

at cost price and a profit, for stud or general purposes; while the refuse of our present breeding stock is good for no purpose but to perpetuate their infirmities and constitutional weakness to our mixed breed of horses. Horses bred and reared for such an event as the one recommended are the class we most require for hunters and chargers; for which, I repeat, the demand is far greater than the supply.

In this enterprising country, where capital, soil, climate, and everything tends to encourage horse-breeders, this should not be. People hunt for pleasure; and there can be no pleasure in a fifteen or sixteen stone man riding a weedy animal only qualified to carry twelve—which we often see in the hunting-field. We have horses sufficient to carry slim undergraduates or dashing cornets; these can be bought in plenty, and at a moderate price; but hunting men of middle age require a dash of pure blood and great substance in their horses before they can "hunt for pleasure." Let us yet hope to see the supply of such horses equal to the demand; but I need not say that this state of things can only be attained by the attention of farmers and breeders being more directed to the first and most essential principles of generation and reproduction, and in our conviction that the production of good horses will pay them much better in a pecuniary sense than a mongrel-bred screw.—Bullinastoc, the Land.
