OLD CAMDEN RESIDENT DEAD

Last Saturday Mrs. Asenath Arnold, elict of the late Christopher Arnold, of Camden, passed away aged 86 years.

Mrs. Arnold was one of the old Kent county settlers and her death removes a face that was familiar to the residents of this section half a century ago. Five sons and one daughter survive. They are, Richard L., of Camden; T. S., of Toronto; T. M., of Chatham; Thestor T., of

That is the General Rumor Abroad in London This Morning.

London, Dec. 1.-A Cape Town despatch says it is reported there that Kimberley has been relieved, and that the Boers have fallen back before Gen. Methuen without offering further resistance. The military authorities here give credence to the report that Methuen's advance has relieved Kimberley by drawing off the enemy, but they doubt if General Methuen has actually formed a junction yet with Col. Kekewich, the commander at Kimber, seems to be no doubt that the pressure on the garrison has been much lightened by Gen. Metheun's successes and the actual relief of the place is likely to be a fact very soon.

A clue to the urgent reasons which dictated General Metheun's hurried march may be found in Gov. Milner's hint to the relief committee at Caps Town to prepare for the reception of 10,000 refugees; indicating that the garrison must have had reason to fear the reduction of Kimberley by starvagressing when the despatch was se Several ambulance tpains left Ma king Nov. 23 for the Free State, wh the reduction of Kimberley by starva-tion and disease. WARMEST IN 35 YEARS. Mr. Striker, of L. E. & D. R. R., says that this is one of the warmest falls he remembers with the exception of one some 35 years ago, when the weather was faild up till New Years. The farmers were plowing even during Christmas week. The hired man working for Mr. Striker's father left the plough outside after ploughing on New Year's day. That night the first cold of the season set in and it froze six inches of ice before morning. The plough left out by the hired man was frozen so tight in the ground that it could not be moved till the first thaw came in the spring. A PRESENTATION. At the regular meeting of the Ep-orth League of the Victoria Ave. Methodist Churchl ast evening, the Rev. HEIGHT-PARDO.

On Wednesday morning Miss Annie Pardo, was married to Eugene Height, of Kentucky, at the residence of her father, Wm. Pardo, on the lake shore. Charles Pardo, brother of the bride, was best man and the bride was assisted by her cousin, Miss Nell Benedict. Little Annie Crow, daughter of Angus Crow, of this city, made a pretty maid of honor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Clark. The bride was attired in cream serge, trimmed with satin and lace. The bridesmaid, Miss Benedict, wore white organdic, trimmed with valenciennes lace. The happy couple left the same afternoon, for their future home in Lexington, Ey.

REPARTEE ON DRESS PARADE

Lord Wolseley confirms the semi-official report that another division of An Incident of One of the English Leviews at Aldershot. During some manouevres at Alder shot to gain practice in the vedette system of employing cavalry to watch and report the movements of an enemy the mounted troops employed on the occasion were extended at intervals n a long line reaching some miles. The major at one end of the line had occasion to send a message to the captain, who was at the opposite end: The enemy are in force in front. The signal was passed along the line all right till it came to a man stationed about midway, who thought fit to add a private message of his own, intended for the benefit of his neighbor:

"Have you a chaw of tobacco?" Unluckily, his comrade thought these words were part of the signal message, and they were passsed from man to man until they reached the captain, The latter was somewhat astonished at this request, but sent back this an-

"I don't use tobacco, but there are two cigars." The major found the cigars welcome, and as he lighted one, sent back the answer: "Who said you did?" M. Faure's Irreverence.

Here is a laughable and true little anectdote about President Faure's historic visit to St. Petersburg. It seems that the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul at St. Petersburg has a remarkable repeating echo, which is nowhere so pronounced as in the passages leading to the subterranean crypt where the famous collection of holy relics is stored. Moreover, as might be expected, the approaches to the crypt are somewhat drafty. Just at the moment when in solemn silence the group of ecclesiastical and other dignitaries in attendance on the president and czar were ushering their illustrious visitors into the hallowed vaults, M. Faure's voice was heard in the half darkness to this effect: "Mollard!"

Immediately and as if by enchantment, innumerable other eerie voices resounded and re-echoed the word on all sides.

"Mollard! Molllard! Mo-oll-a-rd!" M. Mollard is a diplomatist of parts, but it was distinctly uncanny to hear his homely name thundering away thus in the obscurity of the crypt. The Russian clergy present were scandalized, the laymen were astounded. But the astonishment became more intense when the president's vote droned out once more:

And once more the noisy echoes to ke up the words and bandled them to sad fro among the gloomy arches: "My hat! My hat! My ha-at!"

M. Molliard brought the president's hat. And M. Faure immediately and unconsciously did the cause of the third republic much mischief by putting it on while he made his obe to the sacred relics of the imperial church of Russia.

To go to law is for two persons to kindle a fire at their own cost, to warm others, and singe themselves to cinders; and because they cannot agree to what is truth and equity, they will both agree to unplume themselves, that others may be decorated with their feathers.—Feltham.

A business man is not the most patient creature in the world. He cannot wait to hear any long-drawn-out story of the cause of his ailment. He doesn't care two straws about a fine theory of how he should treat himself. He may be predisposed to scrofula, or consumption. "That," he will tell you, "has nothing to do with the case." He wants to be well. If he can be cured, write out a prescription and send in your bill. So, here's the first part of the proposition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a microbe hunter and killer. Many persons of scrofulous blood, encourage the breaking out of unsightly sores, to prevent the disease going to the lungs. There is no need of this state of dread and discomfort. Purify the blood. It can be done. "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure 98 per cent. of all consumptive cases, also of all other lingering bronchial, throat and lung diseases.
