PROGRESS, SATURDAY, JANUARY 1. 1898

Notches on The Stick

11

12

"Dreams and Aspirations" is the product of a native of, or at least a dweller in, the Hoosier State; but there is nothing inctive as to character or express and no raciness of that particular soil; rather these fancies issue from some fairyland, or at least from where the more general and universal forms of Nature beau sway. Hannah Bryan, while walking in Middle Park, Colorado, and elsewhere, has mingled her musings with the sound of forest and mountain streams, until the distinctive note of her poetry has become a gipsey passion of the wilderness, expressed formly musical verse. She frequent ly expresses her sympathy with Nature in her s'erner moods and her severer forms

To me the stormy night is full of charms Though war the elements in conflict load, I could recline even in the tempest's arms, Upon the troubled bosom of a cloud.

I love the roar of the contending winds, That meet and battle in the fields of air, That meet and battle in the fields of air, The angry flach that for an instant blinds The aching eyeball with its vivid glare.

The groan that issues from the forest's heart From given that issues that bow before the gale, The rush of torrent as they madly start And leap in darkness downward to the wale.

These sounds of dread that others shrink to hear, And fill my spirit with a strange delight A wid, eestatic thrill, unknown to fear, And with bared brow I cry, Hail, glorious

The Trees.

Lifted quantarms of bloom and leafage bare, To an upitying sky in mute protest Against the winds that tossed them aimlessly, I know the mountain's mystic love. ague the waving woodlands teach, And to the circling hills outpour My ycorning heart in kindred speech. I love all timid things that dwel In i wilight glade or bosky dell, For wounded birds or hunted deer My bosom thrills with kindred fear secret places of the glade Are voiced pacts of the gand Are voiced as a bay mark, With tinkling brooks and whispering leaves Tast ever to my weary heart Speak volty, in he mystic trage I learned when Time and I were young.

She magnifiet the office of the singer, and is in sympathy with the postic life.

Come to me, ye below'd, ye glorions dead, By godlike toils and sufferance defined, Who for your kird have bravely fought and bled, Who for your kird have greatly lived and died. O touch my earth-clogged spirit with the fire That thrills your purer essence. Let me be "Strong to endure and worthy to a-pire To high companionship with God and ye.

To the fair heights where ye serenely dwell In glorious sunshine bathed and purer air, Above all storms of passion throned high, I lift an eager hand a pleacing prayer. For I am lonely, though my solutude With moving forms and faces peopled be; Kindred alone by ties of place ard blood Are they who hold companionship with me.

Not to the world of busy men The poet's tender joys are known-O blest is he beyond their ken,

Though visionary joys alone Though Visionary 1998 and 2 Be his; the leafy forest mass He threads, with happy sounds is rife The solitary woodland ways For him are full of joyous life.

For him are full of byout such Fancy, companion of his way, With eldolons of grace and power Peoples the solitary day And fills and brightens every hour. On lovely heights he dwells serene, The tumuit of the darkened sphere, Whose shadows wrap his earthly hom Falls at i upon his spell-beauf ear, &s in a moonday forcet draam

As in a noonday force which and stream, Falls the fair sound of wind and stream, As dies upon the level shore The long, slow wave when storms are s'er. and of wind and stream

He lives the brave romance of old Within the compass of the hour, le breathes in desolation cold I was a stranger by my father's he Outcast in spirit from its social m was a suranger by my father's hearth. Outcast in spirit from its social mirth. Alone amid the desc familiar ways; Alone, though all the plasant rooms were rife With sounds of langhter and of basy life. And happy soags that filled the golden days.

From many a giant bole a dieaty screen, I saw the genil of the wordland lean Across the ellest spaces of the dell; Upon my roving steps the word nymphs hung. The elves across my path their giamor flang, With many a mystic obarm and woven spell; . .

And evermore the voices called to me By household firs, ione brock, or spreading tree; Soft voices gentle as the nurmurcus flow Of meadow-brocks, or sound of su numer rain; Weirl voices, doiorous with secret pain, From dark-blue distance calling faint and low.

And evermore I saw the faces poor

And evermore I saw the facts poor Out of the dim wool- alleys shining clear. Or outlined in the embers' raddy gleem; Out of the pallid mists of eve they rise, They throug the hollow dark with faced eyes, We there all die they all faced eyes. dolons, gliding thro' a life-long dream eart is waary and I fain would rest, Vague fears oppress me of impending iD, Take me, sweet mother, to thy pilgrim breast, And love ma, love me stil'.

Not voiceiess forms are in thy solitudes Where whispers reach me from the shadow-land; From out the e merald drapery of the woods Stretch forth a spirit-hand.

Leadure where whats sigh low to murmuring streams That glide thro' secret noekes in vales afar,

Lap my sad soul in sweet delicious dreams neath the vesper-star. "The Mountain's Guest," which wo think to be one of her best poems, contin ues the idea of the last stanz is quoted : How beautiful ye are, O Virgin Heights!

Leaning your brows against the breast of air, In that five solitude the mountains know. To that the solution to be it of your ise; Not loady nor unpeople i do yo rise; Though never hu har voice with shaft of sound Hath pierced you: stored silencis profound, Nor ever hum in foot frequented there. Not lonely nor unpropled-well I know e pressed your stainless snow

Immortal feet have presser your mission sent, His Shining Ones on earth ward mission sent, Rest on your steeps and told the lu tent of Ma.are.s Shepherd King As in th Carried at Abram's guest, the Angels Three. There are poems of the affections-such as 'Sleep my Beloved," "To my Friend," "My Neighbor's Girl," "My Well Beloved," and "My Three Boys,"-which bespeak the tenderness and domestic and human sympathies of the author. We give a tew star zas of the last mentioned poem

My eidest is a merry sprite Whose life hath numbered six short years; His laughing eyes are blue and bright As violets wet with evening tears.

I see him with his mates at play— His laugh is ringing wild and free— The gayest he where all are gay, His blue eyes shino with frolic glee.

But when the evening shadows chase The subleams from the glowing west, He comes with earnest thoughtful face, And leans his head upon my breast He scans the twinkling isles of light,

And asks with wondering wistful air, "Who lights the shining lamps of night And hangs them in the halls of air?" I tell him of the Hand Divine.

Of tenderest love but mightiest power, That makes the lights of evening shine, The sunbeams glow, the bird, the flower; That all that's fair and lovely here,

That lightens toil and brightens woe, F. om one Great Father, kind and dear, To all His erring children flow. I tell him of the realms so blest

I tell him of the realms so blest That lie beyond the starlit skier; And thought, an unaccustomed guest sts, scrious in his earnest eyes. Watching his infant mind expand, I press him foudly to my breast, med guest, stroke his curls with gentle hand, And think I love my Herman best

Two of the briefer pieces, we like best are given below : The Desert Queen

(Yucca Filamentosa.) The rugged hill, the barren plain. Thy heritage, and lone domain Thou stately Desert Queen The splendor of an Orient clim The Houri's charm, the Hafian t clime. the Hafian rhym ferring to revel in their anticipatory loves ; but when they occur like the fabled angels' visits, they have a choice, peculiar flavor all their own. They utter love's reality and the screne content of possession, and show that there is an after subsistence in our affections, as well as a "young dream." Such ideal expressions as Barry Cornwall's "Touch us gently, Time." and, "How many summer's, love," and Allan Cunning-hame's "Bridal Day Song,"--

"O my love's like the steadfast sun. Or streams that deepen as they run."- are grateful to us, not on account of their enderness only, but because of their settled ssurance of truth.

Robert Burns, -who celebrated his Jean epistles, given us his impression of a post epithalamium. He writes to J. Lapraik, April 1st, 1785:

On Fasteen-e'en we had a rock in', To ca' the crack and weave our stockin', And there was muckle fun an' jokin' Ye need na doub At length we had a hearty yokin At sang abcut.

There was ane sang amang the rest, Aboon them a' it pleased me best, That some kind husband had addrest To some sweet wife;

It thrill'd the hear -strings thro' the breast A' to the life. I've scarce heard aught describe sae week What gen'rous, manly bosoms fee; Thought I, "Can this be Pope or Steele, Or Beattie's wark? They told me 'twas an odd kind chiel

About Muirkirk.

It pat me fidgic-fain to hear't, And sie about him there I spier't. Then a' that kent him round declar't He had ingine. That name excell'd it, few cam' near't. It was sae fine

One of the best of these connubial lyrics was addressed to his faithful wife, in her age, by the late Thomas Carstairs Latto, which we reproduce for the congenial reader :

Stern, cold and silent hast thou deemed me, dear, Stern, cold and silent hast thou deemen me, dea And small my share in love-lorn lays may be, Yet, ere departs this immemorial year, Let me unbosom what my solace thee: Of patient goodness, an exhaustless ses, All that men comfort call Ver 6 found in thee. Lay up these lines in layender, My darling 1

Calmest, serenest, best of womankind, Calmest, serenest, best of womankind, Whose violet freshness ne'er shall fade of wane, The sense that chose, now mellowed and refined, Would but repeat its springtime choice again. Though hard my chequered lot and fizeked with pain, Lay up these lines in lavender,

Trust me that the' white blossomed years advand This heart beats warmly, as of old, for thae; E'an now it burns, it glows to meet thy glauce; It seeks thee as the river seeks the sea; It knows no happiness apart from thee. No other home save in thine arms to be. Lay up these lines in lavender My carling !

When these dim eyes are dark and Mem Has ceased to vibrate in the morning's voice; When ashes lie where leaped the living fire, And Earth,s prized honors seem but childish toys. My thoughts shall be of thee, my first, last cho Thy tender smile shall bid my heart rejoice. I never drew upon thy love in vain. Lay up these lines in iavender My dar.ing !

I shall but love thee better after death I shall but love these better atter death 1 May, marvel not. See, Nature points the sign; Decay but kindles to intenser breakh; From irosted grapes pours forth Olympian wine; To die but changes morisal to divine; There is no death for such a love as mine. Lay this truth up in lawender, 'My darling ' My darling

But all this is preliminary to a pe read only last evening, which pleased us so much we wish 'to introduce it to the readers of PROGRESS. It appeared in its pl ness and sincerity, must commend it more than any words of mine : To Marion

Going to the sacred shine, Where the rector made you mine.

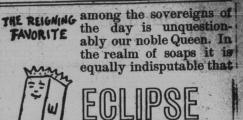

Quickly to your home returning, Mirth and music charmed the night,

Till the stars, no longer burning, Melted into mori iag light; Guests departing, young folk happy. Old folks just a little nappy.

Sometimes giadly, sometimes gravely. Step with step and check to check, We have journeyed onward bravely, Patient when fatigued or weak;

Time, his glass from all concealing, May be squinting at our share; Long may you with buoyant feeling

Never flinching, striving still, reigns supreme. Be a loyal subject and buy Eclipse.

Send us 25 "Eclipse" wrappers, or 6c. in stamps with coupon and we will mail you a popular novel. A coupon in every bar of so

JOHN TAYLOR & CO. Manufacturers, Toronto, Ont.

surprised by receiving a note fram the cus surprised by receiving a note fram the cus-tomer of the day before, requesting him to call at his office. He did so. '1 heard everything that took place in the Ledger office yesterday,' said the finan-cer, 'and fully appreciate your conduct. I would like you to print the stock-list for me every day for one month, and I'll pay you five hundred dollars for the work.' But it is not worth so much as that.'

You here hundred collars for the work." But it is not worth so much as that," answered the printer. It is worth as much to m3 to have it done as you did it yesterday," was the ready reply. That was Frank McLaughlin's first word for himself. At the expiration of the month the contract was extended to three times that period, and then to twelve months, will an annual recompense of eix thousand dollars. At that time journeymen printers were receiving about ten dollars weekly, and only in extraordinary instances earned one or two dollars beyond that sum

DARWIN AS A PUPIL.

The Professor Thought Darwin was Wastirg His Time

Thir y years ago Dean Farrar, at that time plain Mr. Farrar and merely a master at Harrow School, "delivered a lecture in wheih he attacked the system, then in vogue, of spending much time over Greek and Latin verse. He urged that the practice should be abandoned in case of boys who hal no aptitude for such work. In place of this artificial drilling, the lectnrer advocated the study of suence and natural history, as likely to benefit boys who care nothing for Greek and Lutin versification.

Of course the lecturer was opposed by those who were believers in the old classical system. But h had received his reward. Then there was but one wellknown school in England which had a 'Science Master;' now there is scarcely a school of note which has not. Then the 'Latin verse' system was universal; now it is almost entirely abandoned. He also had the pleasure of receiving from Charles Darwin a letter of historic interest in the annals of English education, wherein the great biologist relates his own experience, while a pupil, in being snubbed because he preferred chemistry to the classics. He writes: 'I was at school at Shrewsbury under a great scholar. Doctor Butler. I learned absolutely nothing except by amusing my-sell by reading and experimenting in chem-istry. Doctor Butler somehow found this out, and publicly sneered at me before the whole school for such gross waste of time. I remember he called me a peccourante [careless, indifferent fellow]. which not understanding I thought was a dreadtul name.'

name.' Daan Farrar, commenting on Docto, Butler's mistake with regard to the great est intellect which ever passed under his. tuition, calls it a fault of the times and not of the man. In those days boys described chemistry as 'Stinks,' and Darwin's nick-name at school was 'Gas.'

One upon my chairback climbing, Full of frolic all the day; She, our youngest pet, Lenore, Is a baby pet no more. Sharer of my iry and sorrow. While you tarry by my side, Let the great globe crack tomorro You are still my peerless bride,

S

L L

W

6 24

Shaped to woman's winsome prime By the gracious touch of time. On the heights or in the hollow

'Scape the hunter's hidden snare;

Books and music, palms and flowers-Household gods-these still are ours.

Yov, while reading, I while rhyming,

Hear our children's children play;

and and the en

Partici and and

Of the battl. field of life, Where the red-beaked valtures follow, Clings no comrade like a wife, losest when the blows of fate Thicken on her wounded mate.

On I dear friend, there's no retreating. Heart to heart responsive beating, Cords of love will brace and bind Till the bugles hera'd peace

GEDIGS MARTIN. God bless the poet and his wi'e, and PASLOR FELIX.

He owes it to his Willingness to oblidge

The Philadelphia Times prints an interesting and encouraging account of the manner in which Mr. McLaughlin, the late pub. lisher of that paper, gained his first up He was then em ward start in the world. ployed in the printing-office of the Ledger. Young readers may find in the uarrative something better than a good story.

Upon one occasion in 1851 when Frank McLaughlin was twenty-three years of age, it happened that the foreman and his first assistant were absent, and that John McLanghlin was at home ill. Young Frank McLaughlin was then the fastest setter of type in the office. At the dinner hour of the day in question, when every 'stick' was lying at rest, Abraham Barker, the father of the well-known Wharton Bark er and himself then one of the very few prokers in this city, walked into the Ledger job printing-office with a steck-list-an enumeration of the figures of the financial market of the day-and expressed a desire to have it put in type and fifty copies struck off for immedia'e use. By reason of the conditions described, there was no one in authority to wait upon him, and Frank McLaughlin Stepped forward and received the order. The stock-list at the time, unlike the complex affairs of the the Montreal Witness for Dec. 21st. and present day, was an abbreviated statement, en could easily place it i type within a quarter, of an hour. When Mr. Barker asked the young printer if he would undertake the task, the latter answered with cheerful alacrity, 'Certainly. Cutting the list in two and turning to one of the oldest compositors in the office, he said. 'Here, J.m, take one of these 'takes' and I'll take tha other, and we'll rush her through in a jiffy.' The man addressed walked forward with a frown on his face, and after he had taken the slip of paper and was moving back te his case, he muttered some halt understood words about 'giving a fellow a chance to eat his

And our weary march shall cease. Nov. 22, 1887. shield their home is the prayer of

HIS START IN LIFE.

If perfectly well, this is natural. Thin in fiesh? Perhapsie's

.uguongh. pecause they are not fleshy dred aches and pains, simply debility, pallor, and a hunfrom frequent colds, nervous But many are suffering probably the case.

blood. It is a food in itself. nerves, and makes rich, red tion, gives new force to the phites strengthens the digesliver Oil with Hypophos-Scott's Emulsion of Cod-

Sec. and $1.00, all druggists.

Gool angels on his birth-hour smiled, Their steps unseen his paths have trod-Oh, happy bard, 'nir nature's child, Belovel alike of man and God 1 Some of the best of these pieces give hints of personal history, and the conditions of her spiritual development; and in them there is a deep cry for sympathy and the apprehension of others :

The sweets of many a tropic bower;

Are in thy form and mien Thy myriad bel'-like blossoms swing,

Thy myriad bei-inter totation with mar By fairy pages kept a-ring With elfin melody. Soft flutings of the coartier breeze, And murmurous wings of velvet bees, And murmurous wings of velv Swell that fine minstrelsy.

No Sybarite, thy couch is hard, Thy feet are set mil fint and shard,

In Trinity Church

(Cambridge.)

I see within the Chancel stand, With haloed brow and crosiered wand, A Christ who in his arms doth hold A tender nurseling of the fold.

A concer nurseing of the fold. Green spreads the turl benesth his fect, And undermeally the legend sweet So fraught with yearning, fond and deep, "Lovest thou me ?" and "Feed my Sheep."

Ot, tender Shepherd, ever blest i To thee I left my pitcons cry. Like the meek lamb upon Thy breast I in Thy sheltering care would lie. My secret heart's best offering Of thankful praise and prayer I bring, And kneeling at Thy feet implore Thy tender guidance evermore.

Mrs. Byran is a resident of Memphis

Indiana, and is known also as a writer of vigorous and thoughtful prose. Her book bound in white and gold is most artistic ally printed, and contains a portrait of the

The strains that celebrate a long-endurring marital felicity are few-the poets pre-author.

In yiels at unkindly soil, But round thee thronged, a loyal band, Thy wild barbaric spearmen stand, To guatd from wrong and speil.

Four and forty years together, Dearest, can it be so long ? Swift as birds of twiltest feather, Fleeting as a summer's song, All the seasons that have sped, Since the hour when we were wed. Well and proudly I remember How you left your father's roof; Wintry weather that November. But our hearts were winter-proof.

No Half Moasures

'I believe in meeting people half wyy.' 'So do I ; but my mother in law would old like the dickens if I didn't go clear to the station.'

Sitter (jocosely)—'I suppose you win me to look pleasant.' Ariist-'Ualess you prefer a perfeet likeness.'—Exchange.

Young McLaughlin's fingers flew as he simple 'Thank you !' he left the office. The tollowing merning the young printer was TETTETTETTETTETTETTE Easy to Walk. NEW SHOES Don't "draw" or pinch the feet when Foot Elm is used. Stoents at all druggists, or sent by mail. Storr & Juzy, Bowmanville, Ont.

York Tribune, apparently oblivious to all that was going on about lim.

picked up the little pieces of metal. In less than half an hour he had the stock list in type, revised, and fity copies struck off. He handed them to Mr. Barker with an apology for keeping them waiting. 'What ! Done already ?' said the broker, and with a