

House of Assembly.

May 8th, 10.45 p.m.
MR. WALSH—Mr. Speaker, in view of the adjournment of the House, I wish to avail of this opportunity to call your attention and the attention of the honourable members to what I consider to be the most brutal, cowardly and absolutely uncalled for attack which has ever been made against any public man in my memory. I had listened with a great deal of attention and pleasure a few nights ago when Sir John Crosbie made an earnest and gentlemanly appeal for a lesser public Press, and I had hoped that the Honourable the Prime Minister, who is the controlling factor in the management of one of our daily papers, "The Star," would try and bring sufficient Reform to bear on his personal organ so that decent citizens might be able to permit its entry into their homes without risking the future purity of their innocent little children. But, Sir, I am sorry to say that the whole stock-in-trade of the "Star's" "Daily Star" appears to me to be gutter snipe journalism, and "Daily Star" seems to have a goodly stock of gutter snipes amongst its scribbles. The misleading, contemptible references to me, which appear in to-day's issue of the "Star," have only one object, and that object to do me a personal injury, not political injury either, and Sir, if we were now engaged in a political contest I may be able to forgive the writer on the grounds that his political enthusiasm was allowed for the moment to stultify his manhood, but Sir, I am convinced that manhood is a characteristic part of the writer, and I am glad that his real identity is unknown to me, for if I knew him the result would be painful if not distressing, for him. Not only is insult offered to me, but the contemptible, the disreputable, vampire, hurls his insult from behind the screen of an infamous filthy sheet, in the faces of the thousands of honest, respectable, independent electors of the historic district of Placentia and St. Mary's, who sent me to this Assembly as one of their representatives, and sent me here with no crawling vote, either, but as an appreciation of my six years' services, gave me over five hundred increased majority over my 1913 vote, a district which has sent its sons to fill honored positions both in Church and State.
 Mr. Speaker, I have no newspaper to defend me, but I have my seat in this chamber, and I am going to defend myself from this scandalous, longer, and yellow journalistic attack. Only a foul, base and diseased mind could deliberately put in this type such a mendacious utterance. I repeat, Sir, that this literary assassin is a cold-blooded reptile, a pest for human society, and his proper place is slouching aimlessly in the polluted waters of a dead sea, with serpents of his class and breeding for company.

K.C.C. Assoc. Dance.

The Columbus Ladies' Association will hold a dance in the C.C.C. Hall tonight. The members of the Association will serve refreshments and anything possible will be done to ensure the success of this their first social function. The C.C.C. Band will furnish the music.

Fashions and Fads.

The sports coat vies in popularity with the capelike wrap. Straw and cretonne combine to make chic Summer hats. Little overblouses of lace are worn with the satin skirt. Huge collars of glistening satin or taffeta are seen on wraps. Jabots, pleats and turn-down collars are featured on blouses. Wool French knots are used on Dolly Varden prints in volles. A new jersey called rainbow tweed is used for sports suits. Wool street frocks are embroidered in glossy straw and raffia. Of organdies and voiles are attractive new embroidered founcings.

RE-BUILT Piano Case Organs.

(Six Octaves.)
 BY FAMOUS MAKERS.

We have in stock a number of Rebuilt Organs, piano case, six octave, by Bell, Doherty, Thomas, etc., which we are offering at the same price practically as five octave parlour organs. Every instrument guaranteed.

Owing to its limited scale the five octave organ is only suitable for sacred music. The advantage of the six octave instrument is apparent since its larger scale will accommodate any piano selection, while the finish, style and tone of these instruments should appeal to everyone.

- Rebuilt Piano Case Organs . . . . . $150 to $175
- Rebuilt High Top, 5 Octaves . . . . . $100
- Rebuilt Low Top, 5 Octaves . . . . . $85

The Encyclopaedia Britannica on Prohibition.

The following is an extract from the Encyclopaedia Britannica (Last Edition, Vol. 28, P. 590.—Article Temperance.

The absolute condemnation of alcoholic drinks has never been endorsed by public opinion or by the medical profession, because it is contradicted by their general experience. That many persons are better without any alcohol, and that many more would be better if they took less than they do, is undeniable; but it is equally undeniable that many derive benefit from a moderate amount of it.

Sir James Paget, than whom no man was more completely master of his appetite or better qualified to judge, drank port wine himself because he found it did him good. He represents the attitude of the medical profession as a whole and of temperate men in general. Attempts to support the case for abolishing the use of alcoholic liquors, by attributing to them effects which spring from other causes, do not carry conviction or advance the cause of temperance. A much stronger argument lies in the difficulty of temperance, a definite line between the use and abuse; they tend to merge into one another, and it may be urged that the evils of the latter are sufficiently great to justify the abandonment of the former. But the use of most things is open to the same objection, and mankind at large has never consented to forego the gratification of a natural appetite because it is liable to abuse. Nor is there any sign of an intention to make any exception in favor of alcohol. On the other hand, moderation is attainable by every sane individual.

It is in fact, observed by the great majority to an increasing extent. There is a line between use and abuse and every one knows, where it is in his own case. If he cannot draw it let him abstain, as Dr. Johnson did for that reason.

But society can do much to assist the individual by inculcating moderation, setting a standard, promoting its maintenance by helpful environment, discouraging excess and diminishing temptation. All the evidence points to these means as effective agents in securing the improvement which has taken place in Great Britain.

Obituary.

R. C. RUSSELL.

Robert Carrington Russell, of H. M. Customs, died at his home, 34 Bannerman St., last evening, after two months' illness. Mr. Russell, who for nearly 35 years was Examining Officer, most of which was spent at the Railway Station, was born at Bonavista, B.B., 78 years ago. He was in his early life employed by Ayre and Marshall, later being stationed at Twillingate. Mr. Russell was known among his friends as a God fearing straight-living man of unimpeachable honor. His passing will be learned by his numerous acquaintances about the country with sincere regret. A widow, two daughters, Mrs. Birch, Monroe St., and Miss Lilian, at New Rochelle, N.Y., and a son, Harold, at North Sydney, are left to mourn him. To them the Telegram extends sympathy.

MRS. W. H. DAVIDSON.

There passed peacefully away on Sunday evening, Margaret Scrymgeour, widow of W. H. Davidson who predeceased her only a few months ago. The deceased lady, who was a native of Greenock, Scotland, came to St. John's when a young girl and has lived here since then. In her day she was an active worker in every good cause, and her kindness and hospitality is still remembered by many of the older generation of this city. During the past decade she was almost entirely confined to her home, being a martyr to rheumatism, which she bore with great patience. She was devotedly attached to her family and home. She is survived by one son, Malcolm, and two daughters, Mrs. P. K. McLeod and Mrs. John Gunn. The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from her late residence "Bon Accord," Topsail Rd.

MISS WINNIE WINSOR.

It can truly be said that "in the midst of life we are in death." But a few weeks ago Miss Winnie Winsor was the picture of health and happiness, and her jovial and loving disposition was an inspiration to all who knew her; but, by the inscrutable workings of a wonderful providence, her bright, young life on this earth was destined to be a short one, and she has now passed beyond the shadow of the veil to live the eternal life with Him who "Doeth all things well."

A little over a fortnight ago the late Miss Winsor had been stricken with meningitis, but it was then thought that her strong constitution would enable her to successfully combat the disease. On Saturday last, however, it had gained such headway as to reach beyond all mortal control, and death resulted.

Miss Winsor was the youngest daughter of Mrs. E. A. Winsor, of Macklin Place, and up to the time of her illness, was on the staff of the Springdale Street Commercial School. There, by her pleasing manner, and ready sympathy, she had endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact, and, by her death, a void has been created which, indeed, it will be hard to fill.

The name of Winnie Winsor will long be enshrined in the memory of all who knew her. Time, the great healer, may assuage the grief occasioned by her death, but the memory of the life she led, and the example she set for others, will ever lastingly remain as a precept for one's guidance through life's journey.

"We will be patient, and assuage the feeling."

"We may not wholly stay; By silence, sanctifying, not concealing."

"The grief that must have away."

"I'll Do What No Other Hatter Will Dare Do! I'll Guarantee These Hats"—Says "Kearney First."

Daring evidence of the city's foremost Hatter's confidence in the standfast qualities of the world's most famous Hats.

"I'll guarantee them to keep their colours, to retain their shapes, to wear as truly as any other article of Kearney First Quality can be expected to wear, to give you greater value than you have ever received from any other make at any price.

"I guarantee them because they are guaranteed to me; because I buy direct from manufacturers who refuse to endanger their reputation by the production of any but Superior Hats.

"I guarantee them because I have my customers' words for it that they are "the finest hats they have ever worn"—and in the end it is the customer who knows.
