THE SPICE OF LIFE.

He who calls on the Lord to help him up, must himself struggle to get onto his feet if he would have his prayer answered.

Apropos to the "discovery" of some Roman Catholic prelates that Milton and Dr. Johnson were Roman Catholics, we recall a certain incident said to have occurred in a New York police court. The judge questioned the accused: "What is your name?" "Solomon Isaacsohn," was the reply. "Mr. Isaacsohn, where do you live?" "On Hesther Street, y'r honor." "And what do you do for a living, Mr. Isaacsohn?" "I sell second-hand clothes, y'r honor." "And what is your religion, Mr. Isaacsohn?" "Vell, now, shudge, I tells you my name vas Solomon Isaacsohn; I tells you that I lives on Hesther Street; I tells you that for a living I sells second-hand clothes; and now, if you must know my religion, I vill be very frank, I vill be very candid with you, I vill conceal nothing—I vas a Quaker!"

Recently a friend who had heard that I sometimes suffer from insomnia told me of a sure cure. "Eat a pint of peanuts and drink two or three glasses of milk before going to bed," said he, "and I'll warrant you'll be asleep within half an hour." I did as he suggested, and now, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted with insomnia, I feel it to be my duty to report what happened, so far as I am able to recall the details.

First let me say my friend was right. I did go to sleep very soon after my retirement. Then a friend with his head under his arm came along and asked me if I wanted to buy his feet. I was negotiating with him, when the dragon on which I was riding slipped out of his skin and left me floating in midair. While I was considering how I should get down, a bull with two heads peered over the edge of the wall and said he would haul me up if I would first climb up and rig a windlass for him. So as I was sliding down the mountain-side the brakeman came in, and I asked him when the train would reach my station. "We passed your station four hundred years ago," he said, calmly folding the train up and slipping it into his vest pocket.

At this juncture the clown bounded into the ring and pulled the center pole out of the ground, lifting the tent and all the people in it up, up, while I stood on the earth below watching myself go out of sight among the clouds above. Then I awoke, and found I had been asleep almost ten minutes.

MAXIMS IN ENGINEERING.

Some amusing maxims in engineering are contributed to the current issue of the Canadian Engineer by a Toronto correspondent who signs himself "Cynicus." We take the liberty of reprinting a few of somewhat general application: To the engineer who makes a mystery of engineering, engineering is a mystery. To be afraid of criticism is to know there is something to fear.

When an alderman (or a councillor) addresses an engineer, he should commence, "Although not exactly an engineer myself." This means that his knowledge is of a broad, unwarped character.

When a mayor receives a suggestion from an engineer, he should say: "Of course, you are quite right; but I have the whole mass of citizens to consider." This is non-committal.

While standing on your professional dignity, endeavor to keep your balance. If a chief engineer does not understand his work, he can get a good man at $25 a week to do it for him.

An assistant should remember he is more able than his chief. An assistant has had a university training; the chief probably only built universities.

If a contractor says, "How shall I do this?" reply, "Now, my good man, you know exactly how to do it. Suppose you were in my position, what would you naturally advise?" Then say, "Any man with common sense would do exactly as you say." This is a natural confidence.

When a contractor says, "My work is done," take him at his word, and do not check it properly.
