C. S. LeMesurier, Esq.,
Faculty of Law,
McGill University.

My dear Mr. LeMesurier:-

With reference to our conversation yesterday let me direct your attention to Page 62, Paragraph H. of the Statutes and Rules of the University.

It seems to me that you are quite right in asking the student to absent himself from your classes and I trust that by now you have reported the matter to the Dean. I think that he has power to suspend the student until the next meeting of the Faculty, which should be held not more than one month later. The Faculty may confirm the suspension, but if such period lasts more than a month the matter must be referred to Corporation. As this is a case of impertinence I should think the student should be restored, providing he makes ample apology, and the matter need go no further.

Yours faithfully,

Principal.
