

HYPNOTISM FINDS SIX GIRLS IN ONE

Remarkable Case Discovered by Nerve Specialist

In One Young Woman Half a Dozen Personalities are Blended

CHICAGO, June 10.—The strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was outdone in a patient of a remarkable case of multiple personality given by Dr. Morton Prince, of Boston, before the section of the American Medical Association on nervous and mental diseases at the Calumet Club here.

Not two personalities, but three, each of which was capable of being hypnotized into another with definite characteristics and emotions, all existing in the same young woman of Boston, were described by the doctor.

"C," the normal personality of Miss X., splits up into A. and B., said Dr. Prince, whose lecture sounded like a hard problem in algebra. "C. is a philosophical young woman of ordinary traits, and A. and B. are dissociate personalities who are extremely different from each other. A. is a veritable Mrs. Gummidge, while B. is a gay, frivolous, madcap girl who enjoys life to the full, has affairs of the heart and is always up to some escapade or other. She is nothing like Mrs. Gummidge and, of course, there is a great deal of friction between the two. A. is very emotional, easily depressed and takes everything very much to heart.

"C. knows about both A. and B., while A. has no knowledge of C., but has an acquaintance with B., whom she cordially dislikes. B., on the other hand, knows both A. and C., and the reason that B. is both an alternate and subconscious personality, while A. is only the former.

LITTLE A. B. C.

"The three personalities which can be called into being by hypnotism are named 'Little A., B. and C.'"

In the experiment conducted by Dr. Prince with Dr. Frederick Peterson of New York, a galvanometer was used, changing emotions being registered on a chart just like changes in the water temperature are recorded in pen and ink by the weather bureau device. The subject took an electrode in each hand, and when the emotions were aroused perspiration increased, lessening the resistance to the electrical current.

Miss A., Miss B., Miss C. and the Misses A., B. and C. were all subjected to this test. The idea was to show that each personality had a subconscious recollection of things that had happened to another personality, although consciously knowing nothing about them at all.

For example, B. had done something wicked with which the word "ring" was associated, but B. was never very penitent about it. A., however, almost now hesitated to place about it, and her mortification was dreadful. C. took the affair philosophically. B. in the galvanometer test, as also rather enjoyed the whole incident, took no notice of the word "ring" and "little B." actually laughed.

GREAT SUCCESS.

Large crowds were taking advantage of the orchestra, concerts at White's Restaurant every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. It is simply delightful while partaking of White's delicious ice cream to listen to the music rendered by this first-class orchestra. Everybody is satisfied with the splendid dinner served for 35c. Five tickets for $1.50. Dinner hours, 11:30 to 2:15 o'clock.

PREFERRED SUICIDE TO SAILING ON THE 13TH

Believing That He'd be Drowned, Felix Palmer Fired Bullet Into His Head.

NEW YORK, June 10.—For a fortnight Felix Palmer, twenty-three years old, of No. 123 Tenth street, Williamsburg, had been telling his friends they would soon bid him farewell as a week from Saturday he would sail for Naples. He had purchased the ticket, and had even shown it to many acquaintances. One of those who saw it yesterday called Palmer's attention to the fact that the date of his sailing was June 13.

"Don't sail on the 13th," counseled the friend, "the ship will sink and you will lose all you have and your life as well."

Palmer hastened to the office of the Petro Marrello, No. 186 Johnson St., where he had purchased the ticket, made known to George Corbino his fear of sailing on June 13, and requested that the ticket be changed to that Saturday or another date, or that his money be refunded.

The clerk refused. The list was completed for this week, he said. It was against the rules of the office either to change the date of a ticket or refund the money.

"Then I'll die anyway," returned Palmer, and he rather died by a bullet.

The clerk attempted to show Palmer his fear was foolish. So did several men in the place.

"I know what it is to be," Palmer insisted and before any hand could restrain him he drew a big pistol from his pocket and in sight of all in the place shot himself in the head. He was dead when an ambulance doctor arrived.

FLOODED WITH LAVA

Island of Samoan Group Is Overwhelmed

The Volcano Moun. Sarali Island Again In Eruption—Inhabitants Pre- paring for Flight.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—According to a report brought to this city by the steamer Aeon, just reaching here from Apia, Samoa, the volcano Atu, which broke out in August, 1905, on the island of Savali, one of the main group, is again in violent eruption and covered a large and fertile part of the island which previously escaped lava. The inhabitants of the district which is known as Matautu have fled before the river of molten rock and took refuge on adjoining islands. For some time after the first great eruption three years ago Atu has flowed slowly and the rough subterranean channels to the sea, but one month ago a fresh outbreak came that devastated some of the most productive land on Savali. The flow is approaching the village of Salaue, and its inhabitants are preparing to leave. When the Aeon left Apia nineteen days ago, the lava flow had covered more than seven square miles of land and was spreading fast.

NOVEL AERIAL CRAFT

St. Louis Inventor Says He Will Sail to Chicago in Ten Hours.

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—In a dirigible balloon of his own make, one of the strangest aerial craft in the country, John Berry, a St. Louis inventor, will sail from his workshop to Chicago in less than ten hours, he declared.

The start will be made early next week, and one passenger besides the inventor will ride in the car. The steering and other apparatus is below the balloon. It consists of two pairs of three-foot fans on a revolving aluminum shaft, geared to the envelope of the balloon, propelled by a six-horse-power engine. They have a lifting power of 100 pounds and are equal to 300 pounds of ballast.

His last flight was made in the teeth of a storm that frightened people on the balloon, propelled by a six-horse-power engine. They have a lifting power of 100 pounds and are equal to 300 pounds of ballast.

"If my trip is successful," said Berry, "I will have the great machine, ever made, for it can be attached to any balloon and will work under any conditions. It is strong and light."

MEN WITH IDEAS ARE WANTED.

The world has ever been unkind to men with new ideas, throwing upon them as disturbers of the old order of things, as the creators of precedents which pessimists and croakers always prophesied would be disastrous in the perspective of time.

The men who dared to be singular, who struck out into new pathways from the beaten rut, were maligned, calumniated, vilified and persecuted. Coals of fire were heaped upon their heads, but nevertheless they persevered, conquering all opposition, until in the end they triumphed and wrote victory on their banners.

COMPULSED A HEARING.

Many of the heroic and self-sacrificing souls whose labors enriched the world, and made progress possible were looked upon as madmen, and an insane asylum was their only refuge. In the early morning of time the earth was thought by all to be flat, but in the course of years a few men began to observe the revolutions of the stars, and night after night studying the mystery of the heavenly bodies in their own primitive way finally came to the conclusion that it must be round.

These blackbearded seers of an eastern race were looked upon by their fellows with pity for their absurd ideas; they were considered crazy to put forward such a theory, which plainly was confuted by the evidence of the naked eye, but Ptolemy arose and compelled a hearing for his thesis on the laws of the universe.

Called a MADMAN.

Christopher Columbus was considered a madman when he conceived the idea of reaching India in the east by sailing far enough to the west, but he was not a madman. He was a man who carried it to fruition, and the generations of mankind since have gleaned the harvest of his genius. Thus it is with posterity; the benefit from the seed which pioneers have sown. For the latter there is generally but contempt and derision.

BRAINS MORE THAN MIGHT.

Thoughts are mightier than armies, principles achieve more victories than horsemen and chariots. Ideas boom louder than cannons roar. Ideas put into execution have overcome time and space. Morse transferred from continent to continent, Edison has guided the world with electricity; Bell by the telephone has enabled mankind to converse with one another as one family under one vast roof as if sitting face to face. A young man—Marconi—has subdued the ether to his will and through it has enabled the European to talk to the American as if they were next-door neighbors.

Yet the ideas of these intellectual giants were as great as their might, and might have been put into practice in the days of Abraham.

Fifty years ago men were required to toil and slave sixteen hours a day for results that can now be accomplished almost in so many minutes by mechanical inventions. Now the snorting locomotives can cover as great a distance in an hour as the old lumbering stage coach could do in the longest day from sunrise to sunset, yet James Watt was regarded as a fanatic when he first projected the steam engine.

MONEY ON ONE IDEA.

Many other millionaires made their fortunes like Pullman, keeping at one idea and carrying it out, though the majority of men who put their ideas into practical form and enrich mankind thereby were neglected and unworried in life and allowed to go down to the grave in forgetfulness of what they had accomplished. Benjamin Franklin, of whom it is said, "the ennobled lightning from heaven," lived and died a poor man. He never took out a patent though he was constantly inventing and constantly discovering. His brain was ever teeming with ideas. He wanted to unlock nature's treasure box and scatter her riches to the world. He did much and all disinterested and without hope of reward.

The lives of great men are great ideas embodied in earnest action. There are plenty of ideas still in the world, the supply is inexhaustible, but it takes brains and grit and determination to put them into effect.

Arouse! Be one of the climbers and do your best to attain those heights where the world will be compelled to look up to you, whether it is willing or not. Don't be afraid to be laughed at. The world has always considered its thinkers mad.

THE MEN WHO HAVE BROKEN DOWN THE barriers of ignorance to clear a pathway for science, who have let in the rays of knowledge to illumine the dark and caverns of ignorance, have been mostly neglected and despised, and their own light has gone out in the misery of poverty and gloom.
