The the St. John representation was arrayed against the administration and in the opinion of some people this was equivalent to a political earthquake. But instead of the government avoiding investigation into its administration of affairs, instead of its avoiding the attacks of its assailants, it met everything fairly, and one of the first indications of the impression produced upon the members was the declaration of Mr. Melanson, who, elected an independent voted against the government on the first trial of strength, that he could see no reason for continuing in opposition, and that he was prepared to $69.50 give the government a reasonable support. Other indications in the same direction were not wanting, but the gentlemen. who showed a disposition to follow the example of the member from Westmorland, no doubt, felt bound by their election pledges to continue in opposition for one session. Much strengthened in the house, the for $16. government will be yet more strengthened in the country when the people have had an opportunity of looking at both sides of the political situation. Already there are indications that the efforts made by the opposition to discredit their opponents are reacting. This is to be expected. A party which exists solely for the purpose of pulling down and blackening the reputation of its successful rivals has no claim for popular support, and when its plans all miscarry it inevitably comes in for the $21.50. contempt of every body.

THE ELECTION LAW.

The controverted elections act has been a failure. It has not secured purity in elections and the public at large has had very little respect for it. So low had it (imported); dam Colleen, 158 N. B. Penalties are also provided for persons who employ improper means to secure the election of a candidate. These new provisions remove $50. from the statute book what were very objectionable features of the old law and give candidates a motive to run elections purely while placing heavy burdens upon those who do not.

The opposition in York are very angry over the passage of this bill; but a little ker for $7.50 rejection ought to show them how unfounded their ill-temper is. They have Thos. F. Barker for $30. told every one that the government candidates were only elected by bribery and corruption and that they had kept within the strictest letter of the law. Now here is an act passed for the express benefit of such people. They ought, one would think, to hold up both hands for it. They can now demonstrate their own purity and the corruption of their opponents. Their long sought opportunity is at hand. They must be very hard to suit if when they are given the very thing they have been clamoring for they are still discontented. $5.25

The act will, we are satisfied, commend itself to the good judgment of the majority of the people. Of course those who wanted new elections, whether there was any real reason for them or not, will be very much disgruntled; but these though they talk the loudest are after all in a very small
