C. of C. Head States Officials Ready To Prove Council Undervalues Work.

CONTROVERSY

Gordon Ingram, president of the London Chamber of Commerce, and Secretary Gordon Philip both stated this morning that they would be very glad to discuss the work of the chamber with members of the city council at any time.

"We feel that we can show the members of the city council that they have been getting a great deal more than value received for the money granted the chamber by the city,' declared Mr. Ingram, when asked to comment on the motion of Ald. Towe and Drake that the agreement between No. 1 committee and the chamber of commerce be terminated.

"Representatives of the council are invited to attend all chamber of commerce meetings, and very few attend," said Mr. Philip. "There should be closer co-operation between the council and the chamber of commerce.

"Some time ago when a similar controversy was raised, an effort was made to ascertain the value of work done under the agreement existing. It was found that during the whole life of the old board of trade and chamber of commerce that the city had expended $30,000. During the same period, seven factories brought to London through the efforts of the chamber had paid out $1,400,000 in

"These facts, as well as many others, will be brought to the attention of the council during the conference which I see by the papers the council is asking for."
