

unreasonable to hope that all this is but a pledge of greater exertions, and more brilliant success;—that there is a day coming when she will stand still more conspicuously forth as the benefactor of our species, and when ‘the blessing of many ready to perish shall come upon her.’

Let not the people of either country disdain the fellowship and good offices of the other;—sprung from the same stock, speaking the same language, common participators of civil liberty and equal laws—let us regard each other as brethren, cordially unite for counsel, co-operation and sympathy; and give to the world a brighter and more beneficial demonstration than it has hitherto seen, that knowledge is power, union is strength, and pure religion inseparably connected with national prosperity and individual happiness.
