

Reverence.
When death looks on a child, there is made a great gift, and you parent can only look, and feel, and weep. The place well known amongst the rest is empty; the place at the table empty; their place in your prayers empty; and the face which met you at the door, with all its little joys, and its little sorrows. Bitterness gathers on my heart, and I must stop.

Your little David was lovely and singularly beloved. Do thankful that you had such a child? Do thankful that you had him so long? Do thankful that the Lord did not completely deprive you of him? Do thankful that the Lord did not completely deprive you of him? Do thankful that the Lord did not completely deprive you of him?

Protestant & Evangelical Witness.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1861.

Dialoqy of Romish Priests.

In No. 4 of the series of articles headed "Notes from the Province" published in the Scottish American Journal, the writer, after showing that the French Government by a system of bounties to encourage fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are training up a body of about 30,000 men for their navy, and thus are fortifying St. Pierre contrary to treaty, paving the way for an attempt to regain some of their lost possessions in America, gives the following important but not very satisfactory information:—considering what the parties are to whom he refers, which we think ought to open the eyes of loyal Protestants to the danger of allowing Romish priests to obtain any control directly or indirectly in the management of our governmental affairs:—

"The French Government has long been aware of the position with which it might find itself commencing in the objects which it has at heart in those Provinces. In a political situation the Catholic priesthood cannot in any other way be explained. It is not without a purpose, for instance, that a frigate is placed at the disposal of Bishop Mullock, and a gift from the Government out to that priest by the hands of the Marquis de Montigny, whose diplomatic ability suggests to all who come in contact with him that it is not merely as a naval commander that he is employed and surrounded by other men no less available in the working-out of the policy. I have suggested one of these. The Comte-de-Gobinon, has just issued from Paris, press a volume on Newfoundland and Cape Breton, the contents of which will doubtless be in accordance with these views. They had found an earlier advocate in M. Rameau, whose work on the development of the French race in Canada and Acadia, published the year before last, starting from the assumption of the necessity of colonies to France as an outlet for her population, shows that the best and most available field is to be found in those Provinces, where, according to statistics that are adduced, the race is proved to be increasing in numbers in place of falling off, as had formerly been supposed. The author visited the Province again last summer, and appeared to have no hesitation in communicating his views and applying for information to the priests wherever he went. At Quebec, for instance, the concept of a Cardinal-General was appointed about two years ago—Baron Belloni—who was visited this summer by the Cardinal on the Newfoundland station, leaving his vessel, the Pomone, among the French people at Capre. Nor are more unscrupulous proof wanting of the adroitness of French spies, if we cannot get them down, as the recital of the recital of the Province from British rule. On this point, my authority is a priest who some years ago, when settled among a French population, had inquiries addressed to him regarding the number and condition of the people, the names of their parents, their feelings towards us, and the influence of the Romish clergy. His answer, by M. Rameau, it appears that France has all along been indebted for most of its information relative to the British Provinces, to the friendship of the priesthood, which it still takes every pains to cultivate and retain.

These things may perhaps be considered immaterial if seen separately, but their cumulative bearing amounts to this: that French influence in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the adjoining British possessions has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished. In Lower Canada there is a very considerable amount of local feeling, occurring with this policy of the European Government; and it was only in the last session of the legislature that one of the French members had the impudence to connect with a matter in which a reference to the Quebec Convention threatened an appeal to the Emperor. More Barthelemy wrote a work a few years ago, advocating the recognition of Canada by France, has probably not many open followers; but there can be no doubt he has a large number of silent sympathizers. In the other Province the language and primitive habits are the only traces of French origin that survive; but that is only because of the want of intelligence among the people, who, while they have lost their connection with the European nationality, have not abandoned any of the simple peculiarities of the eighteenth century which were introduced by their ancestors."

Deliverance on the subject of Union.

Of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland.

At Saint Paul's Church, Fredericton, the 6th day of 1861.

Which day the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland, being met and constituted.
I have had the honor to receive a letter from the Rev. William Elliot, Governor of a Committee on Union appointed by the Synod, known as the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, requesting the members of this Synod to take certain papers forwarded along with the said letter, and which were as read.
At the same time I read a letter from a Committee on Union, appointed by the Presbyterian Church of the Lower Provinces, which was also accompanied by a copy of Minutes of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick. Of the last session of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia; and of the first session of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of the Lower Provinces of British North America.

Read also from the said Minutes the basis of Union entered into by the Church in Victoria, by the two

Deliverance on the subject of Union.

Of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland.

At Saint Paul's Church, Fredericton, the 6th day of 1861.

Which day the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland, being met and constituted.

In my first letter I assured you that I intended to have my representative on the most solid of all foundations, viz.—on Scripture. Nearly every book in the Bible furnishes evidence, the most positive, that faithfulness, laboring, to the end, is the will of God, and the will of the man. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land.

Address to Rev. Alex. Munro.

Address.

Rev. and dear Sir:

We the young members of your congregation, wishing to testify our sincere respect for you as a laborer in this portion of the Lord's Vineyard in which you so faithfully discharge duties in the cause of our glorious Redeemer, beg the privilege of presenting you with a testimonial, which, we hope, you will accept as a token of our appreciation, and the same we earnestly desire to be placed in your hands, and that you will be pleased to receive it as a pledge of our affection and respect.

Secular Department.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The B. N. S. Africa, with Liverpool dates to the 21st ult., and Queenston to the 1st inst., was intercepted off Cape Race at half-past 9 on Monday morning.

A detachment from Finland on route for Stockholm demanding separation from Russia, were arrested by Russian authorities.

The Globe announces that the army in Canada is about to be reinforced by twenty-two to twenty-five hundred men.

The Times editorially calls on Government to strain every nerve to develop Cotton cultivation in India and elsewhere; says it believes there will be no lack of labor to assist on the part of the Government if mercantile manufacturers will point out the way.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

Queen Victoria left London for Balmoral.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

Protestant & Evangelical Witness.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1861.

Dialoqy of Romish Priests.

In No. 4 of the series of articles headed "Notes from the Province" published in the Scottish American Journal, the writer, after showing that the French Government by a system of bounties to encourage fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are training up a body of about 30,000 men for their navy, and thus are fortifying St. Pierre contrary to treaty, paving the way for an attempt to regain some of their lost possessions in America, gives the following important but not very satisfactory information:—considering what the parties are to whom he refers, which we think ought to open the eyes of loyal Protestants to the danger of allowing Romish priests to obtain any control directly or indirectly in the management of our governmental affairs:—

"The French Government has long been aware of the position with which it might find itself commencing in the objects which it has at heart in those Provinces. In a political situation the Catholic priesthood cannot in any other way be explained. It is not without a purpose, for instance, that a frigate is placed at the disposal of Bishop Mullock, and a gift from the Government out to that priest by the hands of the Marquis de Montigny, whose diplomatic ability suggests to all who come in contact with him that it is not merely as a naval commander that he is employed and surrounded by other men no less available in the working-out of the policy. I have suggested one of these. The Comte-de-Gobinon, has just issued from Paris, press a volume on Newfoundland and Cape Breton, the contents of which will doubtless be in accordance with these views. They had found an earlier advocate in M. Rameau, whose work on the development of the French race in Canada and Acadia, published the year before last, starting from the assumption of the necessity of colonies to France as an outlet for her population, shows that the best and most available field is to be found in those Provinces, where, according to statistics that are adduced, the race is proved to be increasing in numbers in place of falling off, as had formerly been supposed. The author visited the Province again last summer, and appeared to have no hesitation in communicating his views and applying for information to the priests wherever he went. At Quebec, for instance, the concept of a Cardinal-General was appointed about two years ago—Baron Belloni—who was visited this summer by the Cardinal on the Newfoundland station, leaving his vessel, the Pomone, among the French people at Capre. Nor are more unscrupulous proof wanting of the adroitness of French spies, if we cannot get them down, as the recital of the recital of the Province from British rule. On this point, my authority is a priest who some years ago, when settled among a French population, had inquiries addressed to him regarding the number and condition of the people, the names of their parents, their feelings towards us, and the influence of the Romish clergy. His answer, by M. Rameau, it appears that France has all along been indebted for most of its information relative to the British Provinces, to the friendship of the priesthood, which it still takes every pains to cultivate and retain.

These things may perhaps be considered immaterial if seen separately, but their cumulative bearing amounts to this: that French influence in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the adjoining British possessions has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished. In Lower Canada there is a very considerable amount of local feeling, occurring with this policy of the European Government; and it was only in the last session of the legislature that one of the French members had the impudence to connect with a matter in which a reference to the Quebec Convention threatened an appeal to the Emperor. More Barthelemy wrote a work a few years ago, advocating the recognition of Canada by France, has probably not many open followers; but there can be no doubt he has a large number of silent sympathizers. In the other Province the language and primitive habits are the only traces of French origin that survive; but that is only because of the want of intelligence among the people, who, while they have lost their connection with the European nationality, have not abandoned any of the simple peculiarities of the eighteenth century which were introduced by their ancestors."

Deliverance on the subject of Union.

Of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland.

At Saint Paul's Church, Fredericton, the 6th day of 1861.

Which day the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland, being met and constituted.

In my first letter I assured you that I intended to have my representative on the most solid of all foundations, viz.—on Scripture. Nearly every book in the Bible furnishes evidence, the most positive, that faithfulness, laboring, to the end, is the will of God, and the will of the man. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land.

Address to Rev. Alex. Munro.

Address.

Rev. and dear Sir:

We the young members of your congregation, wishing to testify our sincere respect for you as a laborer in this portion of the Lord's Vineyard in which you so faithfully discharge duties in the cause of our glorious Redeemer, beg the privilege of presenting you with a testimonial, which, we hope, you will accept as a token of our appreciation, and the same we earnestly desire to be placed in your hands, and that you will be pleased to receive it as a pledge of our affection and respect.

Secular Department.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The B. N. S. Africa, with Liverpool dates to the 21st ult., and Queenston to the 1st inst., was intercepted off Cape Race at half-past 9 on Monday morning.

A detachment from Finland on route for Stockholm demanding separation from Russia, were arrested by Russian authorities.

The Globe announces that the army in Canada is about to be reinforced by twenty-two to twenty-five hundred men.

The Times editorially calls on Government to strain every nerve to develop Cotton cultivation in India and elsewhere; says it believes there will be no lack of labor to assist on the part of the Government if mercantile manufacturers will point out the way.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

Queen Victoria left London for Balmoral.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

Protestant & Evangelical Witness.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1861.

Dialoqy of Romish Priests.

In No. 4 of the series of articles headed "Notes from the Province" published in the Scottish American Journal, the writer, after showing that the French Government by a system of bounties to encourage fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are training up a body of about 30,000 men for their navy, and thus are fortifying St. Pierre contrary to treaty, paving the way for an attempt to regain some of their lost possessions in America, gives the following important but not very satisfactory information:—considering what the parties are to whom he refers, which we think ought to open the eyes of loyal Protestants to the danger of allowing Romish priests to obtain any control directly or indirectly in the management of our governmental affairs:—

"The French Government has long been aware of the position with which it might find itself commencing in the objects which it has at heart in those Provinces. In a political situation the Catholic priesthood cannot in any other way be explained. It is not without a purpose, for instance, that a frigate is placed at the disposal of Bishop Mullock, and a gift from the Government out to that priest by the hands of the Marquis de Montigny, whose diplomatic ability suggests to all who come in contact with him that it is not merely as a naval commander that he is employed and surrounded by other men no less available in the working-out of the policy. I have suggested one of these. The Comte-de-Gobinon, has just issued from Paris, press a volume on Newfoundland and Cape Breton, the contents of which will doubtless be in accordance with these views. They had found an earlier advocate in M. Rameau, whose work on the development of the French race in Canada and Acadia, published the year before last, starting from the assumption of the necessity of colonies to France as an outlet for her population, shows that the best and most available field is to be found in those Provinces, where, according to statistics that are adduced, the race is proved to be increasing in numbers in place of falling off, as had formerly been supposed. The author visited the Province again last summer, and appeared to have no hesitation in communicating his views and applying for information to the priests wherever he went. At Quebec, for instance, the concept of a Cardinal-General was appointed about two years ago—Baron Belloni—who was visited this summer by the Cardinal on the Newfoundland station, leaving his vessel, the Pomone, among the French people at Capre. Nor are more unscrupulous proof wanting of the adroitness of French spies, if we cannot get them down, as the recital of the recital of the Province from British rule. On this point, my authority is a priest who some years ago, when settled among a French population, had inquiries addressed to him regarding the number and condition of the people, the names of their parents, their feelings towards us, and the influence of the Romish clergy. His answer, by M. Rameau, it appears that France has all along been indebted for most of its information relative to the British Provinces, to the friendship of the priesthood, which it still takes every pains to cultivate and retain.

These things may perhaps be considered immaterial if seen separately, but their cumulative bearing amounts to this: that French influence in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the adjoining British possessions has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished. In Lower Canada there is a very considerable amount of local feeling, occurring with this policy of the European Government; and it was only in the last session of the legislature that one of the French members had the impudence to connect with a matter in which a reference to the Quebec Convention threatened an appeal to the Emperor. More Barthelemy wrote a work a few years ago, advocating the recognition of Canada by France, has probably not many open followers; but there can be no doubt he has a large number of silent sympathizers. In the other Province the language and primitive habits are the only traces of French origin that survive; but that is only because of the want of intelligence among the people, who, while they have lost their connection with the European nationality, have not abandoned any of the simple peculiarities of the eighteenth century which were introduced by their ancestors."

Deliverance on the subject of Union.

Of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland.

At Saint Paul's Church, Fredericton, the 6th day of 1861.

Which day the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland, being met and constituted.

In my first letter I assured you that I intended to have my representative on the most solid of all foundations, viz.—on Scripture. Nearly every book in the Bible furnishes evidence, the most positive, that faithfulness, laboring, to the end, is the will of God, and the will of the man. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land.

Address to Rev. Alex. Munro.

Address.

Rev. and dear Sir:

We the young members of your congregation, wishing to testify our sincere respect for you as a laborer in this portion of the Lord's Vineyard in which you so faithfully discharge duties in the cause of our glorious Redeemer, beg the privilege of presenting you with a testimonial, which, we hope, you will accept as a token of our appreciation, and the same we earnestly desire to be placed in your hands, and that you will be pleased to receive it as a pledge of our affection and respect.

Secular Department.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The B. N. S. Africa, with Liverpool dates to the 21st ult., and Queenston to the 1st inst., was intercepted off Cape Race at half-past 9 on Monday morning.

A detachment from Finland on route for Stockholm demanding separation from Russia, were arrested by Russian authorities.

The Globe announces that the army in Canada is about to be reinforced by twenty-two to twenty-five hundred men.

The Times editorially calls on Government to strain every nerve to develop Cotton cultivation in India and elsewhere; says it believes there will be no lack of labor to assist on the part of the Government if mercantile manufacturers will point out the way.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

Queen Victoria left London for Balmoral.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law, concludes that the Federal case is henceforth identified with abolition clearly.

Protestant & Evangelical Witness.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1861.

Dialoqy of Romish Priests.

In No. 4 of the series of articles headed "Notes from the Province" published in the Scottish American Journal, the writer, after showing that the French Government by a system of bounties to encourage fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, are training up a body of about 30,000 men for their navy, and thus are fortifying St. Pierre contrary to treaty, paving the way for an attempt to regain some of their lost possessions in America, gives the following important but not very satisfactory information:—considering what the parties are to whom he refers, which we think ought to open the eyes of loyal Protestants to the danger of allowing Romish priests to obtain any control directly or indirectly in the management of our governmental affairs:—

"The French Government has long been aware of the position with which it might find itself commencing in the objects which it has at heart in those Provinces. In a political situation the Catholic priesthood cannot in any other way be explained. It is not without a purpose, for instance, that a frigate is placed at the disposal of Bishop Mullock, and a gift from the Government out to that priest by the hands of the Marquis de Montigny, whose diplomatic ability suggests to all who come in contact with him that it is not merely as a naval commander that he is employed and surrounded by other men no less available in the working-out of the policy. I have suggested one of these. The Comte-de-Gobinon, has just issued from Paris, press a volume on Newfoundland and Cape Breton, the contents of which will doubtless be in accordance with these views. They had found an earlier advocate in M. Rameau, whose work on the development of the French race in Canada and Acadia, published the year before last, starting from the assumption of the necessity of colonies to France as an outlet for her population, shows that the best and most available field is to be found in those Provinces, where, according to statistics that are adduced, the race is proved to be increasing in numbers in place of falling off, as had formerly been supposed. The author visited the Province again last summer, and appeared to have no hesitation in communicating his views and applying for information to the priests wherever he went. At Quebec, for instance, the concept of a Cardinal-General was appointed about two years ago—Baron Belloni—who was visited this summer by the Cardinal on the Newfoundland station, leaving his vessel, the Pomone, among the French people at Capre. Nor are more unscrupulous proof wanting of the adroitness of French spies, if we cannot get them down, as the recital of the recital of the Province from British rule. On this point, my authority is a priest who some years ago, when settled among a French population, had inquiries addressed to him regarding the number and condition of the people, the names of their parents, their feelings towards us, and the influence of the Romish clergy. His answer, by M. Rameau, it appears that France has all along been indebted for most of its information relative to the British Provinces, to the friendship of the priesthood, which it still takes every pains to cultivate and retain.

These things may perhaps be considered immaterial if seen separately, but their cumulative bearing amounts to this: that French influence in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the adjoining British possessions has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished. In Lower Canada there is a very considerable amount of local feeling, occurring with this policy of the European Government; and it was only in the last session of the legislature that one of the French members had the impudence to connect with a matter in which a reference to the Quebec Convention threatened an appeal to the Emperor. More Barthelemy wrote a work a few years ago, advocating the recognition of Canada by France, has probably not many open followers; but there can be no doubt he has a large number of silent sympathizers. In the other Province the language and primitive habits are the only traces of French origin that survive; but that is only because of the want of intelligence among the people, who, while they have lost their connection with the European nationality, have not abandoned any of the simple peculiarities of the eighteenth century which were introduced by their ancestors."

Deliverance on the subject of Union.

Of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland.

At Saint Paul's Church, Fredericton, the 6th day of 1861.

Which day the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, in connection with the Church of Scotland, being met and constituted.

In my first letter I assured you that I intended to have my representative on the most solid of all foundations, viz.—on Scripture. Nearly every book in the Bible furnishes evidence, the most positive, that faithfulness, laboring, to the end, is the will of God, and the will of the man. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land. I shall not rest until the will of God, and the will of the man, shall be united in every heart, and in every land.

Address to Rev. Alex. Munro.

Address.

Rev. and dear Sir:

We the young members of your congregation, wishing to testify our sincere respect for you as a laborer in this portion of the Lord's Vineyard in which you so faithfully discharge duties in the cause of our glorious Redeemer, beg the privilege of presenting you with a testimonial, which, we hope, you will accept as a token of our appreciation, and the same we earnestly desire to be placed in your hands, and that you will be pleased to receive it as a pledge of our affection and respect.

Secular Department.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The B. N. S. Africa, with Liverpool dates to the 21st ult., and Queenston to the 1st inst., was intercepted off Cape Race at half-past 9 on Monday morning.

A detachment from Finland on route for Stockholm demanding separation from Russia, were arrested by Russian authorities.

The Globe announces that the army in Canada is about to be reinforced by twenty-two to twenty-five hundred men.

The Times editorially calls on Government to strain every nerve to develop Cotton cultivation in India and elsewhere; says it believes there will be no lack of labor to assist on the part of the Government if mercantile manufacturers will point out the way.

West Lothian has taken and sunk forty vessels, passing great excitement there.

Queen Victoria left London for Balmoral.

The Daily News on the question of the Fugitive Slave law