HARKINS' PLANS FOR GREAT CHRISTMAS AT OPERA HOUSE

Early Reservation of Seats For Matinee or Night, or Both, Advisable

The advance sale of seats for the engagement of the W. S. Harkins Players at the Opera House, which will commence on Christmas Day, will open at the box office tomorrow morning at ten.

As already announced, the play for the holiday matinee will be the New York comedy success, "Our Wives," a real laugh producer and an ideal selection for a holiday matinee. The selection for the evening is a recent English dramatic success, "A Spy in the House," a play dealing with the present war, the scenes of which are laid "Somewhere in France." When originally produced in London this play created quite a sensation and had a long run there. It is intensely dramatic and gripping in interest from the start to the final curtain.

Seats for both holiday performances will be reserved, the prices arranged as follows: Entire orchestra, 50c; dress circle, 35c; first two rows in balcony, 30c; balcony, 25c.

If you have a favorite seat in the Opera House and desire to have it for either the matinee or night performance on Christmas Day, or both, it would be well to secure it early this week, as holiday performances are always in demand for tickets for these particular performances.

They were speaking of the beautiful sex and their kind conversation in discussing each other a few evenings ago, when this little incident was recalled.

One afternoon two young women were talking hats, servants, picture shows and usually referred to a certain Mrs. Smith. "Poor Mary!" commented the other. "She is a perfect dear, of course, but she suffers much for her belief."

"Her belief?" responded the first questioner. "And what, pray, may that belief be?"

"She believes," was the soft, cooling reply, "that she is a No. 6 foot."

Twenty thousand pairs of connoisseurs who are seated in the chamber of the West Virginia Senate in Charleston. The offices of the department of prohibition are being repaired and there was no other place to store the liquor.
