

- D. Magnus, Premium Boot and Shoe maker, 15.
 W. Flannick, 10.
 Orie Holley, 10.
 Mrs. Smith, 10.
 Miss Adelaide E. Thomas, 10.
 H. J. Conran, 10.
 Miss Nellie Conran, 10.
 A. Coulter, 10.
 M. A. Scott, Provisions, Crochery and Glassware, 15.
 J. W. Banks, Medical Hall, 15.
 Edward Aiken, M.D., 10.
 John Barber, Florist, 15.
 Mrs. Thomas Ryan, Boarding house, 10.
 Mr. B. Flurman, Foundry and Machine Shop, 15.
 J. Linton, Bee Hive Store, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes and Clothing, 15.
 Edward Eagle, Pork Pack-er, and General Dealer; Ice Cream Parlor in its season, 15.
 Wm. Beamish, 10.
 C. R. Dode, Station Agent
 G. T. Ry., 10.
 Mrs. Moore, 10.
 W. J. Charken, M.D., 10.
 James Ryan, 10.
 Joseph Hill, Section Fore-man, T.G. & B. Ry., 10.
 Mary Anne Howard, 10.
 William Tyrrell, Esq., 15.
 Mrs. Cruickshank, 15.
 D. Sloan, 10.
 Mrs. Watson, 10.
 Miss S. Foster, 10.
 John Graham, House Car-penter County Conestable and Village Assessor, an old friend in our boy-ish days, the days o' auld lang syne.
 Robert Moody, 10.
 Jas. Flanning, Miller, 10.
 Samuel Jefferson, 10.
 William Lented, 10.
 James Madden, Butcher, 10.
 R. & W. Longstaff, Pumps, 15.

The splendid pump factory of the Messrs. R. & W. Longstaff is one of the principal industries of Weston, and is a strong contrast to the pigmy pump shop in Aurora, which is a "disgrace to the town," and Pat is almost tempted to say that its owner, George Bice, is a "disgrace" to humanity, he is so mean and stingy. He promised to buy one of Pat's little books, and then when Pat went to see him about it and offered him his "Ill-gust" little book with his own picture on it, and a notice of his pump business in his next book, Pat failed to pump a single cent out of him, for the old skin-and-dogger went back on Pat and his promise, but he said he would take one of Pat's next book with his advertise-ment in it. But Pat is too old and experienced to be