B. B. B. DROVE THEM AWAY

When the blood becomes impure the very first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of various lesions of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, sores, etc., to get rid of these troubles you must cleanse the blood thoroughly with a good blood remedy.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market today is Burdock Blood Bitters.

Thousands of people from one end of Canada to the other have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but eulogies of praise for its cleansing properties.

Mrs. Rufus Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I want to say a few words about your medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters. I had boils for over six months and sometimes was so bad I could not work. I tried lots of cures but nothing would drive them away for good until I took B.B.B. In a short time I was all better. It is a dandy medicine. I keep it in the house all the time."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., but to well and favorably it is known that there are many imitations on the market. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

Bender's Auto Kills Man

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—An automobile belonging to Charles A. "Bender," former star pitcher of the Philadelphia Americans, struck and killed James Curran, 31 years old, last night in the northern section of the city. Bender is said to have been in the car at the time.

The police refuse to discuss the matter further than to say that Bender surrendered, that he was released on his own recognizance and that he will be given a hearing.

Yanks Sign Olson.
The Yankees have signed another new player. He is Julian Olson, a semi-professional catcher, from Florida. Olson will join the Yanks at Macon, Ga., this week.

While each member of the cast is entitled to great credit for the way in which every role was portrayed, the praise due to Mrs. A. C. D. Wilson who directed many successful productions, and last night's play added another laurel to her wreath.

The stage settings had been arranged with care and taste and furnished a fine background for the action of the play. Among the members of the cast who stood out prominently were J. L. Robertson, whose ability already is too well known to need additional commendation. He gave a fine interpretation of the character of the irascible and domineering old uncle whose kindness was concealed by his excitable temper.

Gordon Lingley proved a valuable acquisition to the ranks of the local amateurs. In a ludicrous role of a difficult nature he preserved the type consistently and made the most of his opportunities. Every movement was the signal for laughter and each word he spoke aroused additional merriment.

In a heavier role than he had previously essayed on the public stage, Fred McGuire demonstrated his fitness for the part. His work was admirable, especially while disguised in clerical vestments as the bogus private secretary. In the last act his love making was excellent but was marked by rather more restraint than the average young man would consider the circumstances warranted.

The feminine roles were capably portrayed by Miss Edna Leonard, as the kind-hearted landlady; Miss Helen Barker, the spinster spiritualist; and Miss Helen Patterson and Miss M. Ingram in ingenuite parts.

James S. Hoyt gave an excellent characterization of the tailor with social aspirations; Gordon C. Smith seemed quite at home as the young man about town; Hilton B. Crowley made a dignified and impressive country gentleman, and Harry MacFarland performed the duties of utter with adequate solemnity.

In addition to the play, there were special features between the acts of unusual merit. These also were planned and directed by Mrs. Wilson, with Mrs. Murray Long as musical director and their efforts were rewarded with well merited success.

The stage settings for the first feature were novel and beautiful and brought an immediate outburst of applause. The act was introduced by a dainty Oriental dance by Miss Muriel Rogers, whose skill and gracefulness brought forth a hearty ovation. She was joined by Misses Dorothy Waterbury, Edith Hamm, Marjorie Calkin and Lottie Manning for the second number and their dance also delighted the audience. The huge chorus which next appeared also added to the attractiveness of the picture and the success of the dance number. The solo by Miss Geraldine Melick who descended from an illuminated crescent moon, also proved a popular number and an encore was insisted upon.

The second specialty, in which the large chorus, strikingly costumed in the national colors, gave a pretty drill, while Mrs. Long was heard in a patriotic solo, also caught the fancy of the audience. A popular note was struck in the encore in which the words of the song, "The boys in khaki get the nice girls," were emphasized when the members of the chorus were escorted by returned soldiers and blue jackets, the appearance of the latter being the signal for another outburst of applause.

The production was in aid of the Y. M. C. A. overseas work among the soldiers and the chief cause for regret is that a second performance could not have been arranged for the benefit of those who were unable to secure seats last evening.

The members of the cast and the chorus, with the synopsis, were as follows: Douglas Catermole (nephew of Mr. Catermole)..... Fred D. McGuire
Mrs. Strand..... Miss Edna Leonard
Mr. Gilson (Tailor of Bond Street)..... James S. Hoyt
Harry Marsland (nephew Mr. Mars-

The enthusiastic applause of an audience which crowded the Lyric Theatre last evening was the best measure of the success of the members of the Y. M. C. A. Dramatic Club in their presentation of that ever popular farce, "The Private Secretary." The play has lost none of its power to amuse and, in the hands of the amateur players who formed the cast last evening, it kept the audience in a state of hearty enjoyment for the entire evening.

There was little trace of the amateur in the efforts of the players. Each member of the cast seemed at home on the stage and played his or her role with ease and naturalness. The character parts were portrayed with great fidelity to the original types and the acting of some of the leading members was a gratifying revelation of local talent.

There was an air of spontaneity about the production and a lack of stiffness or hesitation which placed it well above what one might expect from a group of amateurs.

"A CONEY ISLAND PRINCESS"

Featuring the Favorites, Owen Moore and Irene Fenwick

There is a startling difference between the "princess" which Irene Fenwick is playing on the screen in "A Coney Island Princess," a Famous Players-Paramount adaptation of Edward Sheldon's successful play "Princess Zim-Zim" and the princess which she played on the stage a few seasons ago in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." The latter was the refined and cultured heiress-apparent to the throne of a mythical European kingdom and the motion picture "princess" is heiress-apparent to "The Turkish Dream," a cheap sidewalk in Coney Island. This is Miss Fenwick's first appearance on the Paramount Programme, though she has been a photoplay star before. She is one of the foremost actresses on the stage or screen and has established a remarkable reputation for versatility. Owen Moore appears with Miss Fenwick in the production.
