LORD SALISBURY RESIGNS
THE PREMIERSHIP OF BRITAIN

Resignation Was Tendered Friday and Mr. Balfour Promptly Appointed his Successor—Speculation as to the Personnel of the New Cabinet.

London, July 13. — The Marquis of Salisbury, has resigned the Premiership of Great Britain, and Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury and Government leader in the House of Commons, has been appointed to succeed him. The Marquis' resignation was tendered at an audience which he had with King Edward last Friday. Yesterday Mr. Balfour visited the King and accepted the Premiership. The fact of the resignation of the Premiership by Lord Salisbury, as foreshadowed in the press dispatches, was officially given out this evening. The Prime Minister laid down the responsibility of his office July 11. Within 24 hours His Majesty elevated Mr. A. J. Balfour, the government's chief representative in the House of Commons to the position of leader.

THE NEW CABINET.

The liveliest speculation is rife as to the personnel of the new cabinet. The most discussed feature of the pending changes is the position of Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, who in many quarters, has been regarded as the most promising candidate for the premiership. A press representative learns that prior to the acceptance of his new office Mr. Balfour first had an interview with Mr. Chamberlain and then consulted with the future relative positions of Messrs. Balfour and Chamberlain will be satisfactory to both.

AT THE CLUBS.

At the political clubs to-night various opinions were expressed regarding Lord Salisbury's retirement and Mr. Balfour's accession. The Liberals and Nationalists generally expressed relief to find that Mr. Balfour, not Mr. Chamberlain, was to be the new premier, but a small section of both Conservatives and Liberals were in no way reconciled to the idea of the "perpetuation of the Hotel Ex-Ceisel," as the change from Lord Salisbury to Mr. Balfour is called, and only regretted that Mr. Chamberlain had not been appointed, or a compromise found in the appointment of the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council.

AN IRISH NATIONALIST M. P.'S VIEWS.

Thomas Power O'Connor, M. P., in an interview had with him by a press representative to-night, summed up the situation in connection with the resignation of Lord Salisbury and the appointment of Mr. Balfour, as follows: "The resignation of Lord Salisbury was expected with the coronation of King Edward, but when the coronation did not take place, there grew up an idea that perhaps the Premier's resignation was indefinitely postponed. Old men cling to power, and it was not supposed that Lord Salisbury was free from the weakness of so many others. This prospect did not quite satisfy his colleagues. Lord Salisbury's health has been notoriously indifferent especially since the death of his wife. His extreme obesity is, of course, inconsistent with activity, either of mind or of body. Mr. O'Connor thinks his resignation is probably most with a view to preventing the accession of Mr. Chamberlain. "No man," said Mr. O'Connor, "could be more adverse than Lord Salisbury to supreme power being in the hands of so impulsive, restless and arrogant a politician as the Colonial Secretary. Though they had been made political bedfellows by necessity, Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain remained apart and were secretly hostile to each other." "It is doubtful," the speaker continued, "in any case whether the rank and file of the Tory party would have accepted Mr. Chamberlain willingly. They use him and they do not like him. There is a certain section of young Tories who do not love Balfour, thinking him slack, decadent and lethargic, but he is still the darling of the straight Conservatives, and his appointment would be even more popular with his political opponents than with his political friends. Despite his many faults, Mr. Balfour remains the most popular figure in the House of Commons, and his very faults help him in this respect. If he be indolent, he is also courteous, tolerant, and broad-minded, and he will not offend other nations, as Mr. Chamberlain has done. His tongue is well under restraint, and he has all the instincts of a gentleman. To regard the condition as beneficial to Ireland in the long run. Mr. Balfour has had much experience of Ireland, and though he is not yet a home ruler, all of his old animosity has disappeared, and he is just the man to propose a solution to the long-outstanding difficulty. But Mr. Balfour does not come into office at a very happy moment. The Education Bill, which he is piloting through the House of Commons, arouses tremendous religious passions on both sides, and it is doubtful if he will be able to carry it through without such concessions to his political opponents as will exasperate some of his own political friends. The aftermath of the war has also come, and the majority of the government, though large, is wanting in cohesion. But it is useless speculating further; the unexpected is always the dominant factor in English politics."

WHAT THE TIMES SAYS.

The Times says that Lord Salisbury's resignation was not caused by any political differences with his colleagues in the cabinet, and says: "We understand that the King was very anxious to mark in some special manner his high sense of the great service Lord Salisbury has rendered to the state, and expressed a desire to bestow upon the retiring minister some conspicuous promotion or decoration; but Lord Salisbury begged to be allowed to decline the proposed honor. There is reason to believe that the King sought Lord Salisbury's advice, as to his successor, and that the retiring prime minister suggested Mr. Balfour. A message was thereupon sent from the Palace to Mr. Balfour, at the House of Commons. Then, feeling that it was impossible to respond to the King's wishes with success, without having secured the concurrence and support of Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Balfour immediately drove to the Colonial secretary's house and saw him in his sick room. We are in a position to state that he was met in the most cordial manner, and that Mr. Chamberlain realized that Mr. Balfour was the natural successor to the premiership, and assured him of his entire support."

THE NEW PREMIER.

The Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, the new Prime Minister of Great Britain, was born in 1848, and first entered the House of Commons in 1874 as a Conservative, joining the "fourth party," under the leadership of the late Lord Randolph Churchill. In 1885 he accepted office under Lord Salisbury (his uncle), and in 1887 he assumed the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland. Since the advent of the present Unionist Government, Mr. Balfour has been First Lord of the Treasury and Government leader in the House of Commons. Amongst his literary works is a "Defence of Doubt."

BASEBALL

GRAY'S WIN.

The Grays were again victorious; they defeated the McKeough & Trotter aggregation easily Saturday evening by a score of 23 to 9. Bradion, who did the slab-work for the Trotters, was hit hard and accorded poor support, while Douglas, who, as usual, was in the box for the Grays, batted hard and only his excellent support saved him.

Loney and Johnston were caught napping on second base. Manager "Pon" Taylor, of the McKeough and Trotter team, says henceforth his aggregation will play only in the morning or early afternoon, as the players get sleepy in the evening.

KENT CROPS

A Bountiful Harvest Greeted the Energetic Farmers—Weather Did Little Damage.

A drive through the country at this season of the year is delightful. It gives one an idea of the crops and what the harvest will be. If the rains of the past month have done nothing else they have at least kept down the dust and the roads; are splendid. Saturday afternoon P. D. Mackellar drove down to his farms on the Tilbury plains and, by invitation, a Planet representative went with him.

Mr. Mackellar spent his boyhood down the river and nearly every spot along the River road suggested reminiscences of the past, so that the Registrar proved a very agreeable and pleasant companion.

We had scarcely left the precincts of the city, when through the fringe of trees that border the road at the Dolan property, the ripe wheat fields on Robert Smith's farms showed bright in the afternoon sun. Men were engaged harvesting the golden grain. We were surprised, as we thought none of the spring wheat was ripe yet. Scarcely any of the hay has been put away and everywhere fields of timothy and clover were seen still growing. In several places the farmers were already harvesting their wheat, while in others they were putting away the hay. The hay is a very heavy crop, and one place, down on the plains, men were making hay in a field where the yield must have been three tons to the acre.

The spring grains, oats, barley and wheat all look well and apparently, are not affected by the heavy rains. These grains are all standing up well. This was a matter of surprise considering the discouraging reports that have been heard in regard to the way the wheat is lying down. Considerable of the winter wheat is down and tangled but the damage is not serious. Outside a little extra trouble in harvesting it, the grain will not be injured. In some fields the corn crop gave excellent promise, the stalks being three feet high and better. In other fields, the grain was practically killed. With continued warm weather even this may come on and make good feed.

Down on the Raleigh and Tilbury plains, where the crops would be expected to be seriously affected by the weather, they are the best. Beans are doing well and some of them are very far advanced. Quite a large number of the farmers are raising sugar beets. The plants seem to be all doing well and some of them look splendid.

"Fruit of all kinds will be very plentiful this year and every orchard shows all its trees heavily laden."

AN APPEAL.

In connection with the Salvation Army excursion to Walpole Island on Tuesday next, July 22nd. The officer in charge of the local corps is very anxious to give a number of the city poor an outing on that day, as the Army are acquainted with a number of poor people, as well as children, who never have the privilege of others who are more favored, and it is for this class that we make this appeal, and should it meet with approval of the citizens and friends who read this paper, will you kindly send along a donation to the officer in charge of the local corps, who will see that the money contributed will be applied to the above.

The local corps will take the responsibility of feeding free on that day all the poor who are sent. Remember the words of the Master, "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done unto Me."
