The line alone—is the thing in Paris just now. All the changes in color and material and the trimming can be as one likes, but the line must be set. Nothing must be "set" or "made" by some means, he is the effect of gracious carelessness. One way of achieving this is to discard all button and to place in stereoscopic effect the skirt, for instance, as Madame trips her way through the streets—loosely, and then "clutched" in a large loop which takes the line of the hand. Having visualized the mode exactly expressed, she will mentally notice that the changes in color, likewise the changes in material, appear. Well, the fashion!

which is instrumental in the clinging line which is the grace of the straight effect. It is the "clutching" for a departure from the "set" style.

the maroon gown has the apron continued as an apron, of course, becomes the front of the skirt, and is secured at the back with a large and wide band of self-material. It is a part of the original, from behind, the apron-effect, for the underskirt, trimmed with wide bands of a contrasting color, is there seen as the skirt, and is also to be discerned in the semi-transparent "apron."

the features are features of our attire, walking, standing, sitting, rendered attractive and graceful in appearance. Here, the "clutch mode" is resorted to in this instance the hitchup of the skirt in the front instead of the side.

to be noted that promenade skirts are much shorter than those worn at home, and some are saying that the thin end of the wedge will be taken advantage of by those who are ill-content to hide their legs, and doors or anywhere else, in the "clutch mode" their figures are in the most attractive manner, they secure their culture and keep in place with a vivid and wide ribbon.

the hats and jumpers are now being equipped with pockets, which ideas being now in vogue. These pockets need not be a detriment, but may be suspended so that the material is required. The pockets are usually made of the same material as the garment itself, prettily lined with narrow fur. Pockets at the waist are hung from the belt, and are even convenient for a shopping expedition. The pockets are displayed in the most attractive manner. Some effects are often incorporated, and colour designs are used. The jersey, it might be said, is a prominent feature of the attire.

Health and Beauty

your face a "spring clean" early, and is very necessary. The winter plays havoc with complexion, and few realize how premature age may be advanced by a fresh youthful appearance, by setting right the complexion gone wrong during the trials of autumn and winter.

transparency and purity of the skin can be maintained by a treatment and a little sacrifice. It is necessary to stay in the sun a couple of days whilst four or five hot face-baths are indulged in.

Predicts Prosperity for Emerald Isle

LONDON, Feb. 5.—An era of prosperity for Ireland is drawing, says Richard D. Trotter, head of the Provincial Bank of Ireland, and further, Irish bankers are ready to stand behind the Free State in its policy for the complete reconstruction of Ireland.

In speaking recently before a meeting of London bankers, Mr. Trotter said: "The gratifying response to the issue of the Irish Free State Loan has supplied a most encouraging evidence of a growing spirit of confidence in the stability of the Free State and its government, and that feeling will be carried further when due importance is attached to the assurances of the president and his responsible ministers of their intention effectively to regulate state expenditure and income, until the national budget is balanced."

Mr. Trotter added that the government has shown itself strong, firm and sympathetic, with the result that the majority of the people were with it, and most citizens respected the law.

Skis Help Hungry Germans Smuggle Food Over Border

BRESLAU, Silesia, Feb. 3.—Almost everybody on this side of the Czechoslovakian frontier this winter is devoted to sking. Skis never before were in such demand, and the call for them increased as the cost of food in Germany went up.

Parties of skiers leave every morning for the wild mountain passes leading toward Czechoslovakia, and come back before nightfall with knapsacks full of sausage and cheese, fresh meat and canned goods.

Over the hills, on the other side, runs the explanation, things to eat and drink cost less than half what they do in Germany, for in the mountain passes the snow lies too deep for the Czech customs officials to prevent smuggling.

"T Ham"—Mr. Kingston tells a story of Sir Edward Carson, who, when a gorgeously-arrayed person confronted him from the witness-box, and in reply to the question if he was a commercial traveller, said with proud emphasis, "I am," congratulated him with the sarcastic remark, "Then, sir, you are the best dressed ham I have ever seen."

All Set for To-Night's Amateur Contest

WHICH FORMS PART OF PROGRAMME AT THE CRESCENT.

Everything is all set for to-night's big Amateur Contest which takes place in the Crescent Theatre. This is an event of the week that is eagerly looked forward to by patrons of this most popular amusement resort, and to-night's contest will in all probability excel all previous affairs. New names have been sent in and a lively time is anticipated. We wish also to call attention to the fact that for the special benefit of the little ones, a special contest will take place to-morrow, Saturday afternoon. Send the children to enjoy a real entertainment.

The picture to-night is that famous story, "Your Best Friend," starring Vera Gordon.

"Your Best Friend" tells the story of a widow who is transported from a modest home to a rich one. In her rich environment she sees her daughter-in-law richly spending her money, in addition to that furnished by her faithful and unsuspecting son. Even when the widow attempts to affectionately embrace her little niece she is stopped by her snobbish daughter-in-law. These incidents and numerous others bring about a wealth of emotional scenes capably and effectively acted by Miss Gordon.

Spain Prepared

Spain will sign the agreement arrived at in Paris on December 15, definitely fixing the future status of Tangier. This announcement was made in an official communication issued to Madrid saying that Spanish plenipotentiaries were leaving immediately for Paris to add their signatures to the agreement. France and Great Britain already have signed it.

The note says that Spain has withdrawn her petition for more favorable treatment under the agreement that the slight modification already granted by France and Great Britain, while not entirely satisfactory, at least improves Spain's status in Tangier.

The internationalization of Tangier is accepted by Spain as a good sign of the cordial relations existing between Spain and Great Britain and France. The note says further that Spain is anxious to collaborate with France and Great Britain in the work for peace.
