THE FAR EAST.
Another Little Rebellion Breaks Out in China.
Japan and Korea Have a Little Difference and Russia is Interested.

PEKING, May 22.—An imperial edict, just issued, announcing that the rebels have captured the prefectural city of Lin An Fu, province of Yun Nan, orders that the vice-roy of Yun Nan "suppress the insurrection immediately."

PEKING, May 22.—The government is alarmed at the disquieting news of an anti-dynastic outbreak in Yun Nan province. The prefect has been killed and the city of Lin-An-Fu is invested by the rebels. The French consul at Yunnan-Fu confirms the report that the situation is serious. Telegraphic communication with the French frontier is interrupted.

HONG KONG, May 22.—The trial here of a Chinaman who was sentenced to death for the murder of a Chinese reformer named Yeung, in 1901, has revealed the fact that the Chinese government sent emissaries to Hongkong to kill or kidnap the reformers. The murderers were rewarded by being created mandarins.
(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

TOKYO, May 22.—The San Francisco, Calif., May 22.—The Korean governor of Quelpart recently issued a proclamation "boycotting" Japanese residents as not entitled to residence on the island and declaring that any Korean attending a Japanese school should be expelled. The Japanese consul at Mokpo was notified by police and a Japanese warship went over and it is said they have arranged matters satisfactorily. The governor is said to have acted under French influence.

Discontent was manifested in diplomatic circles here by the announcement that the Korean emperor had appointed a Belgian, Mr. Bohn, special adviser, a post held by Mr. Kato, a Japanese. Japanese Minister Hasegawa has demanded that seniority of position be assured Mr. Kato.

The most serious trouble in Korea centers around a timber cutting contract held by the Japanese on the Yalu River, on the borders of China. This has former a pretext for Russia importing troops nominally to protect the workmen. Japan has claimed a similar concession and negotiations are pending.

SCARED TO DEATH.
Charged With Murder, He Dies of Fright in His Cell.

CHICAGO, May 22.—I. Simms was arrested last night charged with the murder of Joseph Dabney, colored. Simms died of fright on the way to the county jail this morning. Dabney was found dead May 18 at the foot of the stairs leading to his room. His neck had been broken. After an investigation detectives arrested Simms. He was taken to a police station, questioned and locked up. An hour later he was found on the floor of his cell, trembling and groaning as if in great fear. He was taken to the county jail hospital at once, but died before the ambulance reached the jail.

MUNICIPAL CONTROL.
How People in the Western Cities are Considering It.

(From the World's Work.)
The April municipal elections in Chicago and in the cities of Ohio show a strong drift toward the extension of municipal functions that has been steadily growing. In Chicago the main matter is the renewal of street railway franchises which will soon expire. Mayor Harrison stands for renewals for short terms and for ultimate ownership, and he was re-elected. In Cleveland practically the same question was presented in another form and Mayor Taylor was re-elected. Both of these happened to be Democrats, but party politics, though an important factor in these elections, was not thought to be the determining factor.

The main question that a decisive number of voters answered at the polls, as they understood it, was whether the corporations should rule the city, or the city the corporations. At Toledo, where Mayor "Golden Rule" Jones was again elected by an overwhelming vote, the same disposition was shown even more strongly. He was an independent candidate. There was no party candidate, but a republican candidate, each with his party organization and its newspapers. The newspapers practically ignored Mr. Jones and he had no important support. His vote was the result of a simple fact that he has won the confidence of the masses by his socialistic program, which used to be called "socialism."

While the academicians are discussing the theory of municipal control, the people in these cities, at least, are getting into the habit of voting for it.

TRAVELLING LIBRARIES.
MONTREAL, May 21.—The Grand Trunk Railway will tomorrow inaugurate a system of travelling libraries. Eight cars will be fitted up in this fashion and between twenty-five and fifty copies of the latest fiction will be placed in each. All parlor passengers will have free use of the books, while regular subscribers to the library will have the privilege of exchanging their books on the trains. While travelling libraries have become quite a factor in American transportation, it is the first time in Canada.

UNHAPPY MONTANA.
One Section Under Snow and One Scoured by Locusts.

BOZEMAN, Mont., May 22.—One section of Montana is eaten up by locusts, while another is under three feet of snow. Professor A. C. Collins, of the agricultural college, has received word that a district forty miles square, situated East of Forsyth, is pestered by the Rocky Mountain grasshopper, which has cut up everything. Cattle have to be removed from the interior sections and there is nothing for them to feed on.

THE YACHT CRUISE.
The first R. K. Y. C. squadron cruise of the season will start tomorrow from the club anchorage at Millidgeville. For some weeks the owners of the different yachts have been busy engaged in making them ready for the season's work, but only a few are as yet finished. Others will be completed by tomorrow night and will go up river on Sunday to join the others.

Besides these a number of the yachts are scattered along the river at different places and these may join in the cruise. Only a few of the steam yachts are ready for work. It is probable that all the boats of the club will be on the river by the first of June.

Those which will leave on tomorrow's cruise are the Canada, Windward, Louisa, Grace C., Sunol, Ethel M., Rose, Venus and Zuleika. They will go as far as the Reach and cruise about until Monday afternoon, returning on Monday evening.

SEVERAL PRISONERS
Who Will Probably Be Sent Up For Trial.

Two more preliminary examinations were held before Magistrate Ritchie today, and in each case the prisoners were remanded. There was heard, however, sufficient evidence to warrant their commitment and they will probably be disposed of this afternoon.

The first case was that against Geo. Paulin, charged with stabbing Lewis Staples and Alfred Perley on the Pokok bridge two weeks ago. This examination was postponed until Perley had recovered sufficiently to appear. Both he and Staples gave evidence, which was in effect practically the same as the accounts already published. In the charge against Phil Bushman and James Burns, colored, for brutally assaulting Alex. Diggs in Blood Alley, Dr. Thomas Lannoy, of the hospital staff, told of Diggs' injuries. He said the man's face was very badly hurt, the jaw broken and several teeth destroyed. This injury could be the result of a violent kicking or a powerful blow from the fist. Dr. Lannoy added that Diggs had left the hospital of his own accord before he was properly cured.

The three prisoners were remanded. The magistrate was to have delivered judgment in the case of the board of health against Charles Segre and in the charge against Charles Kerr for breaking a plate glass window but as neither of the defendants appeared the matters were postponed.

READY TO HELP.
(Chicago Post.)
The doctor's wife went to the door. The doctor's wife and the woman next door were on friendly terms, but the tramp didn't know that.

"Do lady next door," he said, "give me a piece of her home-made pie, an' I thought—"

"I'm sorry," interrupted the doctor's wife, "the doctor isn't at home just now. However, there's a physician in then exit block, and if you hurry he may be able to give you relief before you harm is done."

WEDDED IN SOMERVILLE.
At Emmanuel church, Somerville, Mass., on May 4th, Robert W. Beckwith, youngest son of the late Thomas Beckwith, of Somerville, formerly of Oromocto, and grandson of R. White, of this city, was married to Miss Gertrude Brown, of Somerville. The wedding was a very quiet one, owing to the recent death of the groom's father.

In the Bangor police court yesterday the heaviest sentence imposed was that on James McGlone of New Brunswick for sixty days.

Willie, the Rose's new pitcher, arrived at noon today. This completes the North End team, and it is expected that they will make a splendid showing when they line up tomorrow afternoon.

A TORNADO
Does Great Damage in the State of Kansas.

Two Persons Killed and Many Injured—A House Was Completely Demolished.

SALINA, Kansas, May 20.—The third tornado in Salina county within twenty-four hours struck Assaria last night. Two persons were killed and a dozen or more injured. The dead are William A. Olson, thirteen years old, and Peter Olson. Of the injured none are fatally hurt. The house in which the Olsons lived was demolished completely and the body of the boy was found thirty rods from where the house had stood. The wind carried the farm house, occupied by Nelson Olsonburg a distance of five rods. Miss Christine Olsonburg saw the storm coming and escaped from the house half a minute before it was carried away. A terrific rain storm followed the tornado. At Bridgeport, in this county, hail fell continuously for twenty minutes, doing immense damage to wheat.

MR. WHELPLEY'S APPOINTMENT.
There is a row in liberal circles over the appointment of Fred WHELPLEY to the position lately held by Thomas Dunning in Moncton. WHELPLEY has been living in the States for years. He is, however, related by marriage to W. T. Whitehead, M. P., and to a former law partner of Hon. Dr. Pugsley. He had a "pull" Mr. WHELPLEY passed through to Moncton today.

THE MURDERED GOVERNOR.
UFA, Province of Ufa, European Russia, May 22.—The murderers of Governor Bogdanovich, who was shot and killed in the town park here on Tuesday, have not yet been arrested. The post-mortem examination of the governor's body showed there were two bullet holes in the heart, four in his lungs, two in his liver and one through his hand.

EVIDENTLY FOUND IT.
(Sray Stories.)
"Know Colonel Trotter! Well, I should hope so! He used to be an old flame of mine," said Mrs. Trotter. "Humph! Why didn't you marry him, then?" snorted her husband. Mrs. Norris smiled one of her sweetest, womanly smiles. "Because I was looking for something easier," she observed, simply.

SPORTING NEWS.
BASE BALL.
A GREAT GAME.
At Waterville on Wednesday the University of Maine team defeated Colby in one of the greatest games of the year. It took sixteen innings to settle the supremacy, the score standing 3 to 2. Colby, who will be here to play with the Alerts on Monday, pitched for Colby, and held the visitors down to 11 hits, his own team making 13, of which he made 3 and Bobby Vail 3. Colby lost by inability to bunch their hits.

THE RING.
HOW BOB FITZSIMMONS WALLOPED HIS SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.
It was a bad decision by a Sunday school superintendent that impelled Bob Fitzsimmons into the prize ring. Fitz never says much about it, for he still shudders under the injustice that was done to him nearly thirty years ago, and he hankers for the prize that was ruthlessly swept away from him on a tide of favoritism.

In the Sunday school of St. George's Anglican church in the village of Timaru, New Zealand, the superintendent, a tall and burly butcher named Pritchard, offered a rich reward for the boy who at the end of the month could best recite the catechism and repeat from memory the greatest number of collects from the Book of Common Prayer.

In making the offer the butcher had in mind the greater glorification of the Pritchard family, through the genius of his son Tom. He omitted from his calculations the fact that Bob Fitzsimmons, then a tall, lean, red-headed suppling, in his fifteenth year, had a memory like a phonograph. The prize was a handsome, richly bound Bible, with a large gold clasp and a gorgeously decorated flyleaf. It was to be engraved with many flourishes the name of the winner.

Young Fitzsimmons was not separated from his prayer book for one minute during that month of preparation. Early in the morning, at the table, while running errands, while blowing the bellows and between whiffs in his brother Jairet's blacksmith shop, where he was serving his apprenticeship, young Fitzsimmons was always studying the catechism and the collects.

On the fourth Sunday Fitzsimmons and Butcher Pritchard's son were all before the Pritchards. With complacent pride the butler stroked his well-oiled side whiskers or toyed with the thick gold watch chain that swung across his solar plexus. His son Tom was almost as perfect as the Pritchamons boy. A stalwart though somewhat soggy Tom stumbled and forgot a few lines in a collect. The red-headed Fitzsimmons boy never stumbled. Never faltering for a word, he recited all that was asked of him. But Butcher Pritchard didn't frown very long. He saw an easy way out of the dilemma.

"I award the prize," he proclaimed pompously, "to Tom Pritchard, the Pritchamons boy. Here! That ain't fair. You know I won it fair, Mr. Pritchard." Fitz had jumped up and raised his long right arm in protest.

"Here yourself," retorted Pritchard, a stalwart though somewhat soggy youth of 16 and a half years, strong as a young horse from much handling of beef. As he spoke he grabbed Bob Fitzsimmons by the ear and tried to yank him down into his seat. Fitz had had a few boxing lessons from brother Jairet. He knew what to do. As Pritchard's clutch on his left ear whirled him around, he kept on whirling and planted his fringed right fist under the fellow's chin. Down sank Master Tom, down and out. The Sunday-school girls shrieked. The boys yelled "Fitz!" and danced about expectantly on tiptoe.

"Young rascal! You've murdered my dad!" shouted Supt. Pritchard as he made a dash at the infuriated Fitzsimmons boy. Had he seen the cold gleam of rage in Bob's blue eyes he might have held off. But he didn't see. He rushed at the lean youth.

"Boo-oo!" went Fitzsimmons' right fist into Mr. Pritchard's portly solar plexus, right under the gold chain. It was an awful crash, the first of Fitz's solar-plexus shots that were to be heard around the world.

Mr. Pritchard fell on his knees, not to pray but to gasp. He was unable to move or to breathe. His beautiful and well-oiled side-whiskers quivered with pain and mortification.

"Keep your Bible now," cried young Fitzsimmons, still infuriated. "It's mine by right, and you know it. But never mind. Keep it. I made you pay for it."

Fitz strode out of the Sunday-school. He never returned to it. Students of character will be interested to know what he did thereafter.

Every Sunday afternoon for many months after that fight Fitz took his prayer-book and hymnal at the regular hour and cautiously picked his way to a thicket of bushes behind the Sunday school. Very softly he joined in the hymns, so that old Pritchard might not hear, and he read the prayers of the day in silence. He always found out what the other boys in his class were studying and learned the lessons himself.

But the fighting part of the story? Why, his easy victory over two sturdy men who were so much bigger and stronger than he made a deep impres-

TRUSTS AND ENGLISH LANGUAGE

Samples That Might Be Drawn From a Prehistoric Menagerie.

(A. N. C. Fowler, in Booklovers' Magazine.)

What wonderful vocabularies are hurled at corporations when politicians load their repeaters with sixteen varieties of language and go gunning for trusts! If they serve no other purpose, trusts have developed some of the latent possibilities of English. Since the days of coke a corporation is understood to possess no soul, whence it easily follows that a "heartless" corporation may be anatomically correct. But "Octopus!" Why has that pseudo-Populistic aggregation of letters been recently incorporated into the body of political literature and campaign harangue? Granted that it is a worthy word, that it rolls ripingly from the tongue, that it is that monolithic smasher of all "trust-busters," still, wherein is it superior to decapod, which has another brace of feet or to cuttle-fish, kraken, or devil-fish, which are the first cousins to octopus? Yet octopus and coal baron fade into utter insignificance when compared with that chief of the trilogy, "hydrated-headed monster," borrowed from Sain George by the politicians, trained, fed, let out of its cage by the same managers, and warranted to drive the haughty advocates of oligarchy back to the woods. Now, it must be confessed that "hydrated-headed monster" contains within its scaly sides potentialities for great execution, and is a most powerful expression in the proper mouth; yet it is better than any belching ocre, child-consuming prodigy, cyclops-eyed behemoth, or any other fantastic and impossible creature from the political menagerie? It seems to be a toss-up among them for style, speed and action.

Professor Braun of the University of Strasbourg has undertaken to heat a room in Munich by a flashlight in Nuremberg, which is 190 miles away.
