The people along the line have had great patience, but it is now all but exhausted, and their condemnation of the shiftless, dilly-dallying policy of the Company is expressed in the strongest language. They have been most unjustly dealt with, and grievously disappointed in their expectations. We trust for the sake of the section of country through which this road runs that this last difficulty will soon be removed and that the Great Western Railway Company, for the sake of their own interests, will make arrangements for opening it at an early day.

The United States and Canada.

It has often been remarked of late that quite a change is observable in the sentiments of the people of the United States in reference to Canada, the sentiments of the people of the United States in reference to Canada, especially in regard to their now all but vanished dream of the annexation of the Dominion to the Republic. They have now—with but few exceptions—a better and more correct appreciation of our present position and future prospects. We now search in vain for the bluster and bombast which once formed the staple of the stump speeches across the line, and even the New York Herald has ceased threatening to gobble us up if we do not annex ourselves. As an evidence of this change of sentiment, we give the collective according to the staple of the stump speeches across the line, and even the New York Herald has ceased threatening to gobble us up if we do not annex ourselves. As an evidence of this change of sentiment, we give the collective according to the staple of the staple of the staple of the staple of the stump speeches across the line, and even the New York Herald has ceased threatening to gobble us up if we do not annex ourselves. As an evidence of this change of sentiment, we give the cocasion of the most interesting periods to the thoughtful and studious astronome — the occasion of the annual display of meteors, when these little bodies are for the year; when, in fact they are often or the value of the year; when, in fact they are often in what is termed "showers." Formerly the November display was the most billiant, but of late years the seen in what is termed. It has a daily mail to and from Berlin, Population about 175. Mossrs Clemens and Wells have five flouring mills containing 3 run of stones, two for merchants' business custom, and one for shipping. They do a large business in stypping flour. Attached is a saw mill support of the late with Napper, Executors of the late with Napper in the Nap which, with the flouring mill, is driven by water during the winter season, and steam in the summer. The machinery is also used for cutting staves and headng, and the proprietors run a service beginning at 2 p.m. each Sabbath.

The village school house is of brick, and fitted up in the most approved manner, the latest acquisition being a set of new maps. It is divided into two departments. The senior department is presided over by Mr. Petrie, who has taught here for the last seven years and is considered a very good teacher. The junior department is under the care of Miss Wallis, who has given good satisfaction. The average attendance in winter is over one hundred, and in summer over fifty.

This village is situated in the midst of a fine agricultural country. The settlers are principally Scotch from Aberdeenshire, with some English and a few Gormans. They have good farms, and a look at their houses, barns, &c., shows they are doing what is called a profitable farming business. The greater part of the township was settled by the descendents of the Pennsylvanian Dutch and Germans, who are all hard workers. In Woolwich and Waterloo townships, which are now old, there is more bush standing than is to be found in some of our new townships; hardly a farmer has less than 20 acres of bush land.

"2. That a national spirt has not only had birth among the Canadians, but is already a formidable power that public men dare not affront, but are anxious to conciliate.

"3. That the ligament between the British Government and that of Canadis is of the slenderest nature, more of form than of subtiance, and that Canada is now inded practically by her own men, and will in future be ruled only by men of Canadian cipnions who are devoted to Canadian interests. And Canada has native statesmanship equal to the demands of complete home rule.

"4. Free intercourse, socially and connucreially, with the United States, will strengthen the tendency in Canada toward republican sentiment, and lead ultimately to a harmony between the two nations that will place the two Governments in happy accord if it does not unite them, and so promote peace and prospecify as greatly to increase the wealth and population of both.

MERCHANT TAILORS

Guelph, August 1st, 1874.

To the Public.

I take this opportunity to let my old friends and customers know that early this Fall I intend opening up one of the most extensive and varied stocks of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods to be seen in Ontario. I have had erected for my own special retail business a most complete arranged store, and from my long experience in the mercantile business. I feel and know that I will present for the inspection of my old patrons and others not only the most choice selection of Fancy Goods, but goods that will in reality be of such a character as to give to the purchaser the most entire satisfaction. The value will form one of the most important features of my establishment, the fact of going direct most entire satisfaction. The value will form one of the most important features of my establishment, the fact of going direct to the foundain head for my whole stock, and buying all for the ready money, and in addition having no old stock to palm off, is of itself a positive guarantee that my establishment will present inducements to the purchaser that none other in Guelph can approach. I earnestly request my old friends and customers to pay a visit to my establishment, when the old motto that I used for so many years to their advantage will again be adopted, viz: the best goods in the trade at the smallest possible profit. Good goods and Cheap goods. One price and no abatement. No misrepresentations, and the interests of the public doing business with me strenuously wathed.

Yours truly,

JOHN HOGG.
