CURED HIS

Jack Roberts, Dan Graham and City Foreman Burke obtained a boat owned by City Engineer Ferguson, and after dragging the lake all day her body was discovered not far from the shore tonight.

The deceased, who was in her 24th year, had been suffering from nervous depression and this is believed to have been responsible for her rash act. She was missed by her husband when he returned to the house, after attending to the cattle at the barn.

The coat and hat which he identified gave rise to a suspicion, but the matter was kept quiet throughout the day while the searching party were at work. Her husband was completely overcome with grief.

The coroner was out of the city tonight, but it is not likely that an inquest will be held. The body is now at Tower's undertaking parlors.
