Back Again To Business!

Back again to the enthusiasm of quick sales, and back to careful, faithful service. We don't feel that we've lost anything by closing Saturday as well as Friday. Goodwill is part of such storekeeping as ours, and the goodwill of salespeople is equally important with the goodwill of shoppers. We all feel better after three whole days away from business, and we're ready now to fairly make things hum.

The chance comes in the fact of stocktaking this week. We always end the year with a clean balance sheet, and between now and Thursday vast quantities of worthy goods will be turned into money. Bargains will be ready this morning in all the stocks—pre-inventory bargains. Odd lots and broken assortments, goods that we have too many of and whatever we can spare without more harm than loss of money are marked for quick-selling. It's your chance to make a dollar go as far as two would ordinarily. The opportunity is limited to this week—between now and stocktaking.

This list gives some idea of the kind of bargains we mean. On sale this morning, and not likely to last long:—

THE FORENSIC BULLY.

Our friends the lawyers are not backward in looking after their own interests. The profession of law is protected by one of the most arbitrary trades unions that have ever existed. This trades union is backed up by Acts of Parliament, Federal and Provincial. It is entrenched behind a veritable Chinese wall, lawyers themselves possess the keys of the gates that give access to the fortress. The legal business of the country is consequently in the hands of a powerful monopoly. This monopoly regulates its charges according to an arbitrary standard, not according to the well-recognized law of supply and demand. It is as jealous of its privileges as it is aggressive. In the court room, the professional lawyer makes it his business to outwit the layman. He obtains a locus standi in the court room merely because he represents one of the parties to a suit. He is there by courtesy, more than by right. The profession, however, has arrogated to itself authority that makes it almost absolute in the court room. The lawyer in the court room assumes the role of the old-time domineer with fire in his eye and stick in hand. Jurors, witnesses, plaintiffs, defendants, everyone must keep as still as mice while the man in the gown blows off steam. If a witness attempts to make a joke the domineer reminds him that he is on his oath, that the court room is no place for playfulness—tells him, in fact, to shut up. If such a warning does not produce the desired effect, the domineer appeals to the court and asks to have the witness committed for contempt. The domineer has usurped all the buffoonery, all the ridicule, all the sarcasm of the court room to himself. He can joke with the witnesses as he can ridicule everyone except the judge (who himself is a member of the trades union). In fact the lawyer values his services according to his proficiency in ridicule and his aptitude for cracking jokes. An incident occurred in the London court room the other day that exemplified the point we desire to make. Mr. B. B. Oiler was having some fun with a witness, and it is said to have been very fine sport. The questioning led to the statement that there were mattresses in the Conservatory hall the night before the election, and the eminent Q. C. said, "Were the mattresses in the room filled with men?" to which witness replied, "No, they were filled with straw or hay; I don't know which."

This elicited the response from the Queen's counsel, "You're very clever, aren't you?"

On behalf of a long-suffering public The World protests against the arrogant assumption of the lawyer in the court room. The lawyer has no more right to insult a witness than a witness has to insult a lawyer. The lawyer is no more privileged to joke with a witness than is the witness to joke with a lawyer. The witness has a perfect right to pay back the forensic bully in his own coin, whether that coin be in the shape of ridicule, wit or satire. It is well for the lawyer to remember that he comes neither legally nor morally by his dictatorial airs. He has usurped them. The judge naturally sympathizes with a trades union of which he once was a member. He rarely interferes to protect a witness or client. He is well known to be kicked and cuffed like criminals. It is high time the forensic bully were repressed. If he wants to turn the court room into a prize-ring why doesn't he take his punishment like a man, instead of hiding behind his gown when he gets an unexpected blow between the eyes?

THE BISHOPS SHOULD BE DISCIPLINED.

The priest in politics is responsible for the biggest part of the Manitoba school nuisance. If it had not been for the hierarchy of Quebec and Manitoba the country would have been saved five years of strife and bitterness. The priest has the same right as any other citizen to vote and to discuss political questions on their merits. But the law does not give him no right to use his authority as a priest or bishop to influence voters by spiritual threats and intimidation. It was the Liberals who passed legislation against clerical intimidation and the same party has now an opportunity of showing the hierarchy of Quebec just what the legislation means. The country is unanimous in chasing the priest out of politics. The Catholic bishops of Ontario afford a happy contrast to their brethren in Quebec. In this province the bishops did not publicly interfere in the elections at all. As far as they are concerned no law against clerical intimidation is necessary. If Quebec is to rank with the rest of the provinces its bishops will have to be disciplined, and the time for starting in at the work in the present moment. It has been suggested that recourse should be had to the Pope for disciplining the too-officious Canadian bishops. This course is inadvisable, principally because it involves our recognizing the Pope in the settlement of our domestic troubles. The Canadian law is ample to teach the priests a much-needed lesson. Or, if the law is not adequate, it should be suitably amended.

TOO SMALL BUSINESS FOR TORONTO.

The Board of Control may or may not be justified in limiting tenders for civic work to the residents of Toronto. That is a question open to discussion. But there is no question as to the injustice and impropriety of inviting outsiders to tender and then rejecting them on the ground that they do not live in Toronto. While the citi-

THE CIVIC CAMPAIGN.

He would like to see a little less cry about money, and a great deal more attention given to the business interests of the city, and a great deal less to the question of the money to be expended on the civic campaign. He has favored eight tickets for a quarter, but as there had been a deadlock he was quite willing to allow the question to go to the people, who would have to settle it anyway. Messrs. McKinnon and Laidlaw, who both emphatically declared that if Sunday cars never ran until the company yielded the plan, the citizens would never get them. He was in favor of doing away with all exemptions from taxation in reply to a question, he stated that he did not think the gas company had been living up to its contract with the citizens of Toronto, but whether it would be wise to apply to the Legislature for greater powers while the matter is pending in the courts he could not say.

CONSERVATIVE AND RADICAL.

W. P. Maclean, M.P., declared that the main issue in municipal politics is the right of the electors to express their opinion upon the Sunday car question, and that the Council of the city should be asked to submit it to a vote, he would have entered the Majority contest upon that issue.

UTILIZATION OF PRISON LABOR.

The report of the New York Prison Commission makes various suggestions for the utilization of prison labor. It appears that about half of the 3200 convicts in the State prisons are at present employed in productive industries, and the desideratum is to provide employment for the 1600 or so who are unemployed.

A St. Catharines Man After the Majority of Vancouver—Notes About the Dominion Ministers—Mining Topics.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 21.—(Special Correspondence of The World.)—J. J. McConville, President of the Burrard District Labor Society, and J. J. McConville, President of the Burrard District Labor Society, are the candidates for the Mayor of Vancouver for a select few. The San Francisco Conservative while the other two candidates are dyed-in-the-wool Liberals.
