Solution of Saturday's Puzzle.

Screen Masterpiece at the Nickel Theatre

GRIFFITH AND ELLIOTT
DIRECTOR IN "THE COMMON LAW."

Continuing to-night and continuing three days, the Nickel Theatre presents a pictorialization of R. W. Griffith's widely read novel, "The Common Law." This is a story of an old model and life in general in the studios of modern times and it portrays many of the humilities and pathos to which the models are subjected. There is a story of a man who is in all the realm of the great and the small, who is equipped and trained to the leading role than is any other man. Corinne Griffith who portrays the part with feeling, delicacy and grace. As Valerie West, the daughter of refined parents, but who has now been thrown upon the world to earn her own living, after her father's death, she is at last in desperation driven to the studio of a painter to endeavor to work as a model. Of course she is ignorant of the state of affairs among artists and enters assuming that all is as it should be. She would like to tell you the rest of the story but we think it best to leave that to those who intend to see the picture to-night at the Nickel Theatre.

Massive attraction "Recall" by Beau, has arrived and will be on "Thu.-day, watch this paper for further particulars.

A Show Man of Wide Experience

MEL THOMPSON OF ARLE MARKS PLAYERS.

Mr. Mel Thompson, business manager for Arle Marks Players, has had an enviable reputation in the show world, having started his career four years ago with the Ernie Marks Stock Company, the owner of which is uncle to Arle Marks, and one of the seven Marks Brothers. After seven years touring Canada and the United States with Ernie Marks Co., Mr. Thompson entered the Griffin Amusement Company, managing two theatres under their control and also two in Chatham, Ont. He then went back with Ernie Marks as business manager ahead of the show and after Marks retired he became manager of the company and guided their destinies for two consecutive seasons, and after the company was withdrawn from the road he joined the present organization which opens in the Casino on Thursday night.

Mr. Thompson's employment has taken him across the continent twice from coast to coast. As a boy he entered the employ of the Orillia Opera House, Orillia, Ont., in the capacity of usher and from there through the various stages of the game until he struck out for himself for a Concert Company in which he toured northern Ontario and Michigan with great success, this being his first real start.

Being a member of The St. Andrews Club of Orillia, Ont., Mr. Thompson is a strong believer in such organizations and his opinion is that every community should have a St. Andrews Club for reason that it is far reaching in its benefits to be derived by young men from such an association.

Since his arrival in our city, Mr. Thompson has been greatly impressed by the country and states that he already feels "at home" and being an enthusiastic sport he is a good "mixer."

Receives Bad Fall

Mr. Thomas Armstrong, Foreman of the United Towns Electric Company, received a bad fall while working near the plant on Saturday morning last, and received such injuries to his back that it was found necessary to have him conveyed to the city by Saturday night's train, for treatment.

Mr. Armstrong, upon being removed to his home, Circular Road, had his injuries attended by a doctor. As a result of the accident, Mr. Armstrong will be confined to his bed for several days.

The 1925 Wembley

Dominions to Share in Brighter Expectation.

Interesting references to the plans for the British Empire Exhibition this year, and the reasons for holding the Exhibition, were made in London by Lt.-General Sir Travers Clarke, before the English-Speaking Union.

Many people, he said, asked why there should be an exhibition in 1925 when that of 1924 had placed the ideals, the wealth, and the work of the Empire before the world. The work was only half done, said Sir Travers. Of the 17,000,000 people who visited the Exhibition in 1924, a very small proportion represented Greater London, and it was the intention of the Exhibition authorities to make such attractions at Wembley as would draw the millions of London. Of the numbers who had already seen the Exhibition, thousands wished to see more of it.

"In our plans for 1925," Sir Travers continued, "we shall aim to keep the Exhibition substantially the same in its Imperial character and educational purpose as in 1924, but we shall use the experience we have gained to make our spectacle brighter and better. We had lovely gardens in 1924; we shall have more gardens and more flowers in 1925; more flags, more music, more light, and more variety in our restaurants. One thing we have learned from 1924, and that is the kind of spectacle which suits the great Empire Stadium. This year we hope to stage there more than one spectacle of the stamp of the famous 'Tattoo'."

Sir Travers added that the Dominions and Colonies were all coming in, with the possible exception of Fiji. This colony was showing an exhibit at Dunedin, and might not have the necessary funds to show at Wembley as well.

Disabled Ship Towed to Louisburg

The Kyle, which left Louisburg at 4 a.m. Saturday, to proceed to the assistance of the disabled ship Dunstan, returned at 8 a.m. yesterday, with the steamer in tow. It took the Kyle 28 hours to accomplish the trip, which will give an idea what the ice conditions are like in the Gulf.

The Dunstan, as already stated, lost her propeller in the Gulf while making Louisburg to replenish her bunkers. She is a steel screw ship of 2,994 tons gross, 1,865 tons net, and built in 1896 by Barclay Currie & Company, Ltd., Glasgow.

THE INVALID'S NEXT FRIEND.
Sick people always get a good deal of sympathy. It is instinctive to pity them, there is no doubt that they have reason to be pitied. There is no cure in the world so great as ill health. Not only because of what the sick person suffers and what he is deprived of, but also because sickness magnifies all other troubles. When you are well you can face trouble, you can get away from it through the blessed escape of work. But when you are sick trouble is magnified by your weakness, and you haven't the safety valve of the power to work.

So sick people surely need our sympathy. But there is another allied class who need just as much and perhaps more sympathy, and who generally get less—and that is the next friends of the sick person.

Sickness is a curse and it curses not only him who has it but also him who is bound to the invalid by ties of love or blood.

On the Outskirts of the Household.

I have in mind the case of a beloved wife and mother who has been a shut-in for some years. Life is very hard for her, she misses so much, and suffers from weakness though not from pain. On the other hand, her whole family heap sympathy, love and tenderness upon her. It is regulated to give her what comfort she can have. And on the outskirts of that household is a devoted husband, working hard at his business; coming home tired to a home where his comfort must always be subordinated to hers, always saddened by anxiety for his wife whom he devotedly loves. . . . The children are very good to their mother but they are inclined to take the father's devotion and patience for granted. I have seen him on the street sometimes when he did not see me and his face was not lit up in greeting, and I have been cut to the heart by the sadness and hopelessness of it.

Of course the children to be saddened by the curse of their mother's invalidism, but they have more escapes than the father.

I think that man deserves a great deal more sympathy than he gets.

I Don't Mean These People.

To be sure there are a great many people who grow impatient when there is sickness in the family and who do not deserve any sympathy at all. Men who are so used to being the centre of family life that they simply will not believe that anything which threatens to interfere with their comfort can come to pass; women who have perhaps considered themselves the delicate one in the family and who close their eyes to a husband's run down condition and then break into whining self-pity when they find themselves with an overtaxed husband to be looked after. . . . I always hesitate to write an article like this lest they who need less sympathy than they demand will feel themselves justified in asking for even more.

It is the patient ones, the selfless ones, the devoted, self-forgetting ones who deserve more praise and more of the limelight of sympathy and tenderness. Let's try to give it to them if we have any such among our family or friends.

Car Three Times on Fire

ESCAPE OF EARL HAIG'S NIECE.

While on her way to a dance at Midhurst, Sussex, Miss Betty Haig, the 20-year-old niece of Field-Marshal Earl Haig, and her brother Peter, aged 17, had a narrow escape when the motor car in which they were travelling caught fire.

Miss Haig was driving the car from Sutton End, Sutton, Sussex, on Tuesday night, and saw, after going some miles, that flames were coming from beneath the bonnet. She found that the carburettor had blown back and the petrol had caught fire. Miss Haig and her brother, however, put out the flames.

Soon after the journey had been resumed fire broke out in the engine, and some time was spent in fighting it. A few minutes later flames again burst from the engine and spread with such rapidity that Miss Haig and her brother had just time to get clear before the coachwork of the car was alight. It burned for nearly an hour until all that remained was the blackened wreck of the chassis.—Daily Mail, Jan. 8.
