SURPRISING RESULTS OF STATISTICS One-fourth of New York City's Wage-earners Are Women AVERAGE YEARLY $250

An Old Story Stirred Up—Raising Funds to Help Forer Stage Favorite—How Fortunes Dwindle—Emigration Matters

Special Correspondence of The Times-Star New York, Sept. 22.—Some surprising statistics respecting the capacity of wage-earning women in this city have been gathered by the Committee on Women's Work of the Sage Foundation established by Mrs. Russell Sage.

Where these wage-earners are able to cooperate with other members of their family who are working, Miss Van Kleef says they can take out a semi-comfortable existence on plain food and plain clothes.

From these figures it is argued that the average working girl in New York with a restricted earning capacity has little chance of ascending from the inferior lot of her lot, which daily makes her life more and more oppressive as she contemplates the ascending scale of prices for the modest necessities of life.

FOODSTUFFS ARE HIGHER THAN LAST SEASON Prices in Most Cases Show An Advance Over Last Year—Quotations From the Market

Though sufficiently well stocked to meet all demands, the city market up to the present time has not handled, as much stuff as last year. As a result prices generally are slightly higher on all lines.

Game is pretty plentiful, moose still being quoted at 18 to 20 cents and venison, 16 to 20 cents. Poultry is also on the high side, chickens are bringing $1 to $1.50, and ducks $1.50.

There has been a big hay crop this year and the selling price has been $12 and $14 per ton. The best crop too, has been fairly good with quotations 60 cents per bushel.
