

SLAIN GANGSTER FOUND IN AUTO NEAR BROADWAY

Body Slumped in Car With Two Bullet Wounds
in Breast

NEW YORK, June 22.—Traffic Police Officer O'Connell was standing near 138th street near Broadway at 1 p. m. and had just raised his hand to signal north-bound traffic to stop, when Albert Danning, who lives at 10 West 10th street, tapped him on the shoulder.

"Officer," Danning said, "there's a drunk lying in a machine down the street. I've yelled in his ear, I've shook him, I've done everything, but he won't wake up."

"I'll soon move him," said O'Connell. At that moment a patrolman off duty crossed the street. O'Connell called him to direct traffic for a few minutes, and then followed Danning. O'Connell found the head of a man trailing on the rear seat of the car, the body slumped down on the floor. O'Connell lifted the body up and saw two bullet wounds in the breast, one over the heart. The man was dead.

NEIGHBOR HEARS SHOOTING.
About six hours before O'Connell reported Danning's discovery to the West 182nd street police station, the operator at headquarters received a telephone call from Ralph Hicks, who lives at 142 Manhattan avenue.

"I heard a pistol shot a few minutes ago," Hicks said, "and then I saw several men carry a body out to an automobile, which drove off."

IDENTIFIED AS EX-CONVICT.

The man, who wore a light brown suit of good quality, had black, curly hair and weighed about 135 pounds. The police found $10.70, a white gold chain, a Turkish coin and a cigar cutter in his pocket. Fingerprint records revealed, according to the police, that the man was Charles Caffery, alias "Burke," a gangster and ex-convict. Caffery, who was 25 years old, had been arrested frequently, according to the record, for felonious assault, burglary and robbery. He made the neighborhood of Manhattan avenue one of his haunts, the police said.

The car, according to the police, had been stolen from Max Hart, of 89 West 119th street, last March.

FREAK JEWELRY IS LATEST IN LONDON

Barbaric and Massed Gems to Replace Simple Adornments
Recently Worn

LONDON, June 22.—A revival of the fashion for wearing barbaric and massed jewelry is in evidence, but in the morning and afternoon, is promised for the summer.

This is a reaction against the custom of the last three seasons, when a single pearl necklace, one diamond ring, or a solitary diamond chain was considered chic.

Bracelets are in and a half wide, made of massed square and "Baguette" shaped diamonds, alternating with square emeralds, are to be worn with hair-modes and luncheon frocks.

At a leading London jeweller's establishment it was stated that the favorite stones for this season are emeralds and diamonds. These are the most expensive stones, and they must be worn square-cut, which makes them still more expensive, as there is much wastage of the stone in cutting.

Faceted crystal, cut to resemble diamonds, curved emeralds, Japanese coral, and rose-pink pearls of the fashionable "nude" link are fashions in jewelry. All bracelets and clasps are flexible, and in many cases the massive bracelet can be used in the evening as a bangle.

Earrings are made in Chinese designs of jade, coral, and platinum, and have a story design on them, a different one on each earring.

Mental Lapse Frees
Kansas Gridiron Star

NEW YORK, June 22.—Alexander Riley Hodges, Jr., former University of Kansas football star, escaped a prison term when Judge Allen, in General Sessions, suspended sentence on him for holding up Fischer's restaurant, of Columbus circle, on April 20, during a momentary psychological breakdown.

Judge Allen, in suspending sentence, said he could follow to other courts after hearing the recital of how Hodges had worked his way through both high school and college, had landed here without funds or a job and had committed the hold-up in a moment of hunger-mad panic.

Girl Detectives
Prove Successful

LONDON, June 22.—Miss Sherlock Holmes has made good. Young women detectives are proving their worth every day of the week to the great London shops that are employing them in increasing numbers against the ubiquitous shoplifter.

Sometimes the role of the girl detective is that of an ordinary shop assistant, and she is able to play the part so well that customers seek her out to attend to their requirements. She is just as much at home, however, in the role of the fashionable shopper. No one challenges her as she shops. From one department to another, occasionally stopping to have a short conversation with one of the assistants while she scans the crowd.

London Bride Will Wear Medici Veil

LONDON, June 22.—Miss Dina Hilton, of Long Island, N. Y., who is to be married in London next month to Harry R. Lindsay, of Detroit, will wear a veil of exquisite Medici lace with her bridal frock.

Miss Hilton and her mother have been traveling in Europe for the past two months and succeeded in discovering a beautiful specimen piece of lace work that was made for Catherine Medici over 400 years ago. The lace is perfectly preserved and is of a deep ivory color.

LARGEST LACE CURTAIN MADE

One of the lace manufacturing mills in England has turned out in one piece a lace curtain 150 feet long and fifty feet wide. It is said to be the largest single piece of lace ever turned out in any of the factories throughout the world.

THE CAMPBELLS ARE BUILDING

Fisherman Lands Rabbit; Arrested Two Days Later

Victim of Circumstance Is Accused of Hunting
Out of Season

LONDON, June 22.—A tiresome misadventure recently befell an enthusiastic fisherman. He had gone to the heart of the country and was sitting peacefully engaged in his favorite sport, not in the least troubled, as is the way with the fisherman, by the fact that he had caught nothing, when he suddenly felt a tug at the line and discovered that he had hooked a rabbit.

It had been started by his dog which was playing about in a neighboring field, had been chased to the edge of the river, which it had entered in its fright, and swam on to the fisherman's hook.

SO far the affair had been rather an amusing comedy, but shortly a policeman came along. The unfortunate fisherman was questioned, and a day or so later was charged before the magistrate on a charge of having hunted during the prohibited season. One thing at any rate should console him. He will have for the rest of his life a really original fishing story to tell to his friends.

SOCIAL SEASON IS EXTENDED BY STRIKE

August Expected to See Two Royal Garden Parties at Buckingham

LONDON, June 22.—It is now regarded as official that the London season will be extended until the end of August this year—and that King George and Queen Mary will probably bring the Court back to Buckingham Palace for a few weeks' stay after Cowes week, the first week in August.

This is a move which London society has been hoping would take place for several seasons past, and its fulfillment is indirectly due to the eight-day general strike, which delayed the opening of the London season by about two weeks.

The extension of the season by another month will permit of less dash-abouting of important functions, and it is possible that August will see at least two Royal Garden Parties at Buckingham Palace—functions which are always popular.

N.S. YOUTH DROWNED

Body of Wedgeport Lad, Missing Since Last Tuesday, Found

YARMOUTH, N.S., June 21.—A tragic affair was revealed at Wedgeport, N.S., yesterday afternoon, when the body of Laurent Doucette was found drowned near the end of the Long wharf at that place. That was the last seen of him by his family alive and so far as his parents were aware he was at that island all of last week. On Saturday they learned that their son had never reached there and immediately a search was instituted. It was continued on Sunday and finally the lad was found as stated.

Steel from the United States will be used in the $500,000 five-story government building at Cali, Colombia.
