Grandmothers Chair. BY BARBARA AUFRECHT.

Grandmother sits in her easy ohair, Sofily humming some old-time air ; And as she sings her needles keep nace With the smiles that flit over her wrinkled face While the firelight flickers and fades away, And comes again, like the breaking day.

From morning till evening she knits and sings, While ever the pendulum tireless swings The moments around, with its tick and stroke, Nor hastes for the festal, nor lags for the yoke And Grandmother never repines at her fate Of being the last at the "Crystal Gate."

Husband, and daughters, and sons all there, Wearing the "crown" and the "garments fair; Singing the songs that will never tire. And swelling the chorus of Heaven's choir,-But patiently, hopefully, bides the time That shall bring her at last to a fairer clime.

'Tis good upon childhood's face to see The trustful look, from all doubting free ; But better, by far, when the sands of life Are nearly run out, and the world's vain strif Is hushed to an echo, again to see The trustful expression of infancy.

Grandmother's chair will be vacant soon, For the rays of life slant far past noon ; But yonder in Heaven she'll sing again, Joining the evermore glad refrain, Wearing the "crown" and the "garments fair," While we mournfully stand by her vacant chair.
