etcher's

A ALWAYS

I LINIMENT IS BEST?

reparation can't penetrate in my house, ttam, of Mastown, N.S. umatism or soreness uend it highly beed that in one ap-'s Nerviline there than in a whole bottle ment." Try one of Canada must be addressed

Velvet Hats and Fur Boas Worn With Diaphanous Frocks at Auteuil Steeplechase

HETHER by accident or design. it is at the Auteuil Steeplechase clothes. While it is a day that has not the grand elegance of Fesides the diaphanous dresses of this brings out the filmier type of aresses: Chey tabs of the satin that fold over the filmy seem doubly attractive in the picturesque blouses. has gotten through with a gauzy cotton, voil; or crepe dress it is a glorified creating gowns seen at the race treme style always knows where to stop in the matter of decency of dress, and always will know. The mousseline and mousseline de soie the Journée des Drags nor the world- summer, those of supple satin, charmeuse, wide popularity of le Grand Prix, from crêpe moteor and liberty have been as the point of view of women's clothes, it popular as ever, even if they have failed the point of view of women's ciotnes, it to oust the crepe and crepon gowns, plain or brocaded. There have been the new has been for the last decade. Indeed, the combinations of lace and tulle, which are prettiest costumes are generally saved perhaps the most popular of all, and, still newer, tunics or overdresses of lace with Being, as it is, the next to the last big satin is seldom seen above the high waist race of the Paris season, it generally line, unless by folded girdles or pointed setting of the Auteuil pesage. The way cotton dresses are made up for these race looks more and more like a beautiful vasc. meets is most unusual. In America cot- with gently rounded hips, accentuated by tons are more generally connected with soft drapery folds; slender ankles that are the useful tub frock. In France, where half covered by the scant draperies that cotton fabrics are less plentiful, they are convenient slashes to allow for walking. made up in the Alas serious fashion as The shoulders have resumed their natural a nice linen or silk dress, and never gat curves under the filmy or silken dress any nearer tubbing than the professional tops, the hair is flat and the hats are cleaners. By the time a Parisian designer small, though the ornaments on the a com-

Zen that would make its homelier sister, meets always attract ettention, and it is the sub frock, hesitate to bear it company. absolutely marvellous that the charming Lace and mousseline de soie made up off with such utter lack of consciousness with sheer net is another fabric combination this year that is masquerading as One of the most effective gowns snapped material for afternoon frocks, though it by the camera at the Anteuil Steeple has lost nothing of the evening dress in dernier cri of fashion. Nothing is lackits cut excepting the train. When you ing. The skirt, made of one piece of maadd to this a narrow line of fur around terial, is draped up in folds and gives the tunic edge, or a fur stole that has just the shionable curved contour to been carried as a protection from the the lower part of the figure. It is slashed chill summer dampness of the Bois, you satin buttons of gray "armeuse, like the have the keynote of the summer afternoon gown. The corsage, almost sleeveless and fashionable robe. Vaporous, strangely dé- as décolletté as an evening gown, is a soft collete, it has made lashionable France unlined mass of charmense, tulle and lace, laugh and shrug amused shoulders, but accandalized others more conservative, who fear that it may prognosticate a return pers are laced with satin ribbon. Ostensito the licentious dress of the Directorate. bly a race course gown, to be worn only The fact remains always, however, that on special occasions, it nevertheless is an a well bred woman in questions of ex- exponent of all that is latest in fashion always will know. Those who are to be dresses seen at this race were smartly pitied are the unfortunate ones who do topped off by velvet hats, and velvet sun not possess the sixth sense, and not only transgress the line of decency but of good thin fabrics. In a group of four light dresses snapped by velvet hats. Of these one is faced and ordered with straw, one adorned by a white aigrette and the other with feather fantaisie. The two latter figure with a wide sash that has a big butterfly bow at the neck, the other a three flounced skirt, the colored sash knotted at one side of the front. The dress at the right is composed of a long tunic and a lapped and draped skirt of white satin. The fourth figure wears a crepon gown of dull pale blue, with a lace top. A long sable fur scarf is carried and the tulle has is trimmed with a ribbon bow and aigrettes. Another gown pictured here has an embroidered tunic of mousseline and lace belted with a silver filigree girdle and graded festoons of silver; a large jewelled Medici lace collar about the neck. The slender draped skirt is of white supple satin. A faille silk hat is adorned by a paradise ornament.

The three-flounced skirts have an immense amount of popularity already. A variation from those that encircle the whole skirt is seen in one here, where the flounces, made of mignon plaited tulle. are broken in front by a flat panel of tulle with lace insertions. The bolero is also of tulie and lace, with a loose rolling rever of lace. Hat, rose and shoes are of chestnut brown-the hat of velvet, the rose and shoes of satin.

Black satin, the skirt caught by a jet ornament up in front and draped, is toppeo off by a white applique lace tunic, belted with the satin. The décolleté is outlined with a double lace frill. A white plush hat adorned with a white aigrette is worn with this costume. A rose satin gown has a plaited tulle tunic, the shaped lower edge hemmed with a narrow line of brown fur. The frankly décolleté edges of the corsage are out-lined with a lovely lace Medici frill. The other zowns seen at Auteuil. One has a tunic of it, the pattern outlined with gold braid in an ochre tint posed transparently over a black satin skirt that is draped up on the front seam. Here, too, a slash makes walking poss preserving the correct ultra fashionable silhouette. A simple large rose is thrust A large velvet tam shape is caught up at one side with an ornament. The other gown is of black satin, the skirt folded into the vaist line and draped in the usual new lines. It is sage is a soft vaporous mass of Venice lace and tulle. At the triangular de-collete there is a cluster of roses.

.

15 m

Accessories of Fashion. | ing waves of hair. Sometimes an aigrette come too popular to be worn with a really pose. They are often exquisite, and many trimming which serves to enlarge the pro-Nearly all the coffures for the evening are worn with a jewelled circlet or Greeing band in diamonds, which encircles the head in front and disappears into the shin
The mousseline or talls waves of hair. Sometimes an angretic some too popular to be worn with a really pose. They are often equalite, and many trimming watches the possess such heirlooms, portions of the tiny hat. Arranged in a appearance of the narrow black veivet come too popular to be worn with a really pose. They are often equalite, and many trimming watches the fact strings which passess such heirlooms, portions of the tiny hat. Arranged in a appearance of the narrow black veivet come too popular to be worn with a really pose. They are often equalite, and many trimming watches the fact strings which passes such heirlooms, portions of the tiny hat. Arranged in a appearance of the earrow black veivet ching one's shoulders against a current to letting one's shoulders against a current of air one of the beautiful old fichus of the family souvenirs.

The mousseline or tule scarf has be Chantilly lace may be used for this pur
Many of the hats are showing a tule softening effect to the face. The present of a fair skin.