The Patriotic Association.

LARGE AND INTERESTING MEETING LAST NIGHT.

The Patriotic Association, which adjourned last week, met again last night to complete its business. The Governor occupied the chair and there was a large attendance. Following the reading of the minutes by the Hon. Secretary, Dr. V. P. Burke, the report of the Cot Fund Committee was presented by Sir William Horwood, C. J. An amendment moved by Mr. John Browning evoked considerable discussion, in which many members took part. It was defeated on a vote taken, and the report was adopted. Sir William further proposed a vote of thanks to Lord Ranfurly for his invaluable services and advice in the administration of the fund on the other side. It was seconded by Sir E. P. Morris and passed by acclamation.

One of the most important reports ever made to the Association was then presented by Hon. P. T. McGrath, being that of the Pensions and Disabilities Board. It stated that after full examination of various schemes it recommended that the Canadian scale and provisions be adopted here. This had already been done in practice, ten per cent. of the payments being retained, however, until the sanction of the Legislature should be obtained. It suggested also, with respect to Naval Reservists, that the Admiralty payments be supplemented by sums sufficient to put sailors on an equal footing with soldiers, and that provision be made to meet exceptional cases. The report dealt with the matter of a convalescent home for sailors and soldiers and suggested the use of a temporary establishment. It stated that the Hon. M. G. Winter had offered to give the building on Military Road, now occupied by sick soldiers, for this purpose. The Jensen Camp for tubercular patients was now in operation and the Government had assumed the cost of maintenance. The questions of re-education and employment of returned men were also under consideration.

Dr. Lloyd seconded the adoption of the report and the Premier stated that the Government would give its unqualified support to the scheme proposed. He did not think that even the reservation of 10 per cent. of the payments in the meantime was necessary. Speaking on behalf of the Opposition, Dr. Lloyd also promised support of the measure.

Mr. W. G. Gosling was glad that the report had dealt with the matter of employment for returned men. He thought a special committee desirable to investigate the needs of the situation. It was not altogether covered by the Pensions Board, for many who are not disabled will yet need assistance. Mr. W. W. Blackall endorsed Mr. Gosling's remarks and considered the duty of re-educating and fitting men for new occupations most necessary and important. In reply, Mr. McGrath cordially welcomed Mr. Gosling's suggestion and thought that the whole special question would be best handled entirely by a separate committee. The demobilization of the forces presented a serious problem for the United Kingdom, and Canada, and we would also have to face it. Transportation alone would be a tremendous problem. Owing to our lack of the necessary machinery, he considered it a good plan if arrangements could be made with the Technical Institute in Halifax for the training of many of our men to fit them for employment, for which our Government would pay. He was glad to note that the anticipated cases of tuberculosis were much fewer than had been expected, and the convalescence question did not promise to be a serious one. Sir Edward stated that there were good grounds for believing the position would be further eased by the retention of many of our sailors in the Navy for defence of our coasts after the war. A great movement in this direction was on foot throughout the Empire, and the whole problem would be treated as an Imperial one. Something similar might quite possibly be done with respect to our soldiers as well, either by transferring to the Navy or by retention in the Army itself. The report of the Pensions Board was then adopted.

A vote of thanks to Hon. M. G. Winter for his donation of the building on Military Road as a Hospital was moved by Mr. Blackall and carried amid applause.

Mr. F. J. Morris, K. C., then submitted a special report of the Recruiting Committee, which was seconded by Mr. R. G. Rendell. The report considered registration inadvisable but advised greater interest and effort in recruiting on the part of prominent individuals. Mr. J. W. Withers, in a vigorous speech, deprecated the recommendation against registration. We did not fully realise our position here. No adequate reason whatever had been advanced why Newfoundland should not follow the lead of Britain, New Zealand and Canada in this matter. He believed the time would come when registration would be necessary: why not take action now? Who gives quickly gives twice. Mr. Gosling warmly supported Mr. Withers. He considered that registration, so far from being resented by the country, would be welcomed, as it had been welcomed elsewhere. It was necessary to help men to make up their minds. He did not think the question was properly left to the Committee but should be considered by the whole Association. Mr. Morris pointed out that this could be done and that the report represented merely the opinion of the committee. The report was then adopted.

Mr. F. H. Steer presented the report of the Aeroplane Committee, which contained communications from the Aerial Boards in England to the effect that the Newfoundland machines, though several times replaced, still bore their name and were doing their share of work. The report was adopted.

Mr. Withers gave notice of a motion to be made at the next meeting dealing with our agriculture and home food supply. Messrs. R. R. Wood, H. Winter, A. Mews, S. O. Steele and W. P. Shortall were elected members of the Association, and the meeting adjourned at 11.15 p.m.

Truckmen's Union.

Ask for Approval of New Tariff.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Will you please allow me through the columns of your widely circulated journal, to thank all employers of labor for the kindness and courtesy shown to the Truckmen's Union in the past, and to hope for a continuation of the same. When the war broke out, the Truckmen made up their minds not to raise the rates of cartage, and have continued so up to the present, though the increase on the cartage of coal was given by the employers themselves and not asked for by the Union. Some other rates have been increased by the firms themselves. Owing to the high rates of living at the present time for both man and beast, we find that we cannot continue to work for the old rates. We have therefore issued the new tariff which we hope will meet the approval of all. I have no doubt there will be some objections, but I believe it will work out all right. Later on, should the time come when the rates of living will go back to normal conditions, the Truckmen will willingly reduce their tariff; but, Mr. Editor, when you take into consideration that we've got to carry shipping bills, pay freight and bring back bills to the owner, doing an office hand's work as well as our own, standing sometimes from one hour to three hours in all weathers waiting to deliver a load, I don't think there is much cause for complaint about the increase in the tariff.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in the past, and hoping the good feeling existing the present time with the employers of labor may continue to grow stronger, I remain, on behalf of the Truckmen's Union.

Yours truly,
J. BARTER,
President T.P.U.

Newfoundlander in United States

Appreciates the Telegram—Sees Hard Work Ahead for the Allies.

Seattle, Wn. U.S.A.,
January 13th, 1917.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—A communication from a Newfoundlander in these days of terrible strife may or may not interest you. However I am taking the liberty of addressing a few lines to you, regarding what I consider the "Common Sense" conduct of your paper, in these trying days, especially in the editorial department.

I have read several copies during the past two years, and have been favorably impressed with your handling of what, at times, were delicate situations. Amongst the number which won my approval was an article written shortly after the big drive on July 1st last, days which I am sure must have been of terrible anxiety to all Newfoundland. You were referring to the boys posted as missing, and expressed the hope that some of them were very likely prisoners in Germany, and if they were, they would be well treated; and you emphasised the fact, that you couldn't express it too strongly, or words to that effect. Without flattering you, I wish to say that when I read that portion of the article, I said there is "A Man"; that kindly reference to the treatment of war prisoners (when so many are always digging up and causing to be published these unpleasant things which tend to harden people towards their enemies) should have won an expression of approval from fair-minded people, and at the same time relieve the terrible strain under which the relatives of all concerned were laboring. This is not intended to be a defense of Germany and her methods in any way, for I am fully conscious of the terrible things they have done, but people should avoid as much as possible the growing tendency of sowing the seeds of hate, which will take years to outlive, even if that hate is partly justified. Another editorial which appealed to me, was one written on Dec. 28th, under the heading of "The War Meantime." Speaking of conditions in Roumania, you said, whatever we may pretend, Germany's conquest of Roumania was the most brilliant in the war. We don't like to admit these things, but facts as stated by you are quite true, and it is a good thing for us to publicly tell ourselves the truth once in a while.

At the beginning of this war, the English people were a good deal like we in America, they were too self confident and had an idea they could kick anyone in short order. The same self-confidence was in evidence during the Boer War. They were going to take a month's shooting trip to South Africa and clean them up, and return. The commanding officer at Cape Town advised the people in power at home what in his opinion should be done, etc. We know that he was sent home for his interference, but we also know that after events proved he was right. For several years prior to his death, Lord Roberts was continually advising the British people to prepare for what was coming, but they only laughed at him; but they are not laughing today. His warnings are only too true, and after practically three years of warfare, they are just about fully prepared to enforce their rights. I wouldn't for a moment wish to say anything that would be offensive to the Allied cause, but I feel assured that had they been prepared, or even half prepared at the start, the war would have been over long ago, and probably wouldn't have started. Self-confidence is a good thing, but it hasn't won any battles in this war. However they are learning their lesson, blunders have been made, and had ones; they have been costly, but they have all helped to make the Allies more fully realize what they are up against. The self-confidence without something to back it up has passed, and changed to a determination to remedy past mistakes and fight as one unit for a successful finish. That's why I wish to join with you, and advise the people, both at home and abroad, to more fully realize that there is hard work ahead. Germany is far from being conquered, although I fully believe that she never again will go forward in France, and that the overrunning of Roumania will finish her advance in that direction. But it is going to take a long time to drive her back to her own borders, and beyond. Any country cut off from the world as she is, which can do what she has done, during the past two years, cannot be lightly reckoned with. She has not been fighting with her back to the wall yet, I think that will probably come her time, and when she does get her back to the wall, I firmly believe she is going to put up an awful fight, so please keep on advising all concerned that it is going to be no cinch, but lots of hard work.

Like a good many more Newfoundlanders in this country, my interest in the war is a personal one. My brother M. B. Collins, No. 913, D Co., Nfld. Regiment, is a Gallipoli veteran, and spent last summer in France. He is now at Ayr, after recuperating from illness contracted after the drive of Oct. 12th. Private Mat Collins, the Military Medal winner, is a first cousin, and another first cousin Albert O'Driscoll, presumably went under on July 1st, being amongst the missing, besides several relatives, and also an old and esteemed friend in a Canadian Regiment. That is why I am doubly interested. I know who is going to win, but I don't know how long it is going to take to accomplish it. That is why I like to read articles like you so often write, and I hope you will continue advising all concerned to get down to business, and look at the serious side of it, and cut out sowing their seeds of hate and saying unkind things about our enemies. The majority of the German common everyday folks are alright, but they have the misfortune of being ruled and controlled by people who are pretty near all wrong, and in these terrible days they have to do as they are told, or take the consequences.

I have been away from Newfoundland for fourteen years, and have been in a good many countries, and have had dealings with peoples from practically every portion of the globe, including the Germans, and I know something about them, and strange as it may seem to you, I really feel sorry for them, when the awful awakening for which they are due will unfold itself before them when this struggle is all over, when they will eventually realize how they were deluded by the powers that be in Germany.

In conclusion I wish to extend to you my best wishes for this year, and to everyone connected with the cause. With the exception of Roumania, things look very favorable for the coming campaign, let us hope that this year will be a step towards the end of this terrible conflict and a success in every sense of the word for the cause for which the Allies are fighting for.

Yours sincerely,
D. A. COLLINS,
(Formerly of Placentia.)

Coastal Ships Meet Terrible Weather

Heavy gales, accompanied by intense frost, were encountered on the North and South Coasts within the past week or so. Yesterday afternoon Capt. J. Kean, of the Portia, sent a message to Bowring Bros., from Channel to the effect that he experienced the stormiest trip since he joined the coastal service.

Capt. A. Kean, of the S. S. Prospero, wired: "Arrived at Nipper's Harbour; south side of White Bay filled with ice, and could not call at ports yesterday. Intensely cold, glass registered 30 below zero." The Prospero is coming south, due to arrive here to-morrow night.

The Portia is also on the return run and should reach here about Tuesday next.
