THE BIBLE LAW

The Grave is Empty.

"Thank God! the grave is empty. This is our glory and the cause of our gladness today. Has it ever occurred to you what would happen if 'the hope of the world were proved to be a lie? Guy Thorne in his "When it was Dark' has graphically depicted what the world would be if for six months as in the story it is supposed to be the case, owing to a gigantic fraud, the Resurrection might be supposed never to have occurred. Woman in a moment loses the best friend she ever had, and crime and violence increase in every part of the world. Men lost confidence in one another and business collapsed. Nations were plunged into war, and clvilization quickly receded into barbarity. All because darkness settled down upon the human spirit when it sat for six months regarding the Christian record as affable. It is the work of a skilful and imaginative mind, and although a book of fiction, like all fiction of the higher order, it contains an important truth and conveys a timely message. For never was the fact of the Resurrection so vigorously assailed as it is today. If some Christian people seem inclined to doubt the important place which Paul gives to the Resurrection of Our Lord as the keystone in the arch of Christian doctrine.

Otherwise Presching Vain.

The United States congress has recently issued a special edition of Thomas Jefferson's Bible. Jefferson did not believe in the mircalous. His Bible ends with the words "There laid they Jesus and rolled a great stone to the door of the earth on errands of mercy—the most the most divine and the most divine and "If we cannot proclaim with the ac-cent of conviction that the tomb of Christ is empty then our preaching and our faith are vain.

"If we cannot proceasing with the accept of conviction that the tomb of Christ is empty then our preaching and our faith are vain.

"I shall not traverse this morning the familiar ground which is so often covered in discussing the evidences of Christ's resurrection as, for example, an examination of the grave clothes wrapped together so orderly showing it not to be the work of vandals and thieves, or the argument from the spirit and temper of the Apostles which was far removed from such a daring attempt as they were charged with. Neither the removal theory nor the revival theory are seriously accepted by opponents of Christianity today. The vision theory is now the only serious competitor to the truth of the actual resurrection. There are many very serious objections to it. I. Such visions must have sprung out of a condition of expectancy on the part of those who had them. But the disciples had no expectancy that Jesus, would rise. It was their intention to embalm bodies that were not to remain in the grave. 2. Our narratives showed that the disciples themselves were absolutely incredulous on the point of the Resurrection. They did not believe, and had to be convinced that Jesus had risen from the dead. There was no reason why that trait, which would be regarded as derogatory to the Apostles, should have been invented. 3. And how could there be, for Jews believed that a crucifled man was accursed? How could they believe that God would intervene to save that man from the grip of death? 4. It was very difficult to imagine that, not twelve merely, but five hundred people at once should be affected by an illusion of this kind. 5. Then there was the point of the empty grave. Strenuous attempts had been made to deny that the grave was empty, but vithout success. That Jesus rose was something that happened at the grave to the body that had been buried. That Jesus appeared to His disciples was quite another and separate thing. The disciples satisfied themselves that it was no mere spirit or vision that they had seen. T

"Much as we regret local conditions yet if we take a broader survey and look at the Lord's Day as a universal institution we cannot but conclude that it is a boon and a blessing to men. Itself to worship, its respite from toil, its weekly uplift in psalm and sermon—all stamp it as one of the most valuable institutions of our civilization. But why "Much as we regret local conditions yet if we take a broader survey and look at the Lord's Day as a universal institution we cannot but conclude that it is a boon and a blessing to men. Its a boon and a blessing to men. Its aboon and a blessing to men. Its about 5 land.

All Traced Back.

Continuing, Mr. Holling said:

"The United States congress has recently issued a special edition of Thomas Jefferson's Bible. Jefferson did not believe in the miraculous and he eliminated from his Bible everything that suggested the miraculous. His Bible ends with the words There laid they Jesus and rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre and departed.

"A bible that ends there will soon end itself. The New Testament would never have done the work it has done if the miracle of the Resurrection had been eliminated.

"Matthew Arnold, the apostle of cul-if the miracle of the Resurrection had been eliminated.

"Matthew Arnold, the apostle of culture, also eliminated the Resurrection. In well known lines he sings:
"Now He is dead! Far hence He lies In the lone Syrian town, And on His grave with shining eyes. The Syrian stars look down." ("No! No! The real Easter, the power of Christ's Resurrection that raises our spirits to heavenly places, and fills our lives on earth with joy and peace, the victory and love of the spirit of the risen Christ is the believer's inward evidence that Christ does not lie.

"In the lone Syrian town."

Swinbourne Doubted.

"Our newspapers told only the other day of the death of Swinbourne, the English poet. The reading of that account recalled to my mind that he, too, like Arnold, did not behold an empty grave and therefore saw no hope of an immortal life for man. What a note of despair is in these lines of his:

'He weaves and is clothed with derision,

He sows and he shall not reap.

He sows and he shall not reap, His life is a watch or a vision Between a sleep and a sleep. "Is that all? I would rather in one our simple hymns, whose poetry not so fine but whose faith is far moracing, sing:

We shall sleep but not for ever There will be a glorious dawn We shall meet to part no never On the Resurrection morn.'

Browning's Optimism. "Let me have Browning's optimism rather than Swinbourne's despair. Let me 'Greet the unseen with a cheer.' Do you remember how this great poet in 'Death in a Desert' causes the dying disciple to rally to consciousness at the recital of the verse, 'I am the resurrection and the life.' That, my friends, is the only word to which dying causes and dying men will respond with the thrill of a new life and a new hope."

somethat they were not intentionally called. From the evidence before us and from a careful study of the bank and from a careful study of the bank and from a careful study of the bank accounts and other matters by which we could trace the disbursements on moneys, we have no hesitation in saying that, especially during 1902, the moneys used and liabilities incurred far outstriped in gany legitimate expenditure that was being made. The difference we believe to have been misappropriated, otherwise sufficient money would have been on hand to have paid current is bills, leaving the government in this respect a clear sheet when taking over the road in 1905.

We find, putting the most charitable construction on the entire transaction, that $134,035.35 stated in our recapitulation, given as accounted for was missappropriated and diverted from its proper and legitimate channel. Considering that the doors were never locked, that nearly a million dollars were tossed about without any special guardianship or any reasonable prospect of anyone being called on to account for it, it is not very difficult to understand how an amount larger than $134,033.35 might well have been switched from its legitimate course; The $39,400 under-paid Evans and Elskins on their option, we have not the slightest doubt, forms part of the total shortage. As to who personally got this money we are unable to state. The want of records and the statement of the interest charges.

In one statement to which importance is attached it is alleged that the whole issue of New Brunswick Coal and Rallway bonds amounting to

"Finally—We believe the directors of the Company, and especially the ex-officio directors are responsible to the province for an accounting. They should be called upon to submit an account showing the expenditure of $958,799,75 or at least that portion of it supplied by the province. What steps should be taken to enforce this finding we hardly feel called upon to determine. We find, putting the most charitable construction on the entire transaction, that $134,085,35 stated in

Then too, many of the leading actors in the drama did not in their evidence disclose with any certainty the transactions with which their names appear in the written documents.
