LONDON, FRIDAY, JAN. 6.

THE CANADIAN CLUB BANQUET.

The Canadian Club was fortunate in its annual banquet last night. The company was large and representative, the speakers were distinguished, and the subjects discussed were of high and deep importance.

When Hon. Clifford Sifton accepted the chairmanship of the Conservation Commission he remarked that he had at last found his life work. It is a stroke of fortune for Canada that his executive and organizing abilities, which were so successfully directed to the problem of peopling and developing the west, have been claimed by the great task of conserving the natural wealth of the country. Mr. Sifton's address last night was optimistic. The fertility of the soil has not yet been seriously impaired; the fisheries, though to some extent depleted, can be fully restored by scientific treatment; the mineral wealth has been merely scratched; and there are vast resources in regions barely explored. The weakest spot in the national armor is the forest supply. The standing timber will suffice for Canadian uses if properly conserved, but Mr. Sifton holds that there is no surplus for export, and that the Government will soon be compelled to prohibit the exportation of a single stick of timber. This state of things will have an important bearing upon the reciprocity negotiations at Washington.

Bishop Fallon made his first public speech in the city, and was a drawing card. Paradoxical as it may seem, he has a reputation for oratory as well as for plain speaking. Recent events, not related to his subject last night, have given him a unique prominence. Citizens were curious to hear him, and were not disappointed. He has remarkable gifts as an orator, reinforced by a superb physical endowment. There was nothing visionary in his views on "International Peace." He held that in the present state of the world, the British Empire must maintain its defenses intact, as a matter of self-preservation. Members of the British Government who advocate the reduction of armaments contend that it can only be safely brought about by international agreement. This is the practical view, and it is evidently shared by the bishop, though he thinks there must be a residuum of force even to insure that the judgments of a court of arbitration shall be given effect. His hearers were delighted with the sturdy British and imperial ring of his address, and with his rich and unforced eloquence.

Hon. Mackenzie King's speech was his third in the city within 24 hours. He showed no falling off in form. His theme, "The Empire," was spacious if not new, and he handled it with the grasp of a statesman. He gave it the required historical background, and in a fine sweep of eloquence brought it into the realm of the here and now. His discussion of the present and prospective relations of Canada to the Empire was acute and informing. He was able to vividly illustrate the value of British citizenship, and the majesty and might behind it, by his own observations on all parts of the world.

Altogether it was a great trio of speakers and a great trio of speeches. A CONGRESS OF THE RACES. When our Saxon forefathers were developing their representative institutions, they little thought how original they were and what great results would grow from the small beginnings. Now the idea of representative assemblies is no longer confined to government, legislation and judicial procedure. Churches, trades, educational institutions, social movements, great enterprises in general, have their representative organizations, their conferences and congresses. We are becoming in fact a little choked up with conventions. We are all delegates or electing delegates all the time. Still the thing goes on, and we like it and profit by it no doubt. In the last week of next July a very interesting convention is appointed to be held in London, England, which will be an international or rather inter-racial congress. Races superior and inferior, of all colors, will be represented by delegates. It is expected that men and women from more than fifty peoples will assemble, to discuss "In the light of modern knowledge, and the modern conscience, the general relations subsisting between the people of the west and the people of the east, between so-called white and so-called colored peoples, with a view to encouraging between them a fuller understanding, the most friendly feelings and a heartier co-operation." At the Congress will be no fewer than twenty-five presidents of parliament, a majority of the members of the Hague Court of Arbitration, twelve British governors, most of the members of the Council of the International Union, and almost all the professors of international law in the leading countries.

What the Hague conference has been trying to accomplish for these leading countries, the Races Congress may attempt for the relations between the civilized and barbaric. Once upon a time the savage or the heathen seemed a long way off, visited only by a missionary or so, by such men as Stanley and Gordon, by lions, rubber, dealers, opium traders and the sons of a sea of Noah. But now that the savage lives on the railway track and pays in his fourth class ticket to the conductor, now that he attends university lectures as well as church, now that Japan has twisted the Muscovite wrist from Manchuria and bids for the control of the Pacific while China lingers after her, now that telegraph, newspapers and photography make the whole world kin, we feel immediate interest in men of every race. Anybody may be a customer and help our business. We all live in the same street, the Chinaman with his laundry at the corner, the Tibetan at the end of that telegraph wire in front of your house. Very vulgar some of those neighbors may be, but we need them and they need us. Perhaps we ought to know them and get along with them better than we are doing.

Time was when we were disposed to consider the "colored" races as negligible factors. Even Christianity did not prompt us to fraternize with them or to defer to their interests or desires. Racial force added to commercial rivalries has brought us to the point where a Races Congress seems a thing worth having. The "civilized" delegates may say something about policing trade routes; but the Persian, the Moroccan and the Somali points of view will be given a full hearing. The "white man's burden" will be confronted with the black man's ambition.

It may seem strange that in our section there has been a great development of the animal story and some incursions into the domain of prehistoric savage life, but little has been done in so promising a field as the barbaric, the semi-barbaric and the semi-civilized. Kipling did something in "Kim" to show the Indian life. There used to be stories of the North American Indian. But China, Turkey in Asia, Africa seem to be under-worked. The fact is that we have not taken the intelligent and humane interest in the inferior or backward peoples that may now be expected of us. The Races Congress will in all probability be a help in this direction.

Now that the anarchists have made London's police force ridiculous they may be rooted out of their last refuge in Europe.

The microbe of graft may have worked mischief in Oxford but the fine old county is at least taking something for it.

After all the other municipalities in the Niagara power group have borne the expense of litigation and organization, Hamilton comes along and enters the scheme free of cost.

The Woodstock board of trade is satisfied with the present tariff and wants no reciprocity treaty. The tariff is a good one, but it might be better with a few modern improvements.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been talking to Quebec women on the early fur traders of Canada. The fur trade and the early history of Canada are almost convertible terms. And how few Canadians really understand the romance of either!

The reciprocity negotiations open at Washington on Monday. There have been no events in Canadian politics to compare with it in importance since the Boer war, excepting the Grand Trunk Pacific project and the question of naval defence.

NOT WHOLLY DESPICABLE. [Judge.] "Was your father a college man?" asked the speaker.

"No," replied the freshman, "but he once got into trouble for helping to nearly kill a bridegroom, and he's crazy about football."

A LITTLE DIETIST.

[Life.] "Spite of all his mamma's appeals, Little Ben bolts all his meals; Then, to show it doesn't hurt, Eats some nuts for his dessert. Nuts and bolts, when in solution, Build an iron constitution."

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

[Lippincott's Magazine.] Callahan was stopped on the street by Father Clancy. "The good priest," continued to take a sad expression. "What's this I hear, Callahan," asked he, "about your breaking Hogan's head last night?" And the two of you friends for years?" Callahan seemed somewhat taken back. "Sure, I was compelled to do it, your reverence," he explained, apologetically, "but out of consideration for that same friendship I broke it gently, your reverence."

MEDICINE HAT FOREVER.

[Chicago Tribune.] It is characteristic of Kipling that he should come to the rescue of those who are out of consideration for that same friendship I broke it gently, your reverence. The reason for changing the name of the Canadian town is that it has become identified in the minds of readers of the rival American press with all kinds of bad weather, but it is futile to believe that the thermometer and barometer records of the place will improve with a change of name, no matter how euphonious the new designation may be.

Kipling is right. Medicine Hat is a good name. It signifies some distinct origin. Even its reputation in the weather forecast, so far from being a cause for shame to its inhabitants might easily be a matter of pride to them. There are towns which have no such distinction as Medicine Hat. As the place where the weather comes from it is known—and feared, maybe—all over the continent. Under some meaningless and common-place name it would lose its identity and reputation. We have used the Medicine Hat brand of weather for a quarter of a century, and we refuse to accept any other.

BETTER NEXT TIME.

[Boston Herald.] Lady Exhilarator (at close of baby show): But, good gracious! This is not my baby, is it? Check Taker—Very sorry, madam; it's the last left. The checks got mixed up somehow. But I'll take care it shant occur again.

HOW THEY DO IT.

[Lippincott's.] In a hotel in a certain city is the following notice: "Readers are taken by the day, week or month. Those who do not pay promptly are taken by the neck."

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

[Herald-Expositor.] Winston Churchill was only in the limelight, but also within the fire zone, during the shooting scrap between the London police and the bedeslam anarchists. And he seemed only quite as much as the other.

EQUABLE DISTRIBUTION.

UNGENERATE.

[Success Magazine.] "It was to satisfy your extravagant tastes," cried the desperate man, "that I committed the forgery. The crime is upon your head." The woman started and gazed on him wonderingly. "Is my crime on straight?" she asked.

LIVING BY HIS PEN.

[Baltimore American.] "I hear that author friend of yours is making a fine thing by his pen." "Yes, He's stopped writing and gone to raising pigs."

THE FARMER.

[St. Louis Times.] Little strips of bacon. And a little egg. Made the mighty dollars roll into his keg.

CORNERED.

[Punch.] Miss Strong—John, do you hear me? Mr. Strong—There's—Yes, love. Miss Strong—There's a corner out of your pay check this week. What do you spend it for?

UNWILLING TO RISK IT.

[Chicago Record-Herald.] "Wait," said the guide, "don't shoot! That may be a man." "Yes, but confound it," the hunter replied, "what if it happen to be something else, and it should get away?"

SAD NEWS.

[Ridgeway Dominion.] We regret to say that the Duke Connaught came, so Canada will have to get along the best it can without a royal prince as governor-general. The members of the Empire Club of Toronto are inexpressible, and the president has been shouting tears.

ENGLISH-SPEAKING JEWS.

[Toronto News.] The Empire quotes a leading Hebrew scholar as stating that a hundred years ago less than 5,000 Jews spoke English, that more than 2,000,000 speak it today, and that a century hence most of the Jews in the world will use the English language.

TOO OFTEN THE CASE.

[New York Life.] Two beautifully-dressed women got on the car at Fifty-fifth street and entered into a discussion of their household cares and worries. Finally, when the subject of jellies was reached, one said to the other, "We tried some crab apples and we had to give it to the Salvation Army."

GOLD BAND CAME NEXT.

[Canadian Courier.] He had lent her his stylus and pen, and she had written a letter. She—Oh, it writes beautifully. I declare I'm in love with this pen. He—I'm in love with the holder. She—Faw the point.

A DIFFERENCE.

[Cleveland Leader.] "And this new gas burner will actually reduce one's gas bill?" "I didn't say that. I said it would reduce the consumption of gas."

La Grippe and Colds

You cannot conceive a more direct and convincing statement than this of Mr. Surles as to the wonderful curative powers of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the world's greatest medicine.

"To my friends all over Texas and people everywhere: "It gives me much pleasure to recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the world's greatest medicine, as I have tried it and know it will do the work." J. H. Surles, Putnam, Texas.

LONDON DELEGATES DELIGHTED WITH TRIP

Y.M.C.A. Boys Had a Pleasant Time in Visit to the Capital.

The London delegates from the local Y.M.C.A. and city churches to the boys' conference at Ottawa, returned this week, and expressed themselves as delighted with their trip and their stay in the capital. Outside of the officers, there were in attendance over four hundred boys. On the way down a thoroughly enjoyable time was spent by everyone. Stopping in Toronto they visited the Y.M.C.A. there, and their numbers were increased by fourteen boys from Bradford and nine from Fergus. In Hamilton they inspected the new boys' building, which is the largest in Canada. Arriving in Ottawa they were taken care of by Mr. Atkinson, secretary of the Broadview Institute, and entertained at a very pleasant supper in the institute. Here they were shown the big and famous departments of the institution. The boys have a self-governing system, and they are allowed to till their land themselves. They were lodged at the Grand Union Hotel by Mr. Atkinson. A breakfast table was set for them, and they were given a tour of the following morning. On resuming their journey, each delegation gave a program on the train. The boys were very well edited, of which four editions were published in Ottawa. Banqueted at Ottawa.

On arrival at Ottawa they were banqueted by the Ottawa Ladies' Auxiliary. Mr. Gordon Nutt replying to the toast, "Welcome to the boys," in a very able manner. After the banquet the boys were addressed by Mr. Atkinson, secretary of the Broadview Institute, and Mr. R. A. Waite, Jun., of New York.

After the meeting the boys set out to find where they had been billeted, and were surprised to find that they were several of them had their ears frozen. For the purpose of the conference, the boys and the officers were divided into groups. A meeting will be held in the Y.M.C.A. at next week, at which reports will be presented by each group. The gymnasium classes were resumed Tuesday, the regular school going on again after the termination of the boy hold exhibition.

MANUAL TRAINING IN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

A Couple of Rooms May Be Set Aside for the Purpose.

Advanced manual training may be taught in the new Alexandra school. When this building is completed there will be two or three rooms that could be used for that purpose, and it is the intention of the board of education to equip them for higher manual work as an experiment.

In his inaugural address to the board of education last night, Chairman Weekes drew attention to this fact, and he will urge the board to do something along this line.

In Stratford this is done with satisfactory results. "There are a couple of rooms there that could be utilized to great advantage," declared Inspector Edwards, in discussing the matter. "Some lathes, and a motor could be installed, and I firmly believe much good will result from such an experiment. It is worked most successfully in Stratford, and with the advent of Niagara power, it should be just as successful here."

ANNUAL MEETING OF FRANCIS BIBLE CLASS

Election of Officers for the Year Was Held.

The Francis Bible Class of the Empress Avenue Methodist Church held its annual meeting Thursday evening at the home of the president, Mr. R. M. Berry, twenty members being present.

The pastor, Rev. G. W. Dewey, presided. The election of officers resulted as follows: Hon. president, Rev. G. W. Dewey; president, Mr. R. M. Berry (re-elected); chairman of devotional committee, A. C. McIntyre; chairman of membership committee, Geo. Rossier; chairman of social committee, Fred McLeod; secretary, Clifford Rossier; treasurer, Charles Manness (re-elected).

The secretary's report was very gratifying, showing the class to be in splendid shape spiritually, numerically and financially. Number on roll 35, average attendance 22; 34 visitors during the year.

Death claimed one of their number during the past year in the person of Mr. Chester McLeod, whose loss is felt very much by the class as follows: Sunday collections for the Sunday school, $79.44; special collections for running of class, $54.52; collections for missions, $109. Total, $242.97. This class of young men, taught by Mr. R. G. Bowie, are doing a great work.

At the close of the business of the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Berry, and a good time was enjoyed by all.

TERMINAL CONFERENCE

G. T. R. and C. N. R. Hold Important Meeting at Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—The two days' conference between the chief officials of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Canadian Northern was completed yesterday afternoon after an all-day session. The Grand Trunk party was strengthened by the addition of Mr. H. Fitzgibbon, first vice-president, and Mr. H. G. Kelley, chief engineer, who arrived from Montreal in the morning. Sir William Mackenzie and Donald Mann, with other officials, represented the Canadian Northern.

President Charles M. Hays, General Freight Agent John W. Loud, and Messrs. Fitzgibbon and Kelley returned to Montreal by special train last night. While Vice-President E. J. Chamberlain, of the Grand Trunk Pacific, left for Chicago on the late train in his new car, the Transcontinental.

Some of the officials would state the terms of the agreement which has been reached between the two companies. The agreement was made under the press that the purpose of the meeting was chiefly to adjust a number of matters and straighten out certain details which had arisen in connection with the reorganization entered into between the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, some four or five years ago, whereby the two roads operate joint terminals in the cities of Winnipeg and Edmonton.

Under the agreement which has been made, Sir William said, the terminals will be managed under the direction of a board composed of representatives of both lines. There will be no holding company.

It recommended that the Minister of Trade and Commerce be waited upon with a view of having legislation put in force making it compulsory for cheese buyers to furnish a bond to guarantee payment for such purposes.

PROTECT FARMERS IN CHEESE SALES

Eastern Dairyman Recommend Legislation Imposing Bond by Buyers. Perth, Ont., Jan. 5.—Tonight the convention of the Eastern Dairyman's Association closed the second day of a series of the most interesting meetings in the history of the association.

The speakers were: Hon. James Duff, minister of agriculture for Ontario; Prof. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, and Geo. H. Rorr, chief of the dairy division, Ottawa.

The latter spoke on the care of milk for cheese-making purposes. Hon. Mr. Duff spoke strongly against any move toward reciprocity with the United States. He said that as we had built up great industries here in Canada, and the protection of a good tariff we should not be too ready to make any changes that we might be sorry for later.

One of the features of today's meeting was the unanimous carrying of a resolution presented by the chairman of the resolution committee, whereby the payment for cheese. Many Montreal firms engaged in the purchase and sale of cheese have failed within the past few years. This has caused serious losses to farmers

FIGHT ON FOR MILLIONS

Several Banks Will Contest Payment of A. and G. W. Deposits.

Edmonton, Jan. 5.—The fight for the $7,400,000 of Alberta and Great Waterways money, deposited in the Royal Bank, and Dominion Bank, is now on. This morning an appearance to the action brought by the Alberta Government against the above banks to compel payment of these moneys was entered by Dawson, Hyndman & Hyndman, on behalf of the Royal Bank, and J. E. Walbridge, acting for the Dominion Bank.

The Union Bank are pursuing a different course. They apparently intend to pay the $1,000,000 of these moneys on demand with them into court, without from the dispute, and let the different claimants of the money fight it out among themselves. This morning, through their solicitors, Shortt, Ross & Biggar, they applied for and were granted a chamber summons. They apparently intend to appear before Mr. Justice Beck in chambers on Jan. 27, and put forward their claim.

The affidavit of John J. Anderson, manager of the Union Bank, was filed. It states that the applicants do not collude with the Alberta and Great Waterways
