

The outlines of this piece of rock appear as two opposed or overlapping half spheres, the one side showing the outlines of the female face and the other the outlines of the male. The lines of the human skull fit exactly over those of this rock, and the neck part is the end of the magnetic pole of the earth.

All the different kinds of atomic groupings, that could take place at this period of the history of the earth feeding upon the chemical substances formed by crystalline groupings of the decomposed water-cell, formed one positive indivisible chain, and its rotating condition as magnetic motion caused the accumulation of these cells as one magnetic centre. As no magnetic field can make up a perfect balance except it contains six conditions of increase, including all the different directions in which matter could move, the final form of that which governed this movement must have reached its condition as a crystalline condition before it could become a thing of individual "parts."

The pushing together of these cells which crystallized as one mass was the result of a continual grouping of cells, because of the continual formation of matter by the grouping of the primal system of 3-4 with its mass of ether, throughout the different conditions governing the occupation of space, or the time required for a field of magnetic gaseous electricity to perform its different stages of increase in speed of rotation, to a centre and from that centre, the same activity that characterizes the accumulation of chemical substances making up the life history of the animal cell. It is not carbon or nitrogen or any other chemical that produces the vital process, but it is the vital process that brings together groups of atoms, as 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, and 128, as a final system, consisting of a brain and a body, a system that can expend the energy generated by the body as a force of push.

Is it prophetic that this present century has seen man at his best in inventing a machine that will enable him to "push" his way through the atmosphere? Is it actually his body now becoming brain substance, in demanding to be carried to the skies?

The brain itself must perforce mount still higher, and we hope that in the near future he shall be able to say: "Thus far and no farther shalt thou come, thou paralysis in crystallization."

THE END.
