AN APPEAL TO THE NATIONS

Necessity of Perfecting Substitutes adjourned the congress, sine die. for Violence in Settlement of National Disputes.

Boston, Oct. 10. - The International Peace Congress, which was brought to a close here Saturday, in the opinion of the delegates, has done much toward the attainment of universal peace. The congress was adjourned, to continue its work in 1905, at Lucerne, Switzerland. Such subjects as the re-sponsibilities of educators in creating right ideals of international life, the the largest moose ever shot in New menace to the world through the Brunswick. exploitations of weaker by stronger peoples, and the duties of the working and the business men in the peace movement, were discussed in addition to the topics more closely identified with the immediate object of Congress. Besides adopting resolutions, denouncthe conflict at once, or, that failing, for the powers to exercise the authority granted by article 27 of The Hague pact, and intervene, so that the war might be terminated. In this connection the congress suggested to the powers the adoption of a possible peace-making and peace-insuring treaty, under which all war would be possible but for a brief period. H. Jerico Abratani, of Tokio, speaking for Japan, admitted that militarism was on the increase in Japan, but he declared there was good ground for expectation that, when the present conditions were brought to an end, peace would be the moving spirit of Delegate John Burrows, of England. made the statement that when the Armenians tried to escape from their country, they were met both by Russian Cossacks and Turkish soldiers on the Turkish frontiers, and the Cos- The Saturday Review's Comment sacks "did not forget to give them a true Cossack welcome. asserted, in answering this, that if England, in 1875, had not had Russia to keep out of Constintinople, there would have been no European Turkey, and therefore no Armenian atrocities. He claimed that Russia was not cruel at heart, as some had charged. Dr. Burrows interrupted to say that he did not criticise the Russian nation, or people, but the Russian Govern-

This has also anew demonstrated the necessity of the immediate extension and per-fecting of substitutes for violence in the settlement of international controversles. The congress, at the conclusion of its deliberations, appeals to the peoples of all nations and of all classes to arouse themselves to a finer and adequate conception of their rights in the determination of the for
