

sequently took care of him, attended to him and poured water upon his burning wounds until "all the daughters of music were brought low."

"Naughty Night" also boasts of another Freshman,—but before proceeding with the operation we would ask if the reader's heart is strong,—a Freshman who is so enamoured of his bones that he attends not only all his own grinds, but everybody else's!

Voice at telephone: "Hello! is that Mr. Campbell of the Third Year?"

"Yes."

"It's the Star Theatre speaking. Are you going to the dance to-night, dear?"

"Yes."

"Have you got tickets?"

"Yes."

"You dear boy! What time will you call for me?"

"Hello!"

"Hello! What's the matter?"

"Nothing, except I think you have the wrong Mr. Campbell. There happens to be two of us in the same Year. Ta-ta. I'll tell him. Good bye, Star."

At the dispensary the other day a lady physician was attending to a poor woman and assured her that she was really very ill. The reply came immediately, in frightened tones, "Don't you think I'd better go to a real doctor, then, at once?"

We regret that Dr. Fred. Starr could not let us have any jokes for Varsity this week, but for some strange reason or other he did not consider any of this week's crop "suitable for Varsity." We are sorry, as some of them were exceptionally good ones. However, we must submit to the Doctor's great modesty and doubtless to a very natural desire on his part to keep some of his jokes for future clinics.
