

as some of the sister congregations, probably because very little attention has been called to it. Fellow teachers ! let us hold on to our work, nor grow weary in well doing. How necessary in those days of much error and abounding iniquity to be diligent ! Diligence will bring its own reward ; it will, through God's grace, bless others, and it will bless us. As has been well said, it is the best remedy for doubts and fears. It is certainly the best preservative against backsliding and temptation to evil.

WM. KERR, Superintendent.

SEATON STREET SCHOOL.

This school has not been opened more than eight or ten weeks. The excellent Superintendent, Mr. D. McGee, reports twenty-three upon the roll, chiefly children of the congregation, and most of them in regular attendance. The school meets, in the meantime, near the corner of Beech and Seaton Streets. It has been supplied with a small but well selected library, and with all other appliances necessary to its efficiency. It is not doubted that by the close of another year it will be able to report a greatly increased attendance, and it is hoped, though the field at present is not wide, that in the course of years it will grow into an organized congregation. The school has been much helped by a seasonable donation, to which reference is made in another report.
