[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, March 10. — From Sir mes Whitney's reply today it seems certain that no Sunday street cars will be permitted to run outside of London, shortly after 1 o'clock today.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, after listening to their arguments, "there are many points of view. I may say you need not worry any further about that traction matter-the cars from London to Port Stanley, through St. Thomas. There has been no demand or suggesion of demand from the public with reference to the traction scheme, and won't be considered at all.

The Arguments. "As to the other, it will have to be considered in a general way. As far as preserving one day of rest is concerned, it is certain that the arguments against Sunday labor far outweigh anything that can be said for it. "As to Sunday cars, the size and neinvestigation, the detectives found taken into consideration. I am told that London is in area about six by four miles, but I suppose that does not include Springbank. "If Sunday cars were going to be
