

TAYLOR STATEN GIVES BOYS TALK ON LEADERSHIP

Speaks in First Presbyterian Church To Mentors and Tutor Groups.

CHRIST'S LIFE EXAMPLE

Taylor Statton, secretary of the Canadian national boys' work board, speaking last night in the hall of the First Presbyterian Church to a gathering of mentors, boys' leaders and leaders of Tutor groups, told his hearers that the chief aim of all leadership of boys was to present the adult aim in life to the boy with the boy's enthusiasm and from the boy's point of view. "Anyone," he said, "who is to be a successful leader in boys' work must reach down to the boy he is teaching, show him the worth while adult aim in life and by living with him, and by showing him how to live to show him in the path of real Christian progress."

There are two well defined approaches to the boy on the part of the adult leader, stimulation and domination, the law of suggestion and the rule of the strap. Only by the power of our faith in boy nature and in the growth and evolution of the boy into the man we want him to be can we attain real, lasting success. The thing to do is to see the maturity of the man with the eyes of the boy, and then you will have no difficulty in getting him to follow in the direction you wish him to go. When you are talking to your class of boys try to make the figure of Jesus Christ a real living everyday personality. As a rule today whenever the name of Christ is mentioned most of us all feel rather uncomfortable. That is the wrong idea altogether. The aim of the Canadian standard of efficiency training is to reach as close as we can to the Christ-life, and as long as the Christ ideal seems unreal, you can't make much progress. Mr. Taylor Statton urged the leaders to show their boys what to do and how to do it rather than to talk about doing anything.

The gathering, which was the outcome of the annual meeting of the London Boys' Work Board, with sessions in the afternoon and evening followed by a supper served in the church hall by the ladies of the church. Before Mr. Statton's address, three of the boys spoke, Gordon Cummings, minister of physical activities in the boys' parliament, and Hartley Upshall, member for London in the boys' parliament, both gave a resume of the work carried out during the last session in Toronto. Frank Adams, leader of the Advance party in the boys' House, who was received with enthusiasm, outlined the program of the sessions, and explained what parliamentary procedure meant. He advocated the selling of the $5,000 worth of bonds by boys in the province to carry on the work of the Boys' Work Board, and said that the London objective was $500. This, he said, could be raised if all the members would go out determined to find purchasers for their bonds. The bonds, which are guaranteed to pay interest at an unknown rate in better, healthier and happier Ontario boys, are issued in denominations of $1.00, and will be used to develop the work in smaller centres, where there is less preparation and material at hand. All these boys were warmly complimented by Mr. Statton on their display of leadership. He said they should turn out the right kind of boy that the board were aiming at. F. G. McAllister, chairman of the Boys' Work Board, presided.

LIBERALS TO GIVE LABOR SUPPORT

Will, However, Resist Any Attempt To Destroy Private Enterprises.

Canadian Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 22.—A fully attended meeting of Liberal members of the House of Commons, including Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George, today unanimously passed a resolution thanking Mr. Asquith "for his wise and courageous leadership" of the party, and also expressing "gratification at the defeat of protection and the fall of the incompetent Tory government."

The resolution also affirmed the party's "steadfast determination to resist every attempt to destroy private enterprise or establish the Socialization of industry, to continue to work for international peace on the basis of the League of Nations, to remove social evils and injustices, to decrease unemployment, and to raise the standard of life of the mass of the people."

It is understood that the future attitude of the party towards the new Labor government was discussed and the feeling expressed was that it should receive cordial support, and that so long as the measures introduced were in harmony with Liberal traditions and Liberal policy and did not raise controversial issues of socialism, the Liberals would keep the Labor government in power.

The task of taking care of these specimens is a monumental one.

FALLON BEGINS BIG LEGAL FIGHT TO GET DEPOSITS

Bishop of London Takes Home
Bank Case Before Supreme Court.

$32,076 IS INVOLVED

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Jan. 22.—On August 17 last the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of the diocese of London owed the Home Bank some $49,000, and had on deposit in various branches of the Home Bank sums totaling $37,000.

On that day Bishop Fallon deposited a check for $32,076 with the Home Bank for the purpose of reducing the indebtedness. Had the bank continued in business it would have meant that by placing the deposits against the indebtedness the corporation would have a credit balance of some $20,000, but with the suspension of the bank on the very day that the deposit was made it means that the corporation may realize only a fraction of that sum.

By evidence taken before Charles G. Bell, K.C., master of the supreme court in the Home Bank reference, Bishop Fallon seeks to establish that the check was deposited after the bank had suspended, and so should be returned to him and that the deposits in the branches should be set off against the indebtedness. If this is established it would mean that after the indebtedness was met the corporation would have some $20,000 in hand in real cash instead of ranking as a creditor for that amount on the defunct bank.

Under examination, Bishop Fallon told of receiving from New York a check for $32,076, which he deposited with the Standard Bank. He drew a check on that account for $32,076 and deposited it with the Home Bank in London, 10 or 15 minutes after 2 o'clock on August 17.

"Your intention was to pay off the indebtedness to the Home Bank," asked M. H. Ludvig, K.C., who appeared for the liquidator of the Home Bank.

"No doubt," returned the bishop. "The bank delivered up your notes on the same day?"

"Yes." "With reference to the time at which you made this payment, you put weight on the point that you had an agreement to meet your secretary at your residence at 2 o'clock. Is he always on hand at the exact time?" "I asked my maid," said Bishop

Fallon, "and she said that he had been there at 2 o'clock and had gone."

"You had made your deposit then?" "Yes."

Bishop Fallon said that he had gone direct from the Home Bank to his residence. By test made last Saturday he found that it took between five and six minutes to cover the distance. He had looked at his watch when he got to his residence and remembered distinctly that the hand was past twenty minutes past two.

"Have you been informed," asked Mr. Ludvig, "that the man who had the check certified said that it was before 2 o'clock?"

"The manager called the staff together next day, and most of them did not know what the time was, but the messenger was positive that it was before 2 o'clock. I told him at 8 o'clock that night that I had paid it after 2 o'clock. I was surprised when he had made no remark at that time, but had called the staff together afterwards."

Bishop Fallon declared that his point was that when a man dies his estate is automatically straightened out, and so with the bank, when it died there would be an automatic adjustment of its accounts.

"That might not be good law," suggested Mr. Ludvig.

"It is good sense," declared Bishop Fallon.

Bishop Fallon added that he himself was the Episcopal Corporation of the Diocese of London and had full control of all finances, even to parish collections, and that without his authority no disposition of such funds could be made. All parish deposits were marked "in trust for the Episcopal Corporation."

The case was adjourned.

BRITAIN EXPECTS END OF BIG STRIKE

Public Takes Heart As Rail
Union Asks For Conference.

REQUEST CONDITIONAL

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 22.—A specific request by the executive committee of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen for a conference with the railway officials, with a view to seeking a basis upon which the strike of the enginemen may be settled, has served to hearten the general public, which since Sunday midnight has been badly hampered by the walkout.

The request for the conference is regarded as a hopeful sign for an ultimate settlement of the controversy between the members of the society and their employers. In both trade union and railroad official circles tonight the hope prevailed that settlement negotiations may be opened tomorrow.

In both these circles it was regarded as highly significant that although the railway officials had not wavered in their stand on the strike, the society's request was conditional, inasmuch as it asked a conference "to secure adjustment of existing differences." This was considered as providing a wide basis on which a discussion of the situation could be resumed.

The change in the attitude of the enginemen is believed to have been due to conciliatory influences coming from high quarters. Both sides to the controversy had been claiming progress today. Railway officials said increased traveling facilities had been afforded the public, while J. Bromley, secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, claimed that the ranks of the strikers were gradually growing through men of the National Union of Railwaymen joining the movement. He said 75,000 men were out.

Late tonight it was said on behalf of the Associated Society that despite the request for a conference it would "stand by the strike."
