be an advantage to mulch the trees with grass or old manure. The trees should be inspected during the summer to see that weeds, etc., do not overshadow them. In case the owner does not want large trees along cultivated fields, the first planting can be done every sixteen feet, and a few years later can be planted between. When the first trees become too large, they can be cut off the height of a common fence-post, and later the fence can be attached to the younger generation of trees as the older ones decay.

The choice of species for this work must be given some consideration. The fastest-growing species will be box elder, hardy catalpa, and black locust. In the southern portions of the Province, and in the best classes of fresh, moist soils, hardy catalpa may prove valuable for this purpose. Black locust will grow on the poorest of locations, and will be of more general value than hardy catalpa. Sugar maple may be employed in this work, although the growth will be slower than the preceding species, and it requires very good soil. Some may desire to plant nut-producing trees, so that a return may be had from nut crops. Black walnut, shag-bark hickory, and chestnut, would be the most valuable in this case. The chestnut would grow on the lighter soils, while the black walnut should be planted in good, rich soil. If evergreens are desired, Norway spruce, white spruce, larch and arborvitae will give best results. The arborvitae should be placed in moist soil, while larch will stand dry, poor locations.

In placing wire on trees, care should be taken not to injure the tree more than necessary. Where a strip of wood is used in which to place staples, the tree gradually forces the strip over the head of the nail, and in time it may be necessary to put in new nails. As a rule, large bolts or heavy spikes are used to fasten this strip to the tree. The use of such large fastenings is unnecessary, and usually a much smaller nail will hold just as well. For an inch-and-a-half strip, two-and-a-half-inch nails are sufficiently large.

Gossip.

Scottish farmers fed their sheep on turnips during the past winter, at a cost of from 4½ pence to 6 pence.

Preparations are already under way in Shrewsbury, England, for the holding of the Royal Show there next year.

Besides the giving of two cups worth £50 each, at the Toronto Exhibition this fall, the Shire Horse Society of England are giving the same prizes at a leading exhibition in the United States, Australia, and Argentina. These prizes are to be given each year, from 1913 to 1917, inclusive.

The first of two Shorthorn sales to be held this spring at Kingham's, comprised 103 head. The best demand was for the well-bred milk-producing kind. The top price was 100 guineas ($511), paid for Oxford Bride, bred by the late George Taylor, a Bates Oxford, with 10,850 lbs. of milk to her credit last year. She won first at the London Dairy Show as a heifer, in 1908. Red Lad, consigned by W. M. Cazalet, made the top price of 70 guineas, being purchased by Lord Tredegar. The 103 head averaged $135 each.
