Entire Royal Household Participate in Brilliant Assemblage.

London, England, Feb. 28,-Paincess Mary, only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, was married today to Viscount Lascelles, with all the pomp and dignity befitting a royal wedding.

The ceremony began in Westmin ster Abbey at 11:30 o'clock and soon thereafter the couple were pro-nounced man and wife, while the chimes of Westminster rang out the happy message and vast crowds gave tumultuous greetings.

The scene of the ceremony, within the historic walls of the abbey, was one of impressive grandeur, with the King and Queen and the entire royal household participating with all ranks represented in the brilliant assemblage, while outside the Abbey popular homage was enthusiastic given the bridal pair.

Things Which Might Be Done With Our World to Make People Everywhere Happier

Day is but yesterday, and the world, having stodd still what will protest, but well-organized commerce, while the diplomatists discussed her destinies, now argument, not protest, but well-organized commerce, are all. Schools should be built by hundreds of thousands and teachers trained and enrolled by the millions. Instead of objecting to children as if they were nuisance we should set the child in the midst and let all our citizenship be ranged around him. We should not demand fewer mothers. Rather we should change every mother into a Madonna. We talk about emancipating nations as if nations consisted solely of men who can make speeches. Over most of the world it is the women within the nation that await emancipation. The Turk locks the door of What has to be said to the Catholic is, "You cannot save the world by ceremonies alone, however solemn and however ancient"; and to the Protestant, "You cannot save the world by sermons, however learned and however eloquent"; and to the Moslem, "You cannot save the world by the sword, however ruthless or fanatic"; and to the Bolshevist, "You cannot save the world by Socialism, however eager and however radical."

There is one, and only one, way to save the world, and that is by service and sacrifice. Building railways, bridging gulfs, watering desertsfinance railroads. We have engineers who are able to desert into garden, and others are still to be built. But these are not exploitation. They are service, and they onstruct railroads. Yet there are today few countries the factory as well as the farm needs irrigation, and involve the sacrifice. Even today this is time that we got busy-in the reverse direction. Today the Anglo-Saxons, as they are inaccurately called, might unite to dominate the world. We have the raw materials. We have the financial credit. We have the navies, the mercantile marine, the developed citizenship to do it. None can rival the power we might exert.

But it is not by power nor by might, but by the spirit of justice, of mercy, of fair play, that we shall most wisely influence our neighbors. If we invest capital, say, in China, then it is right that China, using the capital, should pay interest as interest is paid on any other loan. Service is, after all, mutual, and the token of service is money. Capital is merely service accumulated for future use. Interest is the service paid in exchange for capital. In amount it should be reasonable. And it should include amortization of the debt. All nations, all municipalities should be automatically liquidating all their liabilities. For loans as for slaves there should be provision made in the ledger for the year of jubilee. Therefore, to the diplomatists whose merchandise is mere phrase-making, I say: "Stand aside. Let the during the world achieve itself. You have had your wars and intoday were: trigues. Let us have our turn who want homes and food and gardens and clothing and a touch of pleasure. We have had the force-and-fraud time. Let us now have the good time. Get out of your gold lace and let us get into overalls." Nationally? Yes, by all means, respect nationality. But bear in mind that Dr. Johnson described patriotism as the last refuge of a scoundrel. In so far as nationality means a flag and a language and a tradition and a re-
