Big Meetings Addressed by the Prime Minister at Newcastle and Chatham

Opera House Crowded When the Premier and Other Speakers Visit Here on their Tour of the Provinces--Last Word is a Message of Thanks for a Courteous Hearing and an Unfailing Kindness During Present Campaign.

Newcastle, N. B., Oct. 14.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen closed his Maritime Province campaign with two large meetings at Newcastle and Chatham Friday night. He spoke first at the latter place where approximately a thousand people heard him. Here he dealt briefly with the unemployed problem. Unemployment, said Mr. Meighen, was a world wide state, and Canada's situation was the best of any industrial country in the world. With half of Europe unable to purchase goods, in fact, grappling with starvation, industry in Canada was at a low ebb. It was the policy of the Government to do all in its power to see that men who wanted to work had an opportunity to do so, but it was impossible, even if the money could be dug out of the ground, for the Government to start large public works everywhere in order to combat it. It must receive its primary treatment locally and this local effort would be supplemented by the Government.

As far as disabled or partially disabled soldiers were concerned the Government assumed full responsibility for them and would see that they were carried through the period of hard times.

Says Farewell to

Maritime Provinces

Bidding farewell to the Maritime Provinces the Premier spoke as follows:

This meeting closes a series of nearly fifty in the Maritime Provinces. The feeling with which I leave to begin similar work farther west are feelings of pride and satisfaction. Courtesy and dignity have characterized every audience. Everywhere I have received not only cordiality but an eager interest and an earnest desire to learn the facts. A public man cannot ask for more.

"It is my resolve to keep the level of discussion on a plane of decency and candour and not to be drawn into any contest of misrepresentation, no matter what may be the debased tactics that others adopt. I shall rely upon the electorate to examine this wild and loud platform declamation and to distinguish the truth from gilded fiction. The people of these provinces will sustain the reputation they now enjoy through Canada. The measure of their intelligence is infinitely higher than it is assumed to be by those who are relying upon reckless bluster and the bribery of impossible promises but who are destitute of either case or cause.

"My last word is a message of thanks for a warm and amiable welcome, a fair and courteous hearing, and an unfailing kindness that I cannot ever forget."

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, Minister of Customs and Excise, said the lumbering business in which Newcastle, Chatham, and district were vitally interested would suffer seriously if the tariff bars were let down.

R. B. Hanson, K. C. of Fredericton, also spoke.

The chair at Newcastle, was taken by Mayor Fish, and C. P. Hickey, presided at the meeting in Chatham. The Premier left for Ottawa shortly after midnight.

The Premier said it was the function of Government to see, insofar as possible that those who were willing to work could get work. But was the government to blame for the situation? Unemployment was world-wide and here in Canada we had the least of any industrial country. Conditions were much worse, in Great Britain and the United States. The half of the civilized world could not buy at all. Poverty and starvation were stalking abroad in Europe and there must be something done for the rehabilitation of the countries before the commercial demand from them could be resumed.

Consequently the demand on Canadian industries was not sufficient to keep them working to capacity. It was impossible for the Government to start work all over the country to relieve unemployment. The Government had asked railways to accelerate orders and had promised to stand behind them and assist with capital. But unemployment must be dealt with locally and the government could only assist. Insofar as unemployment affected the returned men who had been partially or wholly disabled the government took upon its own shoulders this responsibility and would provide such assistance as was necessary to relieve the men. Conditions were improving and this winter would be the worst we had to face.

Feeling Reference to Illness of W. S. Loggie

The Premier referred feelingly to the illness of W. S. Loggie, the former member, who, he said, had honored the county of Northumberland by representing it.

He did not need to run away from defending the record of the Government, said Mr. Meighen. Hon. A. K. MacLean now running as Liberal candidate in Halifax, was a member of the Government and must be held responsible for its record. And yet the liberals considered him eligible as one of their standard-bearers in the election.

The Government was being blamed by Liberal speakers for the railway situation which was a legacy from the Laurier Government. Mr. Meighen defended the action of the government in taking over the Canadian National Railways and Grand Trunk system. The Canadian National was now our own system with feeders in the east and west and with a hope of ultimately becoming a paying proposition. Every step in taking over these roads had been ratified by parliament, and the government could be said with no blame. It was true that the Government had loaned money in order to keep the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk from crashing to the ground. Would it have been a good thing to let them fail and compel the people to do without railway service, Mr. Meighen asked.

Mr. Meighen characterized the Liberal criticism that he had seized the reins of power in much the same manner as Lenin and Trotsky as rubbish. When Sir Robert Borden retired he had succeeded him in office. He had done just what had always been done when a Prime Minister was forced to lay down the reins of leadership before serving out his term.

Where the King Liberals Failed

He went on to say that the man who was valuable to the country was he that in a great emergency did all in his power to help. The Liberals had failed in this regard.

Never in the history of the National Railway system was the service as good as it is today, insisted the Premier, reverting to the railways.

Last night in Moncton Mr. Veniot said that I was committed to high protection, said the Premier. He knew I wasn't. What I have always advised and what I stand for now is moderate protection. I intend to pursue a policy of moderate protection, said Mr. Meighen, and I will do so if returned to power.

REPAIRS EFFECTED

Repairs to the Electric Lighting System were effected last Wednesday afternoon and the difference in the light was a noticeable and a most appreciated one.

CELEBRATES HIS 70TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. Chas. Peterson, of Millerton was very pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening when upwards of fifty gathered at his home to tender him congratulations on his 70th birthday.

During the evening which was spent in games and music, Mr. Wm Campbell presented the gifts and Rev. Mr. Matthews read the following address.

Dear Mr. Peterson,

It is with great pleasure that we gather here tonight to congratulate you on the seventieth anniversary of your birth.

Time has dealt kindly with you and left so few traces of the passing of the years that you have attained the three score and ten years of the psalmist.

We wish not only to congratulate you on your birthday but we take this opportunity to hear testimony to your genuine worth, as a citizen of this community. We highly appreciate the fact that you are a staunch supporter of everything that is good in the life of this community. Your thoughtfulness and consideration for others, have also made an impression on our minds and call forth our emulation.

Your genial ways, added to the qualities aforementioned have bound us to you with cords of friendship.

We not only convey our good wishes to you at this time in words but we also bring tangible expressions to seal and confirm our words.

May you long continue to live amongst us and may the Father of us all bless you with health and happiness is the wish of your sincere friends.

Millerton, N. B.
Oct. 15, 1921

A bounteous luncheon was served after the presentation and the friends of Mr. Peterson returned to their homes well pleased with the enjoyable evening spent.

A STILL UNEARTHED IN BARRYVILLE

Frank Barry of Barryville has been arrested, on complaint of Inspector Stewart, charged with operating a still and having liquor in his possession, and has been released on $600 bail. So much trouble has been caused in that locality as the result of cheap booze that the people should not fail to come forward willingly and give evidence in this case when it comes to trial. The still was located in the woods, in a lean to near Barry's house. It is said that the people down there are afraid to testify against poachers and other criminals for fear that their barns will be burned.—World
