LIFE OF THE HIGH TARIFF.

So Leng as Non-Manufacturing Canadians Submit to the Taxation.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)
London, Nov. 19.—The Liverpool Daliy Post and Mercury, in a long editorial, refers, among other matters, to a company recently formed in Canada to manufacture tin plates and sheet steel, and asking a protective duty of thirty-three and a third per cent.

"This is the way," says The Post, "the Canadian manufacturers respond to Chamberlain's suggestion that they be content with the industries they have and leave others to this country. Under a protective tariff they are just as likely to do that as we are to tax our food for the benefit of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, So long as non-manufacturing Canadians will submit to be taxed for the benefit of manufacturers the high tariff system will continue."
