AUGUST BUSY MAN'S.

The August issue of Busy Man's Magazine is an educational number. The rapidly passing mid-summer vacation reminds parent and child, teacher and taught, that school days are again not far off. There are bright, sunny, special articles on the great subject of education, among them, being 'Life in Residential Schools', 'In Advance of the Pullman', 'What Canada's Public Men Read', and 'The Necessity of a Business Training'. Other clever and interesting contributions are 'When an Emperor Ruled in Canada', 'The Rival Rain-Makers of the Yukon', and 'The Light Side of Finance'. There are half-a-dozen catchy and captivating novelettes. The August edition of Busy Man's is a superbly illustrated treat to cover and is undoubtedly the best warm weather copy yet produced.

A STREET PARADE.

What would a circus be without its parade? It has been proven time and again that the American people will not tolerate any entertainment in the big spectacles under the white tents and neither will they patronize a circus unless it gives a free street display. There are many shows that would gladly eliminate this expensive feature if they dared, but Norris shows have never so much as considered the notion of omitting this always attractive feature. The present year's street parade is said to be on the grandest scale that has ever been attempted. The costumes of the boys and gentlemen riders; the glittering trappings on animals and wagons; the artistically carved band chariots; the tableaux floats and the paintings on the many open dens and cages will be more gorgeous than ever. In the parade will also be seen some features which they have never been able to show before. The first is the finest of baby camels and the cutest of cub lions, which are sure to interest the children as well as their elders. Other features will be the wild beast display in the many open dens and cages; elephants, llamas, camels, dromedaries, shetland ponies, etc. heavy draft stock and the beautiful thoroughbred racing stock will march in stately procession. Flowers will enliven the line of march and there will be enough music to make the parade inspiring.
