charming one.

The trees follow a tendency and unfold their leaves and fold them away without any exercise of reason, but they always do the right thing.

October would be awkward if she could swap places with May. You may be sure that when the time comes our mothers' scoop hats, as large as Arab's tents, will loom upon us.

Nobody will order it; they will come.

Saved by a Cat.

During the time when England was rent and torn by civil strife between the two factions represented by the red and white roses, Sir Henry Wyatt, a brave and noble soldier, wore the red rose, and after a brilliant victory won by his enemies, was captured and imprisoned, so the record tells us, "in a cold and dark tower."

Here he was allowed to languish unprovided with sufficient food to keep the wheels of life moving on. In vain he begged his jailer to increase his allowance, but fearing to disobey those who ruled over him the man refused.

One day Sir Henry discovered that a visitor had made her way into his dark and narrow cell. She purred and rubbed against him and soon the knight and newcomer were fast friends.

Every day she came for a while through a narrow aperture in the wall and day by day the attachment grew. Whether in the course of their interviews Sir Henry told his new friend how hungry he was we do not know.

Perhaps it was only puss' desire to show her affection for him; but one day she came logging something in her mouth and soon she laid a fine fat pigeon on the knight's feet.

Here was food and just in time to save his life. The jailer was not heartless, and though he dared not buy food for his prisoner, he did not refuse to cook what the knight supplied.

In the course of a little while puss brought another bird. Then one came every day. Sir Henry began to recover and grow strong.

Finally his enemies, learning how miraculously his life had been preserved, granted him a pardon. You can imagine, after this, how grateful the knight was to puss. To show his feeling towards her, the old chronicler says, "Perhaps you will not find his picture anywhere but with a cat beside him."

Rebuked.

"A I in the fava ob the motion as hit an put will signify bit by saying 'Aye!'" said the pompous chairman of a meeting of colored people, and a loud shout of "Aye!" was the response.

"All agin de motion say 'No!'" "No!" came more faintly, but from persons in all parts of the room.

"Hit am carried unanimous-y," the chairman said, sagely.

This declaration was repeated several times when there had been numerous dissentments. At last, an elderly darky rose in a corner of the room and in a stentorian voice addressed the chair:

"Mistah Cheerman."

"Mistah Jackson," said the chairman, recognizing the speaker.

"I rise, sah," said Mr. Jackson, p. n. r. o. u. s. l. y, "to a pint of order. I j. s. 'w. a. n. t. e. d. a. s. k. h. o. w. c. o. m. e. i. t. d. a. t. y. o. u. s. a. y. d. e. q. u. e. s. t. i. o. n. s. h. a. b. b. e. n. v. o. t. e. d. u. n. a. n. i. m. o. u. s. l. y, w. h. e. n. d. e. y. h. a. v. e. b. e. n. v. o. t. e. d. o. n. l. y. b. y. a. m. a. j. o. r. i. t. y, s. a. h.?"

The chairman, rose with great dignity, and said, in a tone of keen rebuke, "Will Mistah Jackson please bar in mind dat 'majority' and 'unanimously' are one an' de same terms, sah? Yes, sah; dey are anonymous an' de same, sah. De pint ob order am not well taken, sah."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will soothe nervous troubles and restore health and vigor once more. The roses will bloom again on those faded cheeks. It is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of prolapsus, weak back, "female weaknesses," anteverision, retroversion, "bearing down," sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation, and ulceration, pain and tenderness, and kindred ailments.

An Ohio lady was so frightened by a snake that her glossy black hair turned white as snow. It was soon returned to its original color by Hall's Hair Renewer.

The Lady

Who has fine hair, and desires to preserve its color, abundance, and lustre, should use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean and cool, and is by far the most exquisite toilet preparation in the market.

B. M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo., says: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."

Mrs. S. A. Rock, of Anderson, Texas, writes: "At the age of 34, in Monroe, La., I had a severe attack of swamp, or malarial, fever. After I got well my hair commenced coming out, and so continued until it had well nigh all gone. I used several kinds of hair restorers, but they did no good. A friend gave me a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Before finishing the first bottle my hair began to grow, and by the time I used three bottles, I had a fine head of hair."

H. Never Struch His Children.

"I have never struck my two children," said a young American father the other day, "though I have often been tempted strongly to it, and sometimes would not have blamed any parent for doing so. But I was thrashed so much by my own father, a good enough man, too, that I always stood in fear of him, and never confided in him. Often I was whipped for errors I had committed with good intentions, and I remembered the wild spirit of hatred that used to come over me at such times, when, smarting under the blows I felt I did not deserve, I would get away by my self and swear silent but bitter oaths that would have opened the old gentleman's eyes to his folly, perhaps, if he could have heard them from so young a child. So I made a vow that I would never beat my own children. And now I feel sure that they do not stand in physical fear of me, I am pretty certain they tell me the truth, and I know they confide in me as a friend. And though they do not obey me nearly as implicitly as I did my father, and make themselves much more of a nuisance to me than I was to him, yet they don't regard me as a bully, and that is something."—New York Tribune.

Dr. Geo. A. Pickles, a very eminent doctor of Malone Bay, N. S., says: "I knew a man on this Bay who has been sick for a long time. All the medicine we tried or could think of did not reach his case. He tried Canadian Bitters and other Patent Medicine, all failed and he was gradually growing worse. At last he tried a bottle of Dr. Norton's Dock Blood Purifier. Imagine my surprise that in less than a week he was much improved in health, and by the time he had finished the second bottle he was a well man. I now have great call at my Drug Store for Dock Blood Purifier which in the case mentioned proved itself far superior to any Bitters or Blood Purifier that I have ever known."
