Deal With G. T. R. Be Not Many Permanent Roadways To Closed at Once, Work May Stand for a Year.

There was some talk round the city hall today of a meeting of the railway committee at once to settle the deal with the Grand Trunk Railway Com-

The plans have been before the people for a month now, and have been scussed freely in the papers, and at the meetings of the committee. No new complaints are being lodged it the city hall against the company's plans being carried out, and it is felt that in order to have the work even commenced this year the city should close up the negotiations at once.

"If the city does not get down to business without delay," said a promment citizen to The Advertiser today, "It will not be possible for the company to commence work on any part the plans this year.

"If the negotiations are prolonged, will mean that the railway will not be able to complete any one part of its plans before the snow flies, and, of course, the work will be simply delayed nother year."

It is understood that there is no posbilly of the depot being built this rear. It is the intention to proceed with the improving of the grades first. The first section the men will be set to work at will be beween Adelaide and Clarence streets. The second section will be between Hyde Park and the terest. coves, and then the work between Clarence street and the coves will be railway the property owners have a tion on the subject, however.

Talbot street, from King to York-Vitrified brick. York street, Talbot to the bridge-Vitrified brick.

King street, Maitland to Wellington -Kentucky rock asphalt macadam. In addition to these pavements, the Warren Company has the contract for a pavement to be laid from the C. P. R. to Oxford street, on Richmond, and also on the same street from Horton street to the G. T. R. tracks.

The Barber Company also have the contract for an asphalt pavement from the corner of Lyle to Queen's Park on Dundas street.

The City's proportion of all these pavements will be very large, as the city pays for the whole of the street intersections, the property owners inpremises, and extending to the center of the street, is paid for. The total cost includes the sinking fund and in-

City Engineer Graydon and Assistant Engineer Kirkpatrick have completed the inspection of the London and Port gave out the statement that the time Stanley Railway, and the report will be shortly laid before the London and Port Stanley Railway board.

The roadbed was found in excellent condition, as were also the buildings. Mr. Graydon says that the bridges are, with the exception of the one which spans the Thames, in this city, all in first-class condition, and fit for any class of traffic.

Something will, however, have to be done with the city bridge. It was always a light structure, and it is now over a quarter of a century old. It is said that in the past it was not painted as frequently as it should have been, with the result that today it is badly rusted in many parts.

The Pere Marquette has been unable to run its heavy locomotives over it, and the company has thus been very severely handicapped in its hauling of coal. It was rumored around the city hall
