

the welfare of those for whose spiritual interests I am bound to watch. For my parishioners my prayer is, that they may be established in the truth of Christ's holy Gospel, "not being carried away with every blast of vain doctrine;" and for Mr. Wiggins himself, that he may be led to appreciate more justly that better system, which his Bible teaches and his Church approves, that he may see its lovely proportions, share its holy influences, enjoy its elevated hopes, and reach their consummation in that happier scene, where differences will cease and the voice of controversy be unheard.
