LOCAL OPTION.

This term should be applied to the choice every intelligent person has between Burdock Blood Bitters, the natural and certain remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, headache, and bad blood, and the various imitations offered by unscrupulous parties as being "just as good." There is nothing else as good as B. B. B. It is an honest medicine.

SCIENTIFIC AND SANITARY.

The microscopists say that a mosquito has twenty-two teeth.

It has long been known to architects that the perpendicularity of monuments is effected by the rays of the sun. This phenomenon is due to the greater expansion of the side upon which the sun's rays fall.

The great Russian Engineer M Inikoff, writes from Odessa to the Smithsonian Institution describing the ruins of an ancient canal discovered in Crimea, which he regards as one of the wonders of the world. It is certainly twenty-seven centuries old, and among similar ancient objects of historic interest, is second in age only to the great pyramids.—Washington Star.

A very complete diamond exhibit is made by Cape Colony, South Africa. The exhibit includes 10,000 carats of uncut stones, a large quantity of very fine cut and polished ones, together with all that is necessary to show the process of mining and washing. For this it has been necessary to transport to Chicago 100 tons of pulverized blue earth, 50 tons of unpulverized earth, and a complete washing machine, which will be operated by natives. The exhibit will also include a unique collection of crocidolite and special diamondiferous products.—Scientific American.

There are four systems now in force for the grant of patents: 1, the American, in which the patent is granted after rigid examination into novelty; 2, the British, in which the invention is advertised and the grant is subject to opposition; 3, the German, which is a sort of compromise between the American and British, involving both an examination and an appeal to opposition; and 4, the French, which involves neither an examination nor public opposition, but is a registration merely. All the patent laws of the world can be included in some one of these systems, or partake of their features.—Inventive Age.

Dr. Koch, the renowned bacteriologist, nearly lost his assistant, Dr. Freymuth, in the cholera laboratory at Danzig the other day. He was poisoned by accidently swallowing some cholera bacilli. He fell sick, exhibiting all the symptoms of Asiatic cholera and his life was saved with great difficulty. It seems that after handling cholera bacilli all morning he sat down to his lunch without going through the formality of washing his hands. Three days later the symptoms appeared—chills, stomach ache, dizziness, etc. The physicians of the laboratory at once took him in charge and barely saved his life.—New York Press.

A curious method was recently used in Illinois to take the foul air out of a well. The well was to be cleaned, but the man that took the job was afraid to go down until he had ascertained the quality of the air at the bottom. He let down a lighted candle, and when it descended to about six feet of the bottom it went out as suddenly as though extinguished by a whiff of air. That was all he wanted to know. He was then sure that the well had poisonous gas in it, and took a small umbrella, tied a string to the handle, and lowered it open into the well. Having let it go nearly to the bottom, he drew it up, carried it a few feet from the well and upset it. He repeated this operation twenty or thirty times, with all the bystanders laughing at him, then again lowered the light, which burned clear and bright even at the bottom. He then condescended to explain to them that the gas in the well was carbonic acid gas, which is heavier than air, and therefore could be brought in an umbrella, just as though it were so much water.
It was a simple trick, yet perfectly effective.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
