Schubert Choir Closes Season With Triumph

Last night's Schubert Choir performance was such an advance on Monday night's that some reason seemed to be necessary to explain it. Perhaps it was the weather, or perhaps perhaps merely the unaccountable phenomenon of an "off-color" night, but it was particularly gratifying to hear the chorus sing up to the form and spirit they displayed last year in Rochester. The program was a most the confidence of a second night, or Pochester The program was a attractive one, and much enthusi-asm was evinced during the singing of Schubert's "Vocal Dances," the ap-plause breaking in during the suite and increasing at the close to a fine hearty and well-deserved tribute. The excellent enunciation of the choir was notable in the first set. The counter singing of the third set was one of the best things Mr. Fletcher's choir has achieved and was a treat to hear. In the fourth, which was sweetly and gracefully sung, the legato effect was nost charming, while the bright and spirited outburst of the sopranos was well-accented and richly vocalized. The same wealth of tone distinguished 'The Black Monk' distributed thruout the parts, and Kahn's "Song of repeated from last year, afforded an opportunity for a fine burst of power from the well-balanced

In "Thou Alone," by E. Lassen, the choir for perhaps the first time came into direct competition with the Mendelssohn Choir, which sang the piece last year. The palm would have to be awarded on subtle distinctions of refinement of tone and cultured enunciation, which have to be regarded when actual vocalism and tone quality approach a level. The chorus was beautifully sung last night and we must leave it to Sir Edmund Walker and Prof. Ramsay Wright to say

The proper action of the nerves, important to the well-being of the heart, hepends entirely upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind, it is bound to produce heart derangement.

In Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is combined a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders, as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many

The piece was warmly encored and repeated to the delight of the audience. Mr. Whitney's only other appearance was to sing the recitative in Bach's cantata, "A Stronghold Sure," which is an arrangement of Luther's chorale, "Ein Feste Burg," which he did with reverent power. The chorus has heavy, solid work thruou the cantata, the massive organ-like effect requiring the utmost dynamic effect. In the first number so much is required that no resources are left for any additional climax at the close, and there was some sense of strain against the heavy orchestration. The final chorale is much the most pleas-ing portion of the work and was given with strength and dignity.

in the cantata, but made up to the audience in generosity of encores and by adding the "Call of the Valkyrie" to the program. The versatility of Madam Nordica was thoroly exemplified by her program, which opened with the wistful tenderness of Roger Quiller's setting of Tennyson's passionate lyric, "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal." From this perfection of art she turned to Mrs. Beach's song to Browning's words, "Ah, Love, But a Day," and the dramatic intensity and emotion of "Ah, love, look in my eyes; wilt thou change too?" touched the heart. Instead of Handel's "Care Selve" she repeated Stange's "Damon" of the previous evening with its roulades and graces. Richard Strauss' wonderful serenade, "Awake, Arise," followed, and the encore that followed was rewarded with "Awake, Arise," followed, and the encore that followed was rewarded with Debussy's "Mandoline." A further suite included Paul Vidal's "Ariette." "Were I a sumbeam," sung in French; Leoncavalio's "Mattinata," with its florid vocalization, Grieg's sweet and tender "Im Kahn" and Schubert's "Erl-King," sung with extraordinary dramatic force. For an encore she repeated Cadman's lovely Indian melody. "From the Land of Skyblue Water," The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, under Frank Welsman, contributed two numbers. The first was Saint-Saeh's grotesquerie, the "Danse Macabre," given a way that showed the expanding consciousness of the orchestra in corporate expression, and the expanding consciousness of the orchestra in corporate expression, and the exquisite overture to 'Le Carnaval Romain,' by Berlioz, in which the delicious reed passages were perfectly done, while the final carnival riot brought down the house. An encore brought Lacombe's "Aubad Printiniere," dainty as a choir of birds and perfectly rendered.

After the splendid audience had dis-persed Madam Nordica sang several songs to the choir, with which she had established the friendliest relations. established the friendliest relations. The great singer is most amiable and kind-hearted, and a general favorite.

Travers' Reversal of Form.

Yesterday's session was indeed dramatic as regards the testimony of Travers. Opening in the morning with the direct examination by Mr. Corley. Travers seemed hesitant and uneasy. He would say nothing with assurance, and, indeed, it seemed as the his trip to Kingston had broken his nerves. Then, in the hands of Mr. Wilson crossexamining on behalf of Mr. Warren, he followed meekly, answering quickly and directly upon the line of question. At the opening of the afternoon session a change was noticed. He began to answer less readily and asserted more of his former spirit of determination to give his answers in his own ple of the Maritime Provinces had been trying to coax the residents of this part of Canada to buy their fish, but with little success. with little success.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hall for Mr. Stratton, he said that the transaction in itself was quite legitimate. It was the subsequent use of the money which he regarded as illegal. He did not think that Mr. Stratton was connected with the Farmers' Bank. He thought that whoever had made the advance had got the commission.

In Travers' evidence, both in chief and upon cross-examination, he was taken over the repayment to the trust company of the $80,000 loan from the trust company to the bank. He explained that three cheques were drawn to the credit of Mitchell & Co., who were named by Mr. Warren, and that the money had been chequed out from those brokers to the trust company. This was done because he did not want it to appear to the other banks that he had secured the loan.

He also explained over again how the money had been returned to the trust company when the loan was reinstituted, and the money which had paid it turned and the money which had paid it turned and the money which had paid it turned the money had been shown to Secretary Knight and been secured.

The northern part of the province, he said, had a larger area than old Ontario, and the time was not far distant when New Ontario would be gridironed with railroads.

Likewise was the response to the toast delivered by Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of mines and crown lands, a stirring eulogy on the great-ness of the north and the wonderful resources which, when developed, will contribute in no small measure to the wealth of the nation.
