

port to this area is of cardinal importance. It is possible, however, that at the end of the first year of the new program, some renegotiation will be desired—by provinces or the federal government or both—in the light of consultations on the definitions of national purposes to be served by higher education and related provincial views and actions. To reiterate, however, it is to continued federal support through block-funding—not to major change or withdrawal—that the Task Force has directed its thinking.
