the three-act comedy which the Toronto Press Club will present at the Princess Theatre for two nights next Princess Theatre for two nights next week, is full of the brilliant humor and charming repartee which distinguish English plays from the slangy American-made product. It is styled "a trivial comedy for serious people," and no better title could be applied. A double love affair, which is carefully guided thru many highly diverting complications, is the foundation for three acts of entertaining satire, with well-known English society types as charplications, is the foundation for three acts of entertaining satire, with well-known English society types as characters. The scenic settings are being prepared especially for this production and several stage pictures of richly-harmonized coloring will be seen.

The first act is laid in luxuriously furnished bachelor quarters in Half-Moon-street, London. The second act is in the garden of an English manor house and the concluding one is in the morning room of the same house shown in the preceding act.

"Gringoire, The Ballad-Monger," a one-act play from the French, which will be given as a curtain-raiser, is a romance of the days of Louis XI. Gringoire himself was a wandering poet and singer, who was one of the most picturesque characters in French history. Thru strange fortune he is brought face to face with the king, who condemns him to death for his seditious verses and songs. True to his reputation, however, the senile monarch gives him one chance for his life. If he can win the love of a beautiful girl that he has dared to admire only in his dreams he may live. Unknown to girl that he has dared to admire only in his dreams he may live. Unknown to the king. Gringoire or any of them, this girl has admired the poor verse-maker in secret and when she is brought face to face with him, his pitiful plight touches her heart. She acents him and he is saved.

Both of these pieces will be given in a double bill at the Princess Theatre next Friday and Saturday nights. The plan opens at the box office on Mon-

Louis Hartman, a clever Hebrew im-personator, will be seen at the Ma-jestic all next week in his famous story of New York east side life, "The Pedlar." The story priefly has to do with the pedlar's son, who has become in-fatuated with a man who deserts the gar blat tillian, in a venue husband and drags the boy down the road to ruin by throwing him in contact with a band of crocks who inhabit the east side tenements for thieves. He is caught in the act of robbing his father's store, but in spite of this the father's love prefivails, and the pedlar saves his son from prison, The play is one of the strongest com-edy dramas, presenting Hebrew character, and is given a handsome stage setting, with a splendid cast. The en-gagement at the Majestic opens with a matinee Monday and during the week matinees will be given each day.

Persons who have read "Widowers" Houses," which comes to the Princess next week, will recall the fact that it deals with what Mr. Shaw succinctly describes as "middle class respectabil ity and younger son gentility fattening on the poverty of the slums." Mr. Sar torious, the owner of much tenement property in London, piles up his profits by letting out the property to the poorest class of tenants, positively ignoring all demands for improvements the the condition of the houses is a menace to the life and health of the inhabitants. He himself is very careful to live in a neighborhood where the death rate is low.

Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill will be headed by Ethel Arden, George Abel and Company, newcomers in vaudeville, presenting a very clever sketch entitled "Three of a Kind," an elaborated version of "Mistaken Identity," with bright and catchy lines and funny situations, George Abel's clever inter-pretation being worthy of special com-

O'Day is a musical comedienne and has many friends in Toronto. She is versatile and has won distinction on versatile and has won distinction on the dramatic stage as well as in her dainty musical act. The Flood Bro-thers are acrobatic merrymakers and Ford and Swor are jesters who tell new stories and sing clever parodies. The bill closes with the kinetograph showing a full line of new pictures. Perhaps on the principle that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," or, by paraphrase, that a well-tried comedy success will beat almost any pair of present-day attempts at farce comedy, the world-wide, success ful play, "Charley's Aunt," will play a return and a farewell engagement in this city at the Grand, Opera House dolls, who represent many of the famous men and women of the day.

Bowers, Walters and Bowers call themselves the Three Rubes and their acrobatic comedy antics are a welcome addition to any bill. C. Grand Gardner and Marie Stoddard are newcomers at Shea's; their vaudeville frivoitties are merry and tuneful and their dances are both graceful and agile.

Ada O'Day is also on the bill. Miss.

Wednesday and Saturday, with Etienne Girardot and his supporting company of English players, under the direction of Wilfrid North. That the public has taken the comedy in such high favor is not remarkable, for the cogent reason that it is vastly entertaining. From the rise to the fall of the curtain it keeps audiences laughing. Nor is the incessant merriment caused by buffoonery. The play possesses a motive, a central idea, which is constitute, a central idea, which is constituted. sical service in the Metropolitan be seen a large photograph of the choir as it was in 1874, which Dr. Torrington organized upon his coming here. This choir he has maintained at its full strength from that date up to the time of his retirement from the church. Most of the leading professional singers of Toronto from 1873 up to the present time, may be noticed in the above photograph or in photos taken at different times up to the present, many of whom were trained by Dr. Torrington himself. The different photographs prove that Dr. Torrington possesses the power of drawing and holding together one of the ing and holding together one of the most effective church choirs in existence, and that, so far as the Metropolitan Church goes, and no matter what the varying fortunes of the church may have been, financially or otherwise, Dr. Torrington's, choir has been an object lesson to the whole of

been an object lesson to the whole of Canada.

That the work done during the period alluded to drew around him the best quality of singers, professional and voluntary, the records during the whole of that period prove. Letters of approval and of benefit derived from experience gained under Dr. Torrington's direction, are in abundant evidence, and those who attended the testimonial concert given by the church on Tuesday evening last could see that the sympathy of the solo singers of Toronto, the choir of 96 members present, and the enthusiastic plaudits of the audience were proof positive that Dr. Torrington is able to continue his work as efficiently and as decisively as ever, and which he will no doubt do for many years to come, notwithstanding the false reports which have emanated from certain quarters. As leaven service in the consedderation for several months, is emanated from certain quarters. As in 1874, and at every service in the church since, the choir, who are with Dr. Torrington in his desire to present Dr. Torrington in his desire to present church music pure and simple on the line of true sacred church service, will be in evidence at his last service on
