In another room close by were the two wet nurses from Santander, in their pretty cos-tumes of velvet skirts and bodices braided with gold and silver. The interior of the palace was a scene of great animation. The guards came to occupy the gates and line the staircase and ante-cham-ber. Then came the Chamberlains and military household, who in fine uniforms filled the galleries. Anxious expectation was on every countenance. As carriage after car-riage arrived with passengers, native and for-eign, all appearing in full uniform except the United States and South American representa-tives, the Lord Chamberlain conducted them to the ante-chamber next to the chamber of the Queen. There can be no doubt that the changed tone of the Albanians and of the palace are infimately connected, but it is not easy to determine whether the Albanian menaces of resistance frightened the Sultan, causing him to abandan his intention to cede Dulcigno, or whether he never really intended to cede it, and privately instigated the renewed resistance. he renewed resistance.

It held a meeting last night and decided to fix its headquarters at St. Liboire. It was stated at the meeting that the losses had notbeen over-estimated by any means, and the number of families burned out will not fall short of 150. The St. Valerien losses are heavier than was sup-posed, and no news whatever could be re-ceived of the fate of the Wilson Mill section. The drought has been severily felt all over the burned section, and men drive eight and ten miles for water. An indication of this want is given by the fact that Mr. Morin's mill, at St. Valerien, and his honzes and barns were burned. His mill dam also was burned to the dry bed of the river whose waters, when there are any, run it. Allogether, the calamity is one that affects the whole pro-vince and arouses sympathy everywhere.
