But that was all a guess, though a learned and brilliant guess. I do not know when it was, and I do not care will want to see when they get their crown in heaven. I tell you heaven will have no more half hours to when it was, but of the fact that such an interregnum of sound took place I am certain. "There was sispare.

My subject also impresses me with the immortality of a half hour. That half hour mentioned in my text is lence in heaven about the space of half an hours" half hour mentioned in my text is more widely known than any other period in the calendar of heaven. None of the whole hours of heaven is measured off, none of the years, none of the centuries. Of the mil-lions of ages past and the millions of ages to come not one is especially measured off in the Bible. But that silence has all been broken up into worlds, and it has become a noisy universe. Worlds in upheaval, worlds in convolution worlds. measured off in the Bible. But the half hour of my text is made immor-tal. The only part of eternity that was ever measured by earthly time-piece was measured by the minute hand of my text. Oh! the half hours! They deside everything I am not They decide everything. I am not asking what you will do with the years or months or days of your life, but what of the half hours? Tell worlds in congelation, worlds in conflagration, worlds in revolution. If geologists are right-and I be-

If geologists are right—and 1 be-lieve they are—there has not been a moment of silence since the world began its travels, and the crashing and the splitting and the uproar and the hubbub are ever in progress. The most tremendous things of your life and mine were certain half hours. The half hourn when in the parsonage of a country minister I resolved to become a preacher of the gospel, the half hour when I first realized that my son was dead; the half hour in when I stood on the top of my house in Oxford street and saw our church burn, the half hour in which I estered Jerusalem, the half hour in which I stopped on Mount Calvary, the half hours the ciff the mail to and shours, the chief times of my life. You may forget the name of the exact years or most of the important events of your existence, but those half hours. He the half hour of my text, will be immortal. There have been events on earth and in heaven that seemed to demand a whole day or whole week or whole year for celestial consideration. If Grotius was right and this silence occurred at the time of the destruc-tion of Jerusalem, that scene was so awful and so prolonged that the in-habitants of heaven could not have done justice to it in many weeks. After fearful besiegement of the two fortresses of Jerusalem, Antonin and Hippicus had been going on for a long while, a Roman soldier, mounted on the shoulder of another sol-dier, hurled into the window of the temple a firebrand, and the temple was all aflame, and after covering many sacrifices to the holiness of God, the building itself became a sacrifice to the rage of man. The hunger of the people in that city during the besiegement was so great that as some outlaws were passing a doorway and inhaled the odors of food they burst open the door, threatening the mother of the household with death unless she gave them some food, and she took them
