France-Canada Committee Is Formed in Vancouver.

Information from Vancouver states that on the occasion of the visit of the Committee "France-America", of Paris, directed by Gabriel Louis Jarry, a prominent official of the "Conseil d'Etat", a committee of "France-Canada" was formed in Vancouver by an association of friends of France for the purpose of developing intellectual, social, political and economic relations between British Columbia and France. A provisional committee composed of twenty of Vancouver's leading citizens was organized to assume the task of forming the new society. Among the members of this committee are the former minister who signed the first commercial treaty with France; Mrs. Julius Griffith, president of the Canadian Club; Mrs. Chase, Henshaw, whose services during the war were several times recognized by the French government; Mr. Scott, editor of the Vancouver Province; and Professor of the University of British Columbia; Campbell Sweeney, well known in banking circles, and Dr. de Lotbiniere, the only Vancouver citizen who received from France the Legion of Honor. The president is Leon J. Lader, barrister, and member of the federal parliament.

POPPY CULTURE IN CANADA.
Commercial Possibilities Result in Growing Large Crops.

Canadian poppy farms have increased to a considerable degree, for the poppy seeds have become very valuable commercially. Those who have traveled through the Canadian Rockies and sojourned at Lake Louise will remember with interest the vivid splashes of red, yellow, purple and orange—the multi-colored beds of Iceland poppies—that decorate the charming grounds of the Chateau. Seen against the azure waters of Canada's most picturesque lake with the snow-crowned glaciers of Mounts Victoria and Lefroy beyond and set in emerald velvet lawns, sloping gently to the shore, the effect to the eyes of the visitor is striking indeed.

"There are many varieties of poppy both annual and perennial, all beautiful in garden decoration, many valuable for commercial purposes," says a bulletin of the Canadian Pacific Railway. "From the crushed seeds of the commercial species, first and second grade oils for the manufacture of soap, varnish, etc., are produced. For commercial purposes, the garden or opium poppy is cultivated on many prairie farms in Central Alberta and Saskatchewan. The Western Canadian Slave or Ruthenian settlements in Alberta, in particular, include the cultivation of the poppy as part of their crop, sometimes to the extent of an acre per farm. In order to extract the oil, which they utilize for cooking purposes and for confections, they employ a special hand-made tool, which they originally brought from Europe for the purpose. With this tool, their menu includes cakes, pies, candies and sandwiches. "But dough is used when cake or pie is required. The crushed seed is mixed with honey and the raw dough left to
